EXTRA SESSION MAY BE RESULT OF DEADLOCK

WALKER COGNIZANT OF SERIOUS THREAT

Agricultural Department Items Are Storm Center. Deliberate Delay Is Charged to Senate.

An extra session of the Georgia legislature loomed as a strong probability Thursday night when the house and senate faced practical certainty of a deadlock over items in the general appropriations bill.

With both houses apparently determined to stand firm, the clash which began Thursday seems likely to continue to the hour of sine die adjournment Saturday night. If the session should end with the general appropriations bill unpassed, it would be necessary for the governor to call a special session before January 1, 1926, in order that the state government might function for the next two years.

Little Chance To Agree.

The house will begin consideration of the senate amendments to the general appropriation bill this morning. But it was evident Thursday night that there is little chance of house agreement. Then, should the senate refuse to recede the question would be thrown into the hands of conference committees.

There are 36 senate amendments to the general appropriations bill as it left the house, which, it is said, call for about $900,000 more revenue than voted by the house. As the bill left the house its total appropriations called for about $350,000 more than the estimated revenue for 1926. Chairman Fermor Barrett of the house committee on appropriations has stated that he will never agree to this additional overdraft on the state finances. In addition, however, the house itself has passed special appropriation bills totaling well over a million and, with the impossibility of now passing any bills to raise additional revenue, the state will in any event face a heavy deficit in 1926 and 1927.

Will Fight to Finish.

The combination of the two big groups in the house—those who are fighting the senate amendments because they simply add a further load to the overburdened state finances, and those who oppose the senate increases to different branches of the department of agriculture—means that there is an overwhelming majority who will fight to the last ditch against acceptance of these senate amendments.

It was over appropriation items affecting the department of agriculture—the bone of contention all through the session and the object of the bitterest fights ever waged on the floor of the house—that the head-on clash between the two houses developed.

The house, in passing the general appropriation bill for 1926 and 1927, struck out the items appropriating $3,000 annually for the salary of the chief oil inspector, and $2,100 annually for salary for his clerk. It also reduced the maintenance appropriation for the bureau of markets from $100,-

New Browning Gun Is Praised In Air Defense

Claim Machine Gun Is Superior To Existing Anti-Aircraft Artillery.

New York, August 20.—(AP)—A new model of the Browning 50-caliber machine gun, now being given a thorough tryout in connection with anti-aircraft tests, is hailed as an important addition to the national air defense.

The new gun, incorporating features which army attaches claim give it marked superiority over existing anti-aircraft artillery, is expected, when placed in actual test against "invading" aircraft at Fort Tilden, to offer a far more effectual defense than the three-inch land batteries which, in tests recently concluded here, were "defeated" by air invaders.

Capable of hurling 550 projectiles a minute, each weighing one-eighth of a pound, the gun is regarded as the plus-ultra development in anti-aircraft gunnery. An important advantage claimed by its developers is the elimination of the time fuse which hitherto, in a trial barrage, had reduced airplane shooting to virtual guesswork.

Press Club Plans Building.

Washington, August 20.—(AP)—The National Press Club of Washington tonight approved plans for construction of a $9,000,000 office and theater building on the site of the old Ebbett hotel.

Havana Editor Assassinated

CUBAN NEWSPAPER URGED HE BE KILLED

After His Death Is Demanded

Havana, August 20.—Eight hours after an evening newspaper had declared in a headline that "Senor Armando Andre must be killed" Andre fell before his home Thursday with 14 bullet wounds in his body. A quick trip to a hospital failed to save Andre's life. He died on the operating table.

As publisher of the newspaper El Dia, Andre had attacked the administration of President Machado without mercy. During the regime of former President Zayas, Andre was captain of the port of Havana.

Andre was returning from his newspaper office when he was killed. He arrived before his home in a motor car and was under fire the moment the car stopped. The chauffeur told investigators that two men were standing across the street as he stopped the car. They held newspapers before their faces. Whoever the killers were, they were marksmen.

In addition to the 14 bullets which lodged in Andre's body, eight bullet marks were found on the side of the house within an area of less than a foot square, and just the height of a man's head.

A mysterious man in a military uniform was concerned in the killing, according to a neighbor who was roused by the shots and looked out the window in time to see such a person fleeing.

Secretary of Justice Barraque has promised an energetic effort to apprehend and punish the killers.

POST PRODUCTS' ATLANTA OFFICE LEADING NATION

More evidence that Atlanta branches of national manufacturing enterprises are leading the entire country was revealed Thursday when W. Y. Roper, division sales manager of the Post Products Company, Inc., made public figures showing that the Atlanta office of hi scompany led the whole United States in the percentage of increase in business for the first six months of this year over the corresponding months of the previous year.

Mr. Roper added his evidence to the rapidly accumulating mass of cold, hard facts which show that business in the southeastern states, of which Atlanta is the hub and center, is moving forward in great bounds toward genuine boom times.

"After returning from a trip through the 10 states covered by our Atlanta branch I am convinced that we've long since turned the corner toward thriving business," he said. "There is more confidence in business and more confidence in buying than I have seen for years. It is not all in Florida ,either, as our figures show that South Carolina led Florida in its percentage of increase for the first six months of the year. Increases are coming from Georgia and all the other states in the southeastern section."

Mr. Roper said his company's business in Atlanta has been much better than last year.

"There is no question in the minds of business men now as to the outlook," he said. "We are certain to show grea tincrease in nearly all lines of business this fal. In our business we look for big increases and are making our plans with that end in view."

The Post Products company manufactures many nationally advertised cereals, breakfast foods and beverages. The company has its southern sales offices in the Atlanta National Bank building.

GUESS APPOINTED DECATUR JUDGE

Governor Names New Officials Despite Fight in Legislature for Change To Popular Election.

Despite the fact that a bill providing for popular election of the judge and solicitor of the city court of Decatur has passed the house and now is being considered by a senate committee following first reading, Governor Clifford Walker Thursday appointed Frank Guess, well-known attorney of Stone Mountain and son of Senator Carl N. Guess, of the 34th, and D. P. Phillips, Lithonia attorney, judge and solicitor respectively of the tribunal.

The appointments were submitted to the senate late Thursday along with a number of others and were ratified immediately.

The bill providing for popular election of the judge and solicitor was introduced in the house by the united DeKalb county delegation some time ago when reports of the governor's intention to make a change in the court's official personnel became current. It sought election of the officials in the November election of 1926, the terms to begin January 1, 1927.

The measure was passed by the house and was transmitted to the senate. Thursday night Representative

STATE TREASURER MAY BE ENJOINED IN GAS TAX MOVE

Screven County Treasurer Flays "Injustice" of Distribution of Fund for County Roads.

The state treasurer will be enjoined from distributing any more of the gasoline tax money to the various counties of Georgia if plans now being worked out by J. E. Twitty, county treasurer of Screven county, are followed. Mr. Twitty stated Thursday that while it had not yet been decided whether the proposed injunction proceedings would be brought in the name of Screven county or by himself as an individual, he expected to file such a suit in the near future.

Under the gasoline tax act passed by the legislature of 1923, one cent of the three cents per gallon tax imposed is distributed among counties of the state on a basis worked out according to the state aid mileage in each county. The money is to be used, however, the act specifies, in building and maintaining the public roads and bridges, and the proposed suit is based on the argument that this difference between the road mileage on which the money is apportioned and the road mileage to which it is put in use causes a serious discrimination against certain counties.

"Approximately 90 of the 161 counties of the state are penalized," said Mr. Twitty, Thursday, "under this system, for the remaining counties."

Mr. Twitty has been working for the past month in the compilation of charts and statistics showing alleged injustices of the act. It was his original intention to try and secure passage of a bill correcting the gasoline tax law at the present legislative

Jury Decides Realtor Gave Woman Poison

Daytona Man Held To Have Caused Death of Mrs. H. D. Hunt.

Miami, Fla., August 20.—(AP)—Mrs. H. D. Hunt, alias May Devillo, came to her death from poison administered by John Gobel, wealthy Daytona (Fla.) realty operator. That was the verdict rendered by a coroner's jury here this afternoon.

Mrs. Hunt was visited in the local jail Tuesday night after being placed there under a warrant charging she had stolen a $1,500 diamond ring from Gobel, with whom she had been friendly. While Gobel was visiting her she ran from the cell, declaring he had forced her to drink poison.

After naming the poison which killed the woman, the verdict read:

"We further say upon our oaths that said poison was given her, either forcibly or by inducement at the hands of one John Gobel, and we therefore recommend that said John Gobel be held to await action of the grand jury."

County Solicitor Robert Taylor testified that while examining Gobel, the latter offered him a $500 bribe to "fix things up."

Gobel, he said, denied giving Mrs. Hunt poison, but admitted he had been on very intimate terms with her previous to her arrest.

Deputy Sheriff L. A. Short also said Gobel had offered him a bribe. The deputy obtained a bank note, he said, and the wealthy real estate man, who came here from Daytona, Fla., filled it in for $700.

HEAT WAVE SHATTERS RECORDS IN GEORGIA; 100 MAXIMUM HERE

GRIFFIN REPORTS 107, MACON 105 AND AUGUSTA 106

Three New Heat Records Made as Atlanta Swelters in Fourth Wave of Summer.

RELIEF IS PROMISED IN RAINS SATURDAY

High Temperatures Are General Over South. Rain Expected To End Long Period of Drouth.

While Atlanta wilted under the glare of its fourth summer heat wave and saw the mercury establish three new high records here Thursday, cities all over Georgia and the south reported temperatures in excess of any ever recorded by their respective weather bureau.

Atlanta's maximum temperature was an even 100 degrees, but other Georgia towns and cities far surpassed this record. The highest temperature in the state was reported at Griffin, the weather bureau there recording 107 degrees, the highest in its history.

Augusta ran a close second with a maximum reading of 106, this also beating any high mark ever recorded there. Macon was a strong third with 105 degrees, with weather officials there announcing that this was the hottest weather ever known to that city. Columbus sent in a new high record, the mercury in that city mounting to 102 degrees.

Dixie Cities Suffer.

While new high records by the score were being run up all over Georgia, other southern cities also suffered blistering temperatures. The thermometer went to 102 in Birmingham, and Little Rock, Memphis, New Orleans, Vicksburg and San Antonio reported maximum readings of 100 degrees.

The mercury at the Atlanta weather bureau Thursday afternoon reached a high point of exactly 100 degrees, two-tenths of a degree higher than Wednesday, when the maximum temperature was 99.8 but was reported in round numbers by the local weather bureau at 100 degrees for the sake of good measure.

This is the highest point ever attained by an official United States thermometer here during August, the old record established August 11, 1900, at 98 degrees.

In setting its second record, the mercury started its climb Thursday from a low point of 80, just 3 degrees in excess of the former high point for minimum temperatures.

The third and final record was established when the weather bureau recorded a mean temperature of 90 degrees for the day, easily the highest of the present summer and probably the highest for all time.

After ringing up by 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon these new goals for future torrid summers to shoot at, the hot wave—apparently well satisfied with its work—rapidly receded before a bank of clouds that swept in from the east. Thousands of parched Atlantans looked vainly to these clouds for rain, but C. F. von Herrmann, chief of the local weather bureau, forecast that no relief is in sight until Saturday afternoon, when cooling showers are slated to arrive.

Meanwhile, he added, temperature conditions today will be about the same as those of Thursday.

The present heat wave is the second to sweep down on Atlanta during August, one of last week having been succeeded by only two days of cool

FIREMEN UNABLE TO CHECK FLAMES

Pasadena, California, Threatened by Forest Fire—1,400 Men Enlisted in Fight To Save City.

Asheville, N. C., August 20.—Damages estimated by citizens of Blowing Rock to be approximately $1,000,000 have been done to Grandfather mountain timber and lands by forest fires which have been raging there today, it was learned tonight in a telephone message to The Asheville Citizen.

Efforts to communicate with fire wardens or officials were futile, as it was said that they were all at the scene of the conflagration. Citizens said that the entire mountain is in flames.

Owners of Mayview manor, a large resort hotel at Blowing Rock, expressed the opinion that the hotel is in no danger of destruction.

Those who have been endeavoring to fight the flames tonight saw little hope of success unless rain comes soon, and there are no indications of this.

Charring of Grandfather mountain, which is government property, will destroy some of the most picturesque mountain scenery in eastern United States.

Tonight numerous small fires were observed in other forests in the Linville-Blowing Rock section.

Grandfather mountain is a part of the Blue Ridge range and lies in Watauga county between Blowing Rock and Linville, both popular summer resorts, where thousands of visitors are attracted each year.

Although there are large resort hotels here and at Linville, none are located on Grandfather mountain, which was acquired by the federal government a few years ago. Several months ago, the mountain was proposed as part of the site for a national park.

No accurate estimate can be made tonight as to the number of persons fighting the flames. The fire has been raging all day, and all efforts to check its progress have failed.

PASADENA THREATENED BY RAGING FOREST FIRE.

Pasadena, Cal., August 20.—More than 1,400 tired men are battling the raging inferno of a forest fire, which Thursday night was only five miles from the outskirts of the city of Pasadena.

An additional 200 men are being rushed from Los Angeles to the scene of the fire, which already has consumed 7,000 acres of brush and timberland.

Should a breeze from the south arise, the blaze, which is now confined to the big Tujunga Canyon district, would strike Pasadena in five hours.

The fire, now 16 miles long and 5 miles wide, is progressing at a speed of one mile an hour.

PROMINENT DOCTOR OF NORTH CAROLINA KILLED BY NEGRO

Farmville, N. C., August 20.—Dr. H. P. Moseley, widely-known physician and a member of a prominent Lenoir county family, was shot to death by Frank Frizzell, negro, near here tonight when he went to the home of the negro in response to a professional call. Frizzell was arrested and was rushed out of town for safe-keeping in the jail at Raleigh. A load of buckshot was fired into the physician's body causing almost instant death.

The shooting occurred on a farm half a mile from Farmville. Mrs. Moseley accompanied her husband and remained in the car while Dr. Moseley went to the negro's home. When no one answered at the front door, the physician went around to the back. Mrs. Moseley was attracted by shots and hurried around the side of the house to find her husband on the ground dying, and Frizzell, apparently drink crazed, standing by with a gun in his hands.

Attempt To Assassinate King

TRAVELER TELLS STORY OF UNSUCCESSFUL PLOT

Of Spain Denied by Officials

Hendaice, France, August—(AP)—A traveler, who has just returned from Santandera, told a circumstantial story today of an alleged attempt to assassinate King Alfonso of Spain at that place Saturday night.

Later the Spanish embassy made a formal denial that there had been any such attempt.

The king's assailant, the traveler related, was arrested as he was drawing a revolver from his pocket just as the king was approaching in the royal automobile. He was described as a tall, well-dressed man, wearing unusually large, dark glasses as he stood among the spectators along the street as Alfonso's motorcar appeared.

These he replaced with clear glasses, and this action attracted the attention of a secret service man, who threw his arms around him as he put his hand in his coat pocket, seeking the weapon.

Soon after the arrest, rumors were current that the king had been wounded in the shoulder, that the Duke of Mirando, who was created a grandee of Spain in 1920, had been killed and that the king's chauffeur also was wounded.

As the traveler left Madrid it was reported that former radical Deputy Campany of Barcelona had been seized by the authorities.

Circles in touch with the general directorate of security do not hide the existence of a plot against King Alfonso with ramifications in several cities and the participation of foreigners.

RAWLINGS, ON STAND, DENIES HE IS GUILTY; CASE TO JURY TODAY

CUSTOMS AGENT DISREGARDS DIPLOMATIC STATUS

For Bringing in Fine Liquors

New York, August 20.—(AP)—Eugene le Bosse, of Manchester, N. H., honorary consul of the republic of Haiti, arrived today on the steamship Nickerie from Port Au Prince, accompanied by 26 large and weighty pieces of baggage. A customs agent asked for the keys to the trunks.

"Sir!" said Mr. le Bosse, "I am a diplomat. I claim exemption from customs examination."

"Sir!" replied the agent, "I suspect that you have liquor hidden among your shirts."

"Certainly," asserted the honorary consul, "all the ambassadors bring in liquor."

"But you, sir," the examiner pointed out, "are not an ambassador, nor even a minister, but a consul, and an honorary consul at that."

Mr. le Bosse bowed to authority.

"That trunk contains liquor," he said, "and so does that case."

They did hold liquor—240 bottles of champagne, vermouth, whisky, and precious Mosel, a five-gallon keg of best Haitian rum.

"I abide by the laws," the consul protested to Edward Barnes, assistant solicitor at the custom home. "I just brought this in for some of my friends. They did not give me the money to purchase it. I thought it was quite regular. Never before has my baggage been searched."

Mr. Barnes fined him $1,200, but offered him immunity if he would give the names of his friends.

"No," said Mr. le Bosse, positively, "if a crime has been committed, I alone am guilty and I alone will pay the penalty."

LANDIS PRAISES WORK OF LEGION AT ROME MEET

Baseball Commissioner Is Principal Speaker at State Convention of World War Soldiers.

Rome, Ga., August 20.—(AP)—"I am a friend of the American Legion and would be the happiest man on earth if I was a member of it," former Judge Kennesaw Mountain Landis, said today in an address here before the convention of the legion and legion auxiliary of Georgia.

The baseball commissioner described the work of the American Legion as a demonstration of integrity and virtue and expressed the hope that Georgia would be successful in raising its endowment fund without the difficulties that other states have had.

"You have to help the man who is broken and do the things the government will not do for him," he said. "It should be the place of the business men, men who did not fight, to raise this fund, but the legion is doing it, and I hope it will be a success."

Pictures Soldier.

"I have in my mind a picture of a 'len soldier in France, when in a flash of consciousness, he thinks of his own flesh and blood, and has faith in America and thinks his orphan will be cared for. Some day I hope we will be able to look that soldier in the eye—that child should have a home, or as near one as possible."

Several speeches preceded the address of former Judge Landis. Mrs. E. W. Burt, of Salisbury, N. C., national vice president of the Legion auxiliary, urged the legionnaires to work for more members for the auxiliary. General Gowley, commander of the fourth corps area, declared that America is forgetting the war and falling back into a state of unpreparedness. He appealed to the American people to support a policy of preparedness.

The work of the legion in arousing public sentiment to demand fair play for the disabled soldier was reviewed by General J. R. McQuigg, of Ohio. This work is going forward but not with as much rapidity as is necessary, because many of the disabled men are dying without having been given proper attention, he said.

"It is the duty of every ex-service man to see to it that the work of rehabilitation of disabled men is speed-

Railway Train Cheating Ring Exposed Here

One Suspect Is Arrested and Two Escape After Fight.

A gigantic flim-flam and confidence ring in which victims are said to have been "fleeced" out of thousands of dollars was broken early Thursday morning after a hand-to-hand engagement with three of the alleged leaders, according to reports made Thursday from the office of Solicitor General John A. Boykin.

Jack Lance, who is reported to have at least a dozen aliases and who is reputed to have operated in many states of the southeast, is held at Fulton tower, and his pal, Mrs. Nautha Cole, pretty 19-year-old Birmingham woman, is detained at the Atlanta police station.

Solicitor Boykin this morning will ask that Fulton county grand jury return indictments charging Lance with operating a confidence game and having obscene pictures in his possession, and federal authorities will ask that he be indicted on charges of violation of the Mann act.

Mrs. Cole will testify before the grand jury and before the United

MAJORITY REPORT ABSOLVES HOLDER IN HIGHWAY PROBE

Papers Will Come Up in Senate Today for Adoption—Continuous Audit System Is Recommended

Two reports, one signed by the majority of a special highway investigation committee of the state senate and one by the minority, were filed with the upper house of the legislature Thursday afternoon and probably will come up for action today. It had been intended to present the reports Thursday night but this was not done on account of the small attendance. In all probability the reports will be adopted and spread on the senate journal. It is too late in the session, it is stated, to put into effect any of the recommendations, except such as were incorporated in a bill already passed by the senate.

As was forecast exclusively in The Constitution several days ago, the majority report gave Chairman John N. Holder clean bill. The minority report, signed by Senator J. R. Hutcheson, of the 39th district, chairman of the committee, criticised the administration of Mr. Holder severely. The majority report is signed by Senators Andrews, Carswell, Collier and Dixon.

The majority report recommended several changes in highway department affairs, among them being vesting of supreme authority over road matters in the highway board; a more modern system of bookkeeping; a continuous audit under an auditor employed by the state auditor, and several suggestions looking to minor economies. No illegal use of state funds was brought to light, the report said, except in the case of Jack B. Bereth, now serving a chaingang sentence following conviction as the result of an expose of payroll padding published

4 PROBES BEGUN IN SHIP DISASTER

Inspectors Seek To Place Blame for Explosion Which Cost a Total of Forty Lives.

Newport, R. I., August 20.—(AP)—Four separate investigations were under way today to determine the responsibility for the tragedy of the explosion of the boiler on the excursion steamer Mackinac in Newport harbor Tuesday evening which has claimed 42 lives already with nine other victims fighting for their last slim chances of life with the probability against them.

Four other persons are still missing and it is believed that they may have jumped overboard and drowned. Hospital authorities said that the death list would probably exceed 50.

State boiler inspectors who visited the death ship yesterday said that the boiler which exploded was cracked and in weakened condition.

Their findings are being checked by the Rhode Island attorney general's office and federal steamboat inspectors. Newport police are conducting an independent investigation. The state officials will decide whether criminal negligence caused the accident.

Physicians at the naval hospital and at the Newport hospital said it would probably be a week before it could be stated how many of the injured would recover.

Captain George McVey, who commanded the Mackinac, was deeply affected by the tragedy. Almost immediately after he felt the concussion of the explosion, he said, steam began to seep through every crevice from the boiler room, shrouding the ship in a fatal cloud and making it impossible to see the nearby shore.

ARGUMENTS BEGIN IN NOTED TRIAL AT WRIGHTSVILLE

Court Adjourned for Day in Midst of Attorneys' Arguments, Which Will Be Concluded Today.

VERDICT EXPECTED THIS AFTERNOON

State Springs Sensation in Report of Conversation in Jail Between Tanner and Rawlings.

Wrightsville, Ga., August 20.—Presentation of evidence in the trial of C. G. Rawlings charged with the murder of G. A. Tarbutton, came to a sudden close this afternoon and arguments began immediately.

The opening agument was made by Willis Evans, who spoke for an hour. He was followed by Solicitor Fred Kea, who spoke for an hour. Then court adjourned.

E. L. Stephens for the state will speak for two hours in the morning and he will be followed by Thomas W. Hardwick, who will speak two hours for the defense. The case will go to the jury tomorrow afternoon.

Defense counsel sprang a surprise with the announcement that it would offer no evidence, further than the statement of Rawlings. As result of this, decision, the defense had the opening and closing argument in the case.

Judge Camp allotted three hours to each side for argument.

The statement of Rawlings came as a surprise, and followed sensational testimony by a state witness, Ray Hewitt, who said that while he was an inmate of the Wrightsville jail recently, he heard Tanner upbraid Rawlings for "not doing what he promised to do" and the reply from Rawlings that "he would fulfill his promise when he got the insurance money all straight."

Rawlings on the stand branded the charges against him as ridiculous.

"I loved him like a son," said Rawlings, in referring to the slain man.

Rawling was seated, not in the witness stand, but in a chair directly in front of the jury, and for 15 minutes told the jury of his relations with Tarbutton. He said that on February 17 he went to the Tarbutton home by appointment had hunted him up, telling him of his business.

"Tarbutton said he would go," Rawlings continued, "according to the agreement and got into the car and we went to Ring Jaw bluff, where we stopped. Tarbutton blew the horn and Tanner came up. Tarbutton asked Tanner if he had the holes dug and Tanner told him that they were dug just where he had been told to dig them. We got out of the car and went to the first hole. About that time Alexander came up and said he wanted to talk to Tarbutton. He talked to Gus for 15 or 20 minutes, then left. I did not talk to Alexander, but showed him some land lines."

Rawlings said that he did not know anything about bauxite but was prospecting up there, and he didn't know

MARTIN TO MEET LANDIS SATURDAY

Little Rock, Ark., August 20.—(AP)—John D. Martin, president of the Southern association, tonight completed his examination of members of the New Orleans team in connection with rumors of alleged irregularities in the relationship between players of the Nashville team and members and a man purporting to be an official of the New Orleans club.

Only two members of the team—Manager Larry Gilbert and Rightfielder Tucker—were questioned at length, the others being closeted with the league chief for only a few minutes each.

In addition to the 16 Pelican players, Mr. Martin questioned Secretary Jones. After the examination, which was held behind closed doors had been finished, the president said that he had concluded his inquiry with the exception of questioning Fred Eichrodt, outfielder, who recently was returned to Cleveland, American League club, by Nashville. Mr. Martin has requested K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, to have Eichrodt in Chicago for questioning Saturday morning.

A court stenographer recorded the questions and answers of every person quizzed here as was done in Nashville yesterday when members of the Volunteer team were examined.

Mr. Martin reiterated tonight that he would give out nothing regarding the evidence given until he had received the transcript of evidence taken at both Nashville and Little Rock and heard Eichrodt's testimony. "As soon as possible after I have questioned Eichrodt," he said, "I will begin writing my decision insofar as it relates to the Southern association. I also will make recommendations to Commissioner Landis as to what I believe he should do in the matter."

The league president left on a midnight train for Memphis, where he will remain tomorrow. Tomorrow night he will leave for Chicago to keep his engagement with Commissioner Landis Saturday.

SOREHEAD

Sorehead is the most troublesome and dirtiest disease that attacks fowls. Very contagious and appears among poultry about the first of August, continuing through the Fall, Winter and early Spring.

For the first time in history, that we know of, it can be prevented without giving each bird separate treatment.

Go to your Drug Store or Poultry Supply Dealer NOW, get a bottle of "2-in-1" LICE AND MITE REMOVER, add a few drops to the drinking water—there will be no sorehead. FOUR BANDITS GET RICH HAUL IN GEMS

Chicago, August 20.—Four men walked into the offices of a wholesale jewelry firm and escaped with jewelry variously estimated to be worth from $100,000 to $500,000.

Two of the bandits flashed revolvers and held the office force at bay while the other two leisurely did the robbing. They selected the gems with care. Evidently they were judges of fine stones. Each held a small sack into which he scooped the loot.

Six safes, which were not locked, were rifled. The men had been gone several minutes before arrival of police. They were not masked.

Thousands of Youngsters Will Take Part Tonight In Great Playground Pageant at City Auditorium

Last Rehearsal Given Thursday Night and All Is Now Ready for Fairyland Scenes.

With the stage all set, and imperfections having been ironed out at Thursday's dress rehearsal, everything is ready for the opening performance of the annual playground pageant, set for 8 o'clock tonight at the city auditorium. The pageant will be repeated at the auditorium Saturday night.

All the children will be in full regalia of elaborate costumes, special woodland scenery has been built, lighting effects arranged, and every possible step taken to make a success of the event which culminates Atlanta's ten-week playground season.

Scene Laid in Fairyland.

The pageant—"The Wedding of the Fairies"—is laid in fairyland, and is featured by a special dance by children from each of the city's 24 white playgrounds, in addition to several solo numbers.

The play opens in a woodland scene, moves on to a party given to fairyland by the king of the fairies, and ends with the wedding of the prince and the fairest of the fairies.

Dance Features.

Dance features include a fireflies' dance, elves' dance, bats' dance, wood numphs' dance, dance of the flower garlands, powder-puff dance, rag doll dance, black and white dance, minuet, rainbow dance, rose maiden's dance, cupid's love dance, merrymakers' dance and a grand march of fairyland.

Music will be furnished by the Atlanta Municipal band, of which John A. Scharf is conductor.

The pageant is under direction of Miss Margaret Camp, playground supervisor, who has been assisted in teaching of dancing by Miss Ann Agricola, Atlanta dancing instructor. Directors of the various playgrounds had direct charge of training children in their respective section.

RAWLINGS DENIES GUILT AND BOTH SIDES REST

who sent the samples off. He said he had several propositions from people wanting an option on the bauxite lands. He said that Tarbutton did not own the land, but was to get half of all the proceeds from bauxite mining up there. He stated he and Tarbutton had been in business together since 1908.

"We then started on down the river," continued Rawlings, "Tarbutton was ahead, Tanner was next and I was walking along behind, for I was crippled and couldn't get along well. Just as we started down the slope I was looking down, I heard a gunshot, and looking up I saw Tanner on the ground and Tarbutton was falling. Tanner fell first.

"I never will have anything to happen to me that hurt me any worse than that did. Tarbutton lived with me when young. In 1908 I went into business with him when his brother got killed. There had never been any disagreement with him on my part. I introduced him to the lady he married. We were close together and couldn't have been any closer together than we were.

"About this insurance, I didn't believe in insurance like Tarbutton did. Tarbutton's family had some cancer in it and this made him take out insurance, I suppose. As far as Tarbutton and I were concerned, we were just as close as we could be." (Here Rawlings broke down and wept.) "I had as rather," he continued, "my own son had got killed as he. It is the most ridiculous thing that ever happened to think of my having anything to do with his death."

Rawlings said that he was a poor hand to talk and that was all he knew and that he "couldn't talk about Gus anyway," he said. "Gus was as as close to me as my own son. I never had any more to do with Tarbutton's death than you did," indicating the jury.

Rawlings closed with the statement that he had never discussed the case with Tanner while in jail, "because there was nothing to discuss. His concluding statement was that he and Tanner did not say the things that Hewitt testified to hearing them say.

When Rawlings concluded, the defense rested, and the state introduced several witnesses in rebuttal, before it also rested.

Covington Questioned.

The testimony of Hewitt, followed a gruelling cross-examination of Noah Covington, purported eyewitness to the Tarbutton killing, who was on the stand when court adjourned Wednesday afternoon. Thomas W. Hardwick, defense counsel, grilled Covington for three hours today. Covington retained remarkable composure during the questioning and in the main his story was unshaken.

Hewitt is a Laurens county farmer, who was in jail here recently on charge of larceny after trust, was convicted, and was sent to the chain gang. Attorney Claxton, of the defense counsel in the Rawlings case, appealed the case and Hewitt was freed by the court of appeals.

Hewitt testified that while he was in the Wrightsville jail only a steel wall separated him from Tanner and Rawlings and that he heard Tanner tell Rawlings that "he wasn't doing what he promised to do" and that Rawlings replied: "The insurance money is all tied up in the courts and when he got that straight he would fulfill his promise."

"Tanner said," Hewitt testified, "that Noah Covington must have seen the shooting of Tarbutton or he couldn't have told such a straight story about it. Rawlings replied 'No, that his was bought testimony.' Tanner then said that he wished that he had never had anything to do with it."

Hewitt said as he came out of the cell that he saw tears in Tanner's eyes.

Attorney Hardwick put Hewitt through a gruelling cross-examination, but he stuck to his story.

After a recess of 15 minutes, when Hewitt was called from the stand, Attorney Evans, of the defense, moved to rule out testimony of Hewitt as to what Tanner had said in jail to Rawlings, but Judge Camp ruled the evidence admissible.

It was then that Rawlings was called to the stand to make his statement.

The state rested its case at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon.

STATE TREASURER MAY BE ENJOINED

session, but the time required to prepare the necessary statistical data has been such that the bill could not be introduced early enough for it to be put on its passage. Such a bill was introduced in the senate a few days ago and was reported favorably by the finance committee, but it is now too late for either senate or house to pass upon before adjournment next Saturday night.

Mr. Twitty, using his home county, Screven, and Emanuel county as typical examples to show the "injustice" of the present law distributing these funds, points out that although Screven is the larger county of the two, Emanuel has 109.3 miles of state-aid roads to only 30.3 miles in Screven county. Thus, although the public road mileage of the two counties is approximately the same, Emanuel last year received $21,429.80 of the gasoline tax money, whereas Screven got only $5,933.64. This, he added, means that Emanuel gets $35.72 for each mile of her public roads, while Screven gets only $10.41. And there are counties, he added, getting as much as $50 per mile.

The reason for the wide discrepancy, says Mr. Twitty, is the fact that the state aid road system runs from county seat to county seat. He has no criticism of this system, merely objecting to its use as a measuring rod for the money the different counties receive for the public roads.

"Injustice Explained."

"Thus," he pointed out, "if a border county, for instance, is bounded by only two other counties, it has only two state aid roads running from its county seat to the county line. This is true of several counties. But other counties—Emanual for one—are bounded by ten other counties, thus giving them 10 state-aid roads radiating from their county seat.

"This results in the county with the greatest amount of state aid mileage getting the most money, whereas equity would really give it the least amount, because the very fact that there are many state aid roads in the county makes the necessity for public roads paving less."

Mr. Twitty referred also to Bryan county, one of the smallest counties by population, but which, because of its geographical position with many other counties touching its borders, gets $10,536.49 of the gasoline tax money. "And Bryan has only approximately 225 miles of public roads," he added.

Mr. Twitty is a public accountant and statistician, as well as treasurer of this county. He was sent to Atlanta to gather statistics in regard to distribution of this tax money by the Screven county board of commissioners of roads and revenues.

Mr. Twitty is a brother of Peter S. Twitty, state game and fish commissioner.

NEGRO IS INJURED WHEN HIT BY AUTO

Robert McGee, negro, of 251 Butler street, suffered bruises and lacerations about the body Thursday night when he was knocked down by an automobile driven by W. L. Cain of 1295 Peachtree street. The accident occurred at the corner of East Harris and Butler streets.

Mr. Cain stopped his car immediately, picked up the negro and carried him to Grady hospital where medical aid was rendered. The negro was then allowed to go home. Call Officers Chewning and Lee, who investigated made no case, stating that the accident was unavoidable.

Piles Go Quick
Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Jacobs' drug store today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.—(adv).

FOUR PROBES BEGUN IN SHIP DISASTER

Fearing that the Mackinac was so badly damaged that she would sink, he sent the pilot to the hurricane deck to determine the direction of land.

Guided by the pilot's directions, he said, he blindly turned the Mackinac towards shore and her momentum carried her up on the beach. The next few minutes were filled with agonized activity as he and members of the crew strove to avert panic among the passengers. The swift arrival of launches from navy vessels nearby prevented the badly injured from becoming panic stricken, it was believed.

While a few leaped overboard, most of them remained on the ship until the launches could carry them to the naval hospital.

The first heat wave of the summer came in June, when the thermometer went to 97 degrees. In July, the highest temperature ever recorded here was run up at 101.2 degrees at the peak of a heat wave, and the two arid spells of August have given Atlanta a supply of hot waves far out of proportion to the city's average.

In addition to showing a heavy increase in temperature, the present summer has been marked by a phenomenal lack of precipitation.

26-YEAR RECORD BROKEN AT MACON.

Macon, Ga., August 20.—The hottest weather ever known in the 26-year history of the local weather bureau, 105 degrees, was recorded at 3:40 o'clock this afternoon.

107 DEGREES AT GRIFFIN.

Griffin, Ga., August 20. — The weather bureau reported a maximum temperature of 107 degrees this afternoon, the hottest on record here.

HOTTEST ON RECORD AT AUGUSTA.

Augusta, Ga., August 20.—The hottest weather ever recorded by the local weather bureau here since 1878 was that of today when the thermometer climbed to 106 degrees.

ABNORMAL TEMPERATURES REPORTED OVER SOUTH.

Washington, August 20.—(AP)—Abnormally warm weather which prevailed in the Southern states today sent the temperatures to 104 degrees at Macon, Ga., and Charlotte, N. C., the highest ever recorded in those cities, the United States weather bureau's report of conditions said tonight.

Augusta, Ga., experienced its hottest August day on record with 106 degrees, while temperatures of 100 degrees and more were reported by a number of places. They included: Birmingham, 102, and Atlanta, Little Rock, Memphis, New Orleans, Vicksburg and San Antonio with 100 degrees each.

Showers are predicted generally in the South Atlantic, East Gulf states and Tennessee for tomorrow.

NEW HIGH LEVEL AT COLUMBUS.

Columbus, Ga., August 20.—The mercury reached a new high level today by registering 102. A shower this afternoon cooled the atmosphere.

NEW ORLEANS HAS HOTTEST DAY OF YEAR.

New Orleans, August 20.—(AP)—Exceeding the year's previous hottest day by three degrees, the temperature in New Orleans mounted to 100 today. The previous high mark was 97 in July.

These Folks Just Laugh At Hot Weather

Tiredness Is a Joke—Fatigue Is Unknown—While Energy, Strength and Vitality Go Above Par.

The men and women, boys and girls who just laugh at sultry weather and have loads of ambition and endurance are the ones that take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets during the summer months.

Every schoolboy as well as every grandmother knows that Cod Liver Oil is a great strength creator and body builder—the best on earth.

But they won't take the nasty tasting, horrible smelling, stomach upsetting oil and who can blame them?

And thanks to science—they don't have to—for now at any drug store in America you can get 60 McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets for 60 cents and before you have taken one box you will know why all the Doctors praise Cod Liver Oil and tell you that it is chock full of vitamines that build you up, make you strong and wonderfully aid digestion.

If you want to feel fit and fine during the hot weather put your faith in McCoy's—the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablets—as easy to take as candy—and money back if they don't help you.

Ask Jacobs' Pharmacy or any real druggist about them.

Mrs. Luther Dorn, of Clarks Hill, S. C., writes:

Senate Restores $100,000 To Market Bureau Fund; Ennis Votes To Break Tie

Senate President Declares House Sought To 'Bully' Senate Into Cutting Out Sum.

Called upon twice during Thursday's session of the senate, President Howard Ennis each time cast his vote in favor of increasing the house appropriation of $50,000 for the bureau of markets to $100,000 and expressed the belief that the house was trying to "bully" the senate into leaving the appropriation as cut in the lower body.

Thursday morning the amended bill providing $100,000 for the bureau of markets reached a tie vote of 23 to 23 on roll call, President Ennis breaking the deadlock by casting his vote in favor of the amended measure.

During the afternoon session Senator Perkins moved for a reconsideration of the measure, this resulting in a vote of 24 to 24, President Ennis, again voting to break the deadlock, cast his vote against reconsideration.

"Action in the house," said President Ennis, referring to reports that the house was tabling senate measures signed by those senators who had voted to increase the appropriation, "has no purpose on earth but to intimidate the senate. I shall vote against reconsideration."

Senators Differ.

Senators Williams and Carlisle also spoke against reconsideration. Senator Hutchinson, fighting for reconsideration, declared he had attempted to amend the bill at the morning session so that it would provide $75,000.

The senate Thursday also passed the general appropriations bill as amended and it was ordered transmitted immediately to the house for final consideration.

During the morning session the senate voted to restore the salaries of the chief oil inspector of the state, amounting to $3,000 annually, and that of his chief clerk, which is $2,100. These items had been deleted by the house.

The senate agriculture committee referred to a subcommittee the proposal to reduce the number of oil inspectors from 180 to 6. A report was ordered to be made ready today. The subcommittee is composed of Senators De La Perriere, Carlisle and Moye.

Session Warm at Times.

Thursday night's session of the senate was warm for a while, and then lapsed into a period of dullness. Hot fights made on Senator Sapp's bill to require the words "prison made" to be stamped on all prison-made goods in Georgia met defeat, and Senator Williams' bill to authorize the state board of education to develop standards for public school buildings also lost out.

The senate then took up reading of house bills for the first time, and after that recessed for half an hour to give the house a chance to pass bills so they could be transmitted and read in the senate the first time. The senate reconvened but there were no house bill available. After a parliamentary move by Senator Knight to take the floor from Senator Harrell on the juvenile bill, the senate adjourned.

Bill Is Tabled.

Senator Knight's move was to call up the bill by unanimous consent. He then pointed out that Senator Harrell had the floor on this measure, as he previously had engineered a filibuster against the bill, and had had the floor when the senate adjourned. Senator Harrell was not present at the time the bill was called up Thursday night, and so this gave Senator Knight the floor. There were not sufficient members present to give the bill the majority required for passage, and so Senator Knight moved to table the bill ,which was done. The entire move, he explained to newspaper men, was just to show Senator Harrell that he could be out-maneuvered in a parliamentary way, and that he was not present when the bill was brought up again, despite his announcement in the senate that he would stick by the guns until the last shot was fired for or against the bill.

The senate Thursday afternoon voted to reconsider the appropriation for the state board of entomology, and then voted to restore the $10,000 lopped from the house appropriation of $70,000 the previous day, in spite of bitter opposition by President Ennis, who renewed his charges that the board was in league with manufacturers of calcium arsenate to control the sale. The senate also restored the revolving fund feature which had been voted down Wednesday.

Pension Appropriation.

The appropriation of $1,300,000 for pensions was reconsidered also, and an amendment by Senator Harrell, 12th, providing that five years rentals of the W. & A. railroad at $45,000 a month, be added to all pension appropriations for Confederate veterans, was adopted. Senator Harrell cited supreme court decision to the effect that this action would be constitutional.

The bill providing for a cut in oil inspectors from 180 to 6 was called up Thursday night for a second reading, members of the senate seeking to take it from committee read it the second time and then recommit it to the committee. However, as Senator DeLaPerriere, chairman of the subcommittee which has charge of the bill, was absent, and had the bill with him, this move lost.

The senate Thursday afternoon increased the appropriation for the department of revenue from $48,000 to $75,000 a year, with the provision that if a bill already passed by the senate increasing the number of revenue collectors from six to twelve is passed by the house, the raise to $75,000 would become effective.

Deadlock Looms.

Indications of a last minute deadlock between the two houses of the Georgia legislature over the general appropriations bill, with the further possibility of an extra session to pass the bill, grew stronger Thursday.

It was the intention of a strong wing of the upper house, led by Senator Perry T. Knight, sixth, to get the measure up to the point of passage, and then table it, claiming to have the strength to do this. The reason for tabling was that the senate has not had submitted to it a revenue bill sufficient to raise enough money to meet the appropriations already passed. The move failed to materealize because Senator Knight was satisfied with Senator Harrell's amendment which provided for payment of Confederate veterans back pensions out of W. & A. rentals for the next five years.

Unless the desired revenue bill is received in the senate the attempt to table the money bill would be made, Senator Knight warned Representative Fermor Barrett, chairman of the house appropriations committee, Thursday, and almost immediately an effort was made in the house to call up the income tax bill, a reconsideration of which had been voted, but the move lost.

Taking the floor to urge senators to vote down any move toward an extra session, President Ennis, of the senate, Thursday pleaded with members of the upper branch not to support the movement headed by Senator Knight to table the appropriations bill. He urged that they attend all sessions of the body, remaining in session all night, if necessary to clear the calendar.

New Motorist Bill.

A, joint resolution seeking to curb indiscriminate arrest of motorists in Georgia was introduced in the senate Thursday by Senator Cole, 42d; Knox, 3d; Memory, 46th; Luttrell, 25th; McGregor, 15th; Maddox, 26th, and Guess, 34th. The resolution calls on the mayor and chief of police of every town in the state to immediately communicate to the governor the names and addresses of every person arrested and convicted of violations of any anti-speed laws of state, county or municipality.

It was stated that in some towns and villages the police officers have the practice of arresting motorists passing through and fining them whether they have violated the speed laws or not, the officers receiving fees on convicted cases. The resolution will come up today for action.

GUESS APPOINTED JUDGE FOR DECATUR

J. C. Davis, of DeKalb county, said that if the bill could be rushed in the senate, action taken by that body and the bill enacted into law, the governor's appointments would be nullified. However, the governor has veto power over the measure even if it should make its way through the eleventh hour jam in the senate.

Under the terms of the governor's appointment, as ratified by the senate, Mr. Guess and Mr. Phillips will begin their term of office on January 1, 1927, and will serve for four years.

The present judge of the city court of Decatur is Judge W. R. Daley, and Robert C. W. Ramspeck is solicitor. They were appointed by former Governor Thomas W. Hardwick to serve until January 1, 1927.

Mr. Guess is a widely-known attorney and member of the legal firm of Guess & Guess. He has been prominent in civic affairs and has many friends in Atlanta.

Mr. Phillips has practiced law at Lithonia for 15 or 20 years and was postmaster at Lithonia during the Wilson administration.

EXTRA SESSION LOOMS; HOUSES DEADLOCKED

000 to $50,000. Both the oil inspection department and market bureau are part of the agricultural department.

The senate amended the bill Thursday, replacing all these appropriations. Thursday afternoon a motion to reconsider the senate action on the market bureau appropriation was defeated, so that the bill is returned to the house with the amendments restoring the two salary items and the market bureau appropriation of $100,000.

A majority bloc of the house, headed by leaders in the fight on the agricultural department, had earlier signed an agreement that they would vote against all senate bills until the house bill reducing the number of oil inspectors from 186 to 6 is placed on its passage in the senate. This house bill is still in the senate committee, having been referred to a subcommittee with instructions to report back to the main committee Friday morning. Leaders of the controlling bloc in the house interpret this as a delay move.

When these house members heard Thursday afternoon of the senate's action in restoring the disputed items to the general appropriation bill, they immediately put into effect their plans for a legislative blockade. The house had under consideration at the time a senate bill by Dixon, of the 17th, providing that superior courts could renew charters of Georgia corporations as many times as desired, instead of only once as under the court interpretation of the present law.

Mrs. Napier, of Bibb county, rose to explain provisions of the bill. As she was ending her speech Representative Milner, of Dodge, asked if she would object to the bill being tabled until Friday. She said her only desire was to conserve time.

Bill Is Tabled.

Representative Wilhoit, of Warren, immediately moved to table the bill and a roaring chorus of "ayes" made a rising vote on the motion unnecessary.

Late Thursday there was apparently no hope of either house receding from its stand.

Attorney General George M. Napier Thursday afternoon stated that if the session ends without passage of the general appropriations bill an extraordinary session would be absolutely necessary. The constitution provides, he said, that no state money shall be paid without proper appropriation therefor, and the last general appropriation bill—that of 1923—only appropriated for the support of the various state departments and institutions up to December 31, 1925.

Governor Clifford Walker has previously intimated that he did not contemplate calling an extra session to deal with tax reform measures which he sponsored in the assembly, but which now seem doomed to defeat in great part.

Asked regarding the necessity of an extra session if the general appropriation bill did not pass, he merely answered:

"The state government must go on."

This was taken to mean that he recognized the necessity of an extra session to pass the general appropriation bill should it become necessary.

House Holds Long Session.

The house session of Thursday night adjourned shortly before midnight after a long and fruitless fight to secure a quorum, first for passage of a bill to appropriate an additional $2,000 for the veterans' service bureau, and later, to pass on motions to adjourn.

The vote for the bill amending the service bureau act was 102 to 11, the bill failing of passage by lack of the requisite constitutional majority.

When the house adjourned there was one more appropriation bill on the calendar. This, by reason of the fact that Thursday was the last day on which appropriation bills could pass the house in time to secure senate concurrence, automatically killed the bill. It was a measure to give $5,000 additional annual maintenance to the department of agriculture.

Advanced on Calendar.

The house Thursday afternoon devoted its attention to special appropriation bills. These had been originally put on the calendar for Thursday night, but because they must be passed Thursday if at all, the rules committee advanced them to Thursday afternoon in order to insure consideration.

Bills passed Thursday included:

A senate bill to increase the state-aid mileage from 5,500 to 6,300 miles.

A deficiency appropriation of $18,250 for the Georgia Training School for Boys at Milledgeville by vote of 126 to 2.

An appropriation of $15,000 for repairs to the Georgia Academy for the Blind at Macon, 138 to 0.

A house resolution appropriating $75,000, or as much thereof as is needed, to repaint and repair the State Capitol building, 105 to 4.

A $25,000 deficiency appropriation for 1925 for the department of public buildings and grounds, 111 to 7.

An appropriation of $10,000 to pay a debt incurred to complete an academic building at the Third District A. & M. school at Americus, 130 to 1.

A. & M. School Fund.

An appropriation of $15,000 for equipment of buildings, deficiency, etc., for the Twelfth District A. & M. school at Cochran, 125 to 1.

A deficiency appropriation of $350,000 for the Georgia state sanitarium at Milledgeville. The vote was 153 to 3.

A bill increasing the salary of the state veterinarian to $4,000 per annum and providing that he shall hold office during good behavior.

An appropriation of $30,000 to the state sanitarium at Milledgeville to erect a new ice plant and cold storage plant. The vote was 159 to 2.

An appropriation t ocover a deficiency to the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville of $25,000.

An appropriation of $15,000 for a deficiency for the year 1925 at the State College of Agriculture at Athens.

Representative Lindsay, of DeKalb, made an unsuccessful attempt during the afternoon to take from the table a house bill providing for a salary for the attorney general for his services as a member of the workmen's compensation commission. The motion was lost, 31 to 83.

Morning Session.

The morning session was featured by an abortive attempt on the part of income tax adherents to override the rules committee and have the income tax bill placed on the calendar despite its failure to receive the necessary constitutional majority on a vote several days ago. Only 92 votes were mustered to override, whereas 138 is needed to change the calendar submitted by the rules committee during the last fourteen days of the session. Eighty-two voted against overriding.

The motion to place the income tax bill on the day's calendar was made by Howard, of Chattahoochee, who sought to have the substitute income tax measure of Bussey, of Crisp, brought to vote. Lindsay, of DeKalb, also sought to have his search and seizure bill placed on the calendar, which was composed of senate measures, but only 38 members supported his motion.

In rapid order the house disposed of the several senate resolutions. The Thomas E. Watson memorial resolution was adopted 120 to 4. The resolution providing for a memorial to Former Governor and Mrs. Joe Brown was passed 105 to 1.

A bill giving reserve officers the right to hold public office was adopted, 105 to 7.

By vote of 105 to 4, the house passed a senate measure giving companies the right to incorporate in Georgia without setting up a par value for their stock.

Crop Sale Bills Passed.

It also passed, 145 to 13, a senate measure authorizing issuance of bills of sale on crops in advance of the planting season.

By 106 to 0, the resolution setting aside the week of September 21 to commemorate the proposed Woodrow Wilson Memorial college at Valdosta was passed.

The house voted 105 to 1 to pass a resolution authorizing the two state experiment stations to accept funds appropriated to them by congress.

A resolution indorsing the proposal to hold a tobacco exposition in Georgia was passed, 108 to 1.

Through failure to receive the necessary 104 votes, a bill designating National Memorial day and Armistice day as legal holidays was lost. The vote was 101 for to 16 against. Bussey, of Crisp, gave notice that he would ask for reconsideration.

The bill granting public service corporations the right to condemn property for water power developments was passed after a stiff fight, being amended to require the corporations to pay consequential damages, such as good will and sentimental value, on condemned property, in addition to actual inventory value. Dykes, of Dooley; Hamby, of Rabun; Doyal, of Floyd, and others supported the measure, and Smith, of Grady; Beck, of Carroll, and others hotly attacked it. The measure must now be returned to the senate for concurrence in the house amendments.

LANDIS PRAISES WORK OF LEGION

ed up before it is too late and before those who remain become permanently public charges," he asserted.

Following a convention parade of hundreds of legion members and women of the auxiliary, headed by the Sixth cavalry band and the Shanklin-Attaway post drum corps, hundreds of people assembled at Myrtle Hill cemetery where impressive services were held at the grave of Charles Graves, the first Rome boy to give his life in the world war. Judge Landis made the address.

"Fortunate indeed is he who is privileged with even an humble participation in this ceremony," began the distinguished baseball head. "If there be on this earth a place worthy of esteem of man as Holy Ground, this is that spot.

Was Direct Challenge.

"In this environment, in this day of peace, memory recalls that other day of peace of ours when the world was torn with war abroad and when a day came that a challenge to us came from that far shore. It was as if a direct assault was made upon the great fundamentals underlying our governmental system, a direct assault upon the elementaries of our society as we build society in America.

"There was no doubt as to whether or not there would be a response to the challenge, and then there came from every city, state and county the most precious blood of the republic Overnight records totaled nearly five million, gallant gentlemen all, to give their utmost.

"There sleeps here one of that four and one-half million. There came a day in north France, when against the most powerful military adversary we know anything about, the sons of Georgia were thrown. In that organization there was a boy, one of the four and a half million, whose heart responded with eternal thrill in that day and whose gallantry came forward. In this spot rests the sacred ashes of that man.

"The policy for the future of this great republic is the Legion. I give to the memory of this gentleman, emblematic of character with equality and real citizenship. I give my eternal obligation for deeds done and service performed. We give our solemn pledge, binding upon us each to keep faith with this man," Judge Landis concluded.

Election of officers and selection of the next convention city will be features of the concluding session of the convention Friday.

RUPTURE SHIELD EXPERT HERE

E. J. Meinhardi, the well known Expert from Chicago, will personally be at the Ansley Hotel, Atlanta, Ga., on Monday and Tuesday only, Aug. 24th and 25th.

Mr. Meinhardi says "The Vacuum Rupture Shield" will not only hold the Rupture perfectly, but will contract the opening in ten days on the average case—usually giving instantaneous relief withstanding all strain regardless of the size and location of the Rupture.

WARNING: Every ruptured person should be cautioned against wearing trusses with understraps. These trusses usually place the pad on the lump and not on the rupture opening. This often causes strangulation which usually necessitates an immediate surgical operation or results in sudden death. Therefore, do not expose yourself to the danger of wearing old-style trusses with understraps. "The Vacuum Rupture Shield" has no understraps, no straps around the body or legs. It is also perfectly sanitary and practically indestructible, and should be worn while bathing. Mr. Meinhardi will be pleased to demonstrate "The Vacuum Rupture Shield" to all gentlemen who call at this Hotel from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Only gentlemen are invited to call on the above date as special visit will be made here at a later date for women and children.

Notice: Do not write asking to be fitted by mail as this is impossible. Every case must be seen personally. If interested you must call at this hotel on the above date. Business demands prevent stopping at any other city in this section. Home office: 3935 W. North Ave., Chicago, Ill.—(adv.)

SENATORS CONFIRM WALKER APPOINTEES

The following nominations by Governor Walker were confirmed in executive session Thursday afternoon by the state senate:

A. T. Woodward, of Lowndes county, solicitor of Valdosta city court, May 1, 1925, to December 12, 1925.

Miller Bell, of Milledgeville; T. E. Atkinson, of Coweta; Ernest Camp, of Walton county, six years, beginning January 6, 1926; J. B. Hutcheson, of Clayton county, and W. H. Davis, of Burke county, beginning this date to January 6, 1930, members of the board of trustees of the Georgia State College for Women.

L. L. McMullen, of Hart county, member of the board of trustees of the State College of Agriculture, six years, beginning August 14, 1924.

Specially Built Automobile Stores 82 Gallons Liquor

Griffin, Ga., August 20.—(Special.) A man hailing from Alabama and giving his name as James Darnell was arrested Tuesday night near Griffin as a liquor runner and his large car was confiscated. Eight-two gallons of whisky were found in a specially constructed compartment in the rear of the car. He was presumably on his way to Atlanta with his cargo.

The arrest was made by a party headed by Sheriff Stapleton. Darnell was locked in the county jail and will be given a hearing tomorrow.

Mr. F. S. Bright,
Atlanta Dealer,
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Mr. Bright:

Being in the sales end of an organization I fully appreciate what a few remarks from a satisfied customer mean, therefore this letter.

I want to tell you what splendid service I have received from my present OLDSMOBILE COACH--1925 model. I have driven this car 10,125 miles without having a wrench touch my engine and without the slightest trouble of any sort. I drove it over 6,400 miles without evon so much as a puncture. It has never failed to respond instantly regardless of weather conditions. I think such service is worthy of comment on my part when you take into consideration that I travel Georgia and South Carolina, making every town of a thousand population and over, and never stand back on account of weather or road conditions. I am driving my second Model 30, and you may rest assured that my next new car will be an OLDS-OLDSMOBILE.

Such service makes me a booster of the OLDSMOBILE and you may consider me one of your many satisfied customers.

I wish you every success for the coming year.

Respectfully,

W. B. Fulton

VICTOR F. LAWSON.

The death of Victor F. Lawson, editor and publisher of the Chicago Daily News, takes from active newspaper life, even at the ripe age of 75, one of the most virile and useful figures in American journalism. He was one of the fathers of the Associated Press, having demonstrated his faith in cooperative news distribution long before that great worldwide agency was organized. Indeed he was for many years an active partner of Melville E. Stone, who served the Associated Press as an executive for more than a decade.

Perhaps America has not known a more successful publisher than Victor Lawson. He was the originator of the "penny paper," and always made his newspaper strong in its appeal to the home and the fireside. He was independent in politics, fearless and pointed in his editorial policy, an exponent of progress through good morals, and with it all personally modest almost to a peculiarity in personal traits. His philanthropies were extensive, but made quietly and without publicity. He became nationally famous many years ago because of his innovations in the publishing business and the force of his executive ability.

MOST COMMENDABLE.

As an evidence of a spirit of broadness in the legislature that is most commendable, the educational bloc in the house, after fighting valiantly and to the last ditch without success for a one-half cent increase in the gasoline tax, to be applied to urgent school demands, voted almost solidly for the substitute which provided that the additional tax shall be applied to the state road fund. It illustrates an attitude that is worthy, and we refer to it, with congratulations to the members of that bloc for the masterful fight waged, and for the spirit in which defeat was accepted.

The cause of the schools, from the grammar schools to the university system, is so appealing in Georgia—which state is lamentably backward in this respect—that not one word of condemnation can be offered against the members who sought to temporarily divert a part of a gas tax, either the surplus from the inspection tax, or any voted increase, to that cause. And yet fundamentally it is wrong. A sales tax on gasoline is the motorists' investment in the building and maintenance of the highways over which he travels. It should not be considered any other way, and the house acted wisely in so providing. The surplus from the inspection fund should be so employed. Good roads rank second to good schools in a state's development, and in building the foundation upon which the progress and welfare of all the people may be provided.

That fact does not destroy the state's duty and responsibility as to all of its schools. The school system should be closely linked, and it is ridiculous to say a state cannot find a way, without tax burdens of any kind, to provide adequate equipments, expansions and maintenances.

FACTS IN THE CASE.

Captain W. C. Roper, of Atlanta, is one of a multitude of Georgia citizens who believes that the state should permanently pave her system of highways at the earliest possible moment; and that to do so the state should capitalize her credit, pay the obligations back from the same sources that now go toward highway building by the slow process of "pay-as-you-go," and thereby give the citizens who now live the benefit of such a great development and of the enhanced land values and quickened economic life that such progress would ensure.

In order to satisfy himself as to some of the objections presented and untruths circulated about taxes in North Carolina, which is making such phenomenal headway in this respect, Captain Roper wrote first to Former Secretary of Navy Josephus Daniels, editor of The News and Observer at Raleigh. In replying, Mr. Daniels said:

"The entire cost of construction and maintenance of the state highways is borne by bonds issued for that purpose and by a tax on gasoline and automobile licenses. Taxes have not been increased on property of any kind for the construction and maintenance of these state highways. We collect about $10,000,000 annually gasoline tax and licenses on automobiles. This is sufficient for the improvement of the highways, the payment of interest on the bonds, and provides a sinking fund which will enable us to retire the bonds in less than 30 years. There is no opposition to the policy being pursued by the state highway commission, but great enthusiasm and confidence in towns and country."

Captain Roper wrote also to Chairman Page, of the North Carolina Highway commission, who replied:

"I think it is unfortunate, but it is true, nevertheless, that wherever you find propaganda against road development, it invariably diverges from the truth. For instance, your statement that some people in Georgia are saying that road development in North Carolina has increased taxes, when, as a matter of fact, the highway system of North Carolina is financed solely by license taxes on automobiles and a tax of four cents on gasoline, sold and used in the automobiles. I estimate that wherever we have built improved roads, that the property values within two miles of the road have increased in value much more than the cost of the road itself. In some instances this increase in value has been phenomenal, and the land immediately alongside the road has increased in value much more than twice the cost of the pavement."

Without discussing the merits or demerits of any of the various highway plans before the Georgia assembly now drawing to a close, it is refreshing to have such direct, definite testimony in rebuttal of much of the propaganda circulated around the state house against road development.

IMPORTANT MEASURE.

Senate bill No. 46 was passed by a vote of 27 to 7 July 16. It has been read the second time in the house with a favorable report from the highway committee that it pass by substitute.

All business interests concerned, the secretary of state and all those who favored the original Guess senate bill are now unanimous for the passage of this bill. It can be passed today and transmitted at once to the senate for concurrence.

This is a vital bill that will stop, to a very great degree, the theft of automobiles, and it also makes needed provisions for better service in the motor vehicle department.

The bill provides no costs or fees of any kind.

Failure to pass this automobile title registration bill will be a great misfortune to the entire state.

INTREPID M'MILLAN.

Although the press dispatches announce the abandonment for this season of the MacMillan expedition in its quest of an arctic continent by airplane explorations, the heroism of the explorer and his aviators has already been definitely established.

Flying north of the Etah anchorage they established two intermediate bases on the route to Cape Thomas Hubbard, and were in the process of establishing the third, from which the flights over the unmapped Arctic were to be made, when weather conditions, from which there can be no improvement this year, forced the abandonment for the time.

Says the New York World:

"They have battled with dense fogs; with sub-zero temperatures; with 50-mile gales driving snow before them; with peaks far higher than they anticipated, wrapped in clouds that forbade passage; with waves that have partially wrecked one plane. MacMillan has hinted what would happen if their heavily-laden craft were forced to descend on mountainous ground. One intermediate base became untenable overnight because tide and wind filled the water with ice."

The expedition has already demonstrated the use of the airplane for such explorations—just as did the unsuccessful Norwegian explorer who preceded him. It has also made valuable geographical and scientific researches. It has found high, uncharted mountains in Grinnell Land, and covered in a short time fords, lakes, jagged valleys, etc., impossible of negotiation by dog teams.

In Far North explorations the airship has found a definite and an invaluable place. The intrepid American, acting on his own good judgment, in abandoning the final investigations for this year, undoubtedly acted with wisdom, and his progress this year will aid him materially in completing the journey next year.

Leave it to California publicity experts, every earthquake unearths gold mines there.

Hurl 'em 'gainst the glowing bars,—
Stir—stir the blaze!

When you take a holiday
(Stir—stir the blaze!)
And let Winter have his way,
(Stir—stir the blaze!)
Then at icy skies we scowl,
Growl like hungry tigers growl,
Beat the blizzard-winds that howl,—
(Stir—stir the blaze!)

That's exactly what you're for—
There, to stir the blaze;
Though we rave and though we roar,
Still you stir the blaze.
Patience we can never learn;
Raising Cain at every turn!
You have worlds and folks to burn,—
Stir—stir the blaze!

This new world is a howdydo—
Rush, and crush, and clatter,
But, praise the Lord, we'll all pull through,
And if we don't—no matter!

Colonel Coolidge Kisses President Fond Farewell

Northampton, Mass., August 20.—President Coolidge came back Thursday night to the little $32.50-a-month house in which he lived while getting his start in law and politics, on one of the most venerable errands known to married life. He is visiting his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elmira Goodhue. With Mrs. Coolidge, the president drove down dusty Vermont and Massachusetts roads into Northampton, which straightaway demonstrated that it was mighty proud of Calvin.

Cheers and handclaps, a reception committee headed by Mayor William Feiker and all the other trimmings a small city can offer to its favorite son were there when the begrimed automobiles pulled up in front of the little duplex house.

Mayor Feiker made a speech, but the president was tired. He went inside immediately, promising to come out after supper to mingle with the old folks.

The leave-taking from Plymouth was typically Coolidgean. Colonel John Coolidge, the president's father, and host, kissed his son and daughter-in-law tenderly on the cheeks. The last good-bye in the little mountain village was a silent one.

A hundred yards down the road, the big presidential limousine swung off down a lane to the little hillside cemetery where Calvin, Jr., is buried. Secret service men and newspapermen stayed back while Mr. and Mrs Coolidge laid a bunch of flowers on the grave of their son.

The party will leave about noon Friday for the summer white house at Swampscott.

Commends Editorial On Upshaw's Plan

Editor Constitution: Your fine and timely, yet kindly, criticism of "the wild and visionary suggestion" of William D. Upshaw made on Sunday from the Buckhead Baptist pulpit is worth more than a passing notice. The Christian pulpit is not the place for political propaganda. We all know that Mr. Upshaw is at times given to the use of floral adjectives and political plunges and the quotations you gave of his speech on Sunday are characteristic samples. But I am not so concerned as to the "visionary suggestions" of Mr. Upshaw as I am in the wise utterances of the editor which follow:

"Prohibition in this country is not only a fundamental law a forward step in our national life, but there is no organized effort being made or anticipated, to repeal it. There should be no such step, and there is not any substantial group of citizens in this country in favor of its repeal at this time, or at any future time. There undoubtedly would be, if so-called 'dry leaders' continue suggesting that the old parties be eliminated and a nation-wide repeal party be organized. What we need to do is to stop trying to make a political issue out of a law of the constitution, and bend our efforts to a better enforcement of the law, by creating greater respect for it, and building up public sentiment not only against bootlegging, but drinking among young and old; in public, and private: in homes and everywhere. We need to deal more with the moral aspects as law-abiding citizens and less with political fanaticism."

I have taken the liberty of quoting largely from the editor, for I want everyone interested in this present and vital issue to re-read what he says.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

New York, August 20.—On the road to Jamaica back a little from the beaten path stands what appears to be an immense ruin. The front lawn is grown thick with weeds and from the moss in the adjacent grounds you can kick loose all kinds of building material. There is a melancholy gloom about the whole place, an atmosphere of depression, a fit rendezvous place for a gang of pirates or their latter-day descendants, the bootleggers.

The story is told that the building was started by a young merchant 60 years ago and th t was to be the dream-castle of himself and his bride when she should arrive from Spain. Though the girl sailed from home, according to reports from her relatives, she never arrived in America. Her distracted lover has searched up and down the world for her, but has never found her.

He is now an old man, bent and shaky. But he drives out to the ruins once every week and walks amid the crumbling ruins and the chaotic garden.

* * * *

"Artists and Models" is responsible for the introduction of society's latest fad—that of fencing. Two of the charming young performers in the show put on a rhythmic fencing act and they are being imitated by rich and poor alike. Fencing masters are beginning to put out their shingles and what with a couple of hundred ex-imperial Russian army officers in our midst we ought to produce a gorgeous d'Artagnan one of these days.

* * * *

The list of missing persons, always long in the summer time, eclipses all previous records in New York. Not a day passes but the papers report some one being sought by the police. The casual reader might not pay much attention to such news, but each case represents a world of misery and woe of frantic and crazed mothers and sorrowing relatives.

The usual police explanation is that the missing person in question has left for a life of pleasure and joy. But investigation would prove that pleasure-bent is not the motive at all. The neurotic strain on big city dwellers is growing each day in intensity. Some time or other it is bound to make something snap in the minds of sentimental and emotional souls. Half a dozen people have told me that sometimes they feel a positive urge to disappear and fade out of the picture altogether.

* * * *

Broadway at midnight became impassable. Even the cops could not hold back the sweltering, squirming pushing multitudes Limousines with blase looking men in evening clothes and haughty damsels with glittering diamonds glided by. Reminiscent of the old days at Schonbrun when Franz Joseph gave a ball or Berlin when the great Wilhelm staged an affair.

What was it all about? Charlie Chaplin was to attend the Strand in person on the occasion of the premiere of his latest picture. Finally a shout went up. The mob surged wildly forward, policemen lost their balance, women screamed, the cry of "Charlie" rent the air. I caught a glimpse of that individual, rosy and with glittering eyes reclining on the cushions.

Bue he didn't even smile . . . yet even the Czar did that.

Gandhi.

As the political tension over home rule grows in Bengal and the Punjab region of the huge Indian ire. Gandhi again sends out his warning to the people to refrain from all acts of violence and bloodshed. He says he still distrusts the multitudes and fears "mobocracy" and the unbridled passions of the populace. With this new message Gandhi resumes his place at the head of the non-cooperationist movement in India, a task that was interrupted when he went to jail. He asks the British government to be fair and to treat with India in an open and free manner. As ever, his tone is gentle and courteous, even when dealing with his adversaries. But everything he says is clear with an immaculate sincerity. Every departure from truth, no matter how trifling, is intolerable to him; diplomacy is therefore unknown to him. Still, this man, whose influence over India is growing each day, is not a demagogue, a flamboyant or fanatic leader. He is not even a passionate orator. His manner is calm and serene and he appeals particularly to the intelligence. "But," said Joseph Duke, "his serenity places the subject he discusses in the clearest light. The inflexions of his voice are not varied, but they are intensely sincere. He never makes any gestures with his arms, in fact he rarely even moves a finger. But his luminous words expressed in terse, concise sentences, carry conviction. He never abandons a subject before he feels he has made it perfectly clear." This is the man who has stirred three hundred million people to revolt and who has introduced into politics the strongest religious impetus of the last two thousand years.

Mouse Tower.

What remained of the old Mouse Tower, on the island in the Rhine, before the city of Bingen collapsed entirely a few weeks ago, is not likely to be rebuilt. The tower got its name from a curious, almost legendary incident in history. Thomas Coryate, an Englishman, visiting there in the sixteenth century, says that it was in the year 914 when an "exceeding famine" struck the town during the reign of Hatto, prince archbishop of Maintz. This bishop gathered a crowd of people who were clamoring for bread in a barn and burned them alive, saying: "These poor folk are just like mice that are good for nothing but to devour corn." The historian goes on: "But Almighty God, the just revenger of the poor folks' quarrel, did not long suffer this heinous tyranny, this most detestable fact unpunished. For he mustered up an army of mice against the archbishop, who afflicted him night and day so that he could not take his rest." The bishop moved to the tower in the middle of the river. "But," wrote Coryate, "the innumerable troupes of mice continually chased him very eagerly, and swumme unto him upon the top of the water to execute the just judgment of God, and so at last he was most miserably devoured by those silly creatures who pursued him with such bitter hostility that it is recorded they scraped and gnawed off his very name from the walls and tapestry wherein it was written. Wherefor the tower in which he was eaten up by the mice is shewed to this day for a perpetual monument to all succeeding ages of the barbarous and inhuman tyranny of that impious prelate, being situated in a little greene iland in the midst of the Rheene, neere to this town of Bing and is commonly called in the German tongue Mowse Turn."

Catalonia's Voice.

The Catalan Courrier, published in Paris by the Ibanez-Unamuno libertarian group, publishes the following item: "Last August, Alphonso XIII said to one of his sportsmen friends whom he met at a northern watering resort: 'I knew that Primo de Rivera was a nonentity, but I would never have believed he was so stupid.' At the same time Primo de Rivera said in private to one of his confidantes: 'I know that the king is doing all he can to make a fool out of me. But we shall see.' Primo de Rivera tackles political questions with an audacity that is full of ingenuity. In one of his speeches he proclaimed: 'To govern is an easy matter.' In the course of an address before a gathering of peasants he saw no other solution for Spain's agricultural problems than to encourage rabbit and poultry farms. And speaking in Xerez, his native city, famous both for its breed of horses and its wine, the Dictator sprung the following anecdote: 'One day the king said to me: 'You are a good governor. Where did you learn the art?' 'Sire,' I said, 'I learned it at the gambling casino at Xerez.' To which the king replied: 'It's plain enough that you have had a great deal of contact with the common people.'" And the Catalan Courrier continues: "His (Primo's) personal vanity is a magnificent combination with his incredible lightheadedness. His natural faults are not in the least corrected by his culture, for the simple reason that he does not possess any. His moral code does not go beyond the prejudices that are current in the army. He does not know anything about the real qualities of his country and he has not a single opinion on them. Neither does he know anything about the value and prestige of the most eminent citizens of Spain."

Holland Follows Denmark.

Holland is to follow Denmark in complete disestablishment of her army, if the measure proposed by the social democrats, certain liberals and even some conservatives should carry in the second chamber at The Hague. The proponents of the bill say that Holland could never resist a big power successfully anyway, so that the up keep of any army is a useless procedure. The opponents point to the efficiency of the Belgian forces and remind the country that the Belgians have never ceased to dream of adding the Dutch territory south of the Scheldt and Dutch Limburg to their kingdom. War between the north and south Netherlands, Holland and Belgium is unthinkable. If a plebiscite were taken in these disputed sections, the inhabitants would vote overwhelmingly to continue the Dutch connections. Especially in Zeeland, Flanders, where the motto: "God Holland and Orange," is no idle phrase among the Calvinist population.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

WE SHOULD SNEER.

"One subject I have never read about in your column," writes a correspondent, "is convulsions or spasms, or whatever other name you have for them, that children have. You don't deny that children have convulsions, do you? Then will you kindly, or in a sneering way, tell us your ideas about them?" And the correspondent goes on to describe a case, what this and that doctor said or did or didn't do at one time or another, and so on.

I've always had in the back of my mind a fancy to buy a little farm away out beyond anywhere, to retire and live the simple life after I've lost my job. But now I can see I'll have to get a rather large farm, one with a 30 acre field in one corner, to which I can repair at intervals and have a good sneer, far enough from simple folks, you see, so that they won't think I am sneering at them. There will probably be plenty of things and conditions left to sneer at, enough to keep my sneering schedule filled up for as long as I can stand the simple life. I suppose I might erect a sign beside the road warning passing strangers that the frightful spectacle in yonder field is just old Dr. Brady doing his regular morning sneer, kindly refrain from disturbing or molesting the doctor with irritating remarks until he recovers from the seizure.

Children sometimes have convulsions, fits or spasms. I make this admission freely and by my own will, without influence or duress from any quarter. I go even further and admit that babies and older children sometimes have worms. Nay or yea, as you please. I'm willing to concede that once in a great while a child who has worms has spasms, but the coincidence is insignificant, because nine children out of 10 who have worms never have any spasms, and nine out of 10 who have spasms have no worms.

Speaking of worms—and leaving the sneer about spasms for another day—a recent acquisition of the menagerie is a pup as Irish as Paddy's pig, but named Antonio. This Antonio had scarcely arrived at his new home when an amateur dog expert looked at his gums, remarked that they looked pale and opined the pup had worms and even dispensed the medicaments for the treatment of the alleged infestation. But the pup seemed to keep pretty well, thank you, without the treatment. After a time the pup languishd, and the veterinary physician was consulted. The physician determined by scientific examination that the pup had no worms, but only a distemper which cleared up in two days. Although I know nothing about dogs, the alacrity with which the amateur dog expert diagnosed "worms" by a mere peep at the pup's gums struck me as remarkably like the ubiquitous neighborhood gossip's diagnosis of "worms" in ailing children—only we were so fond of the pup that we hesitated to inflict the alleged worm medicine on him. The neighborhood gossip can spot "worms" in an ailing child by a mere glance at the face or a sniff of the breath. The facial sign which leads to so much cruel mistreatment of ailing children is particularly "white lines beside the mouth," especially with flushed cheeks and bright eyes and any restless twitching. Or add a peculiar heavy or sweetish odor on the breath, and you have practically condemned the child to such maltreatment.

Most of the alleged worm medicines urged by the neighborhood gossip are harmless enough to the worms and the child too, and sometimes the remedy is in reality nothing but a physic and an alkali which may be even beneficial to the child, but the great evil of this practice of amateur diagnosis is that it encourages delay in the proper treatment of the sick child, and that is a crime in which no respectable parent can be accessory.

HOLDER ABSOLVED IN HIGHWAY PROBE

some months ago by The Constitution.

The findings of the majority report were in line with recommendations of Chairman Holder while on the stand in the recent highway probe, who urged that the board be made supreme authority and the chairman in the absence of the full board. He also asked that W. R. Neel, state engineer, be stripped of his power.

Holder Criticized.

The minority report of Senator Hutcheson includes many of the recommendations of the majority report and in addition compliments the manner in which W. T. Anderson, of Macon, former board member, and others responded to the committee's request for testimony. Others who declined to appear were severely scored, though their names were not mentioned.

Senator Hutcheson expressed dissatisfaction at advances in salary made to Chairman Holder, saying that criticism forced him to repay them. He also charged that the chairman had knowledge of pay roll padding by Bereth. He referred to the number of automobiles used by the department and analyzed a number of contracts it had awarded.

The probe of the highway department was directly the outgrowth of charges prefferred to Governor Clifford Walker by Mr. Anderson while he was a board member. The Macon man charged many irregularities and "temperamental unfitness" to Chairman Holder. The senate took official cognizance of these charges, and its special committee conducted an investigation lasting for two weeks, during which many witnesses testified and the entire matter was threshed out in public.

Text of the Report.

The report of Senators Dixon, Collier, Andrews and Carswell follows:

To the Senate of Georgia: Your special committee appointed under resolution of the senate to investigate certain charges against the highway department, begs leave to submit the following report:

Your committee heard without limit all parties desiring to be heard. We have gone as fully into the investigation as the power given us would permit.

'We do not feel that it is necessary for us to go into the report known as the "Dawson audit" as the same has all been adjudicated by the supreme court, and for the further reason that those parties making affidavits referred to in said "Dawson audit" either refused to appear for examination or testified before the committee that they had no personal knowledge of the statements contained in their said affidavits.

The highway board and the employees of the highway department cooperated fully with the committee in its investigation. Your committee finds that no illegal or wrongful use of the state's money by any one has developed, save only the case of one Bereth, a minor employee of the department, who has been convicted of padding certain payrolls and is now serving sentence for his crime.

Your committee is of the opinion that economy can be practiced by use of less expensive cars by the department, and we urge the state highway board to eliminate such number of cars as the proper conduct and efficiency of said department will permit.

Small Losses Cited.

With reference to certain bids for the purchase of cars, contracts for road-building, etc., your committee finds that there may have been some technical irregularities with reference to same, but that the loss to the state, if any, was comparatively small, and we firmly believe that there will be nothing to merit the criticism of the department along this line, as the board is now constituted.

Your committee believes that the state highway board should be the supreme and controlling authority over the whole department, and that all other officers and employees should be under the board's direction at all times; this to include the accounting, engineering, mechanical and all other departments, as well as the employment and discharge of all connected with same.

The methods of bookkeeping and accounting are antiquated and not proper for a department doing and handling seven million dollar business per annum. We recommend that a modern system of accounting especially suited to the needs of the state highway department be installed at once. We further recommend that the board employ high-class bookkeepers of wide experience and of unquestioned integrity.

We further recommend that all expense accounts of all officers and employees be itemized.

We find that the offices at East Point shops do not have and can not show that they have ever taken an annual inventory, and we recommend that the board order one taken with the state auditor as supervisor. We also find that the card index system used in the stock room is not properly kept—the withdrawal of supplies from time to time not showing thereon; that said inventory be made according to instructions of the state auditor and at such times as he may request.

Continuous Audit Favored.

We recommend that the state auditor employ a continuous auditor to check up the spending of all moneys by any employee or officer of the department, also the auditing of all contracts let by the highway department.

We further recommend that all bids be filed only with the chairman of the highway board and that the highway board move its executive offices to East Point, and be connected with the main offices. This board would function much better away from the state house, and we further recommend that the chairman employ a high-class man as a private and confidential executive assistant at such salary as will secure a first-class man of ability.

We are firmly of the opinion that the state highway board as now constituted will cooperate harmoniously and for the betterment of good roads in Georgia.

We further recommend that the board at the earliest possible time sell the Elberton rock quarry, as it is apparent that the same is being operated at a loss.

With reference to the operation of a cafeteria and other minor economies which were suggested during the investigaton, we submit that this committee has the utmost confidence in the ability and the integrity of the present board in the disposition of these matters to the best interests of the state, and that same be closed unless it can be operated without a loss.

We recommend that the publication of the highway magazine be put on a paying basis or discontinued.

We deplore the bickering and dissensions of the past, but feel sure that the board as now constituted will proceed to do all things necessary for the proper advancement of the program for good roads in Georgia which is of such vital importance to our people.

Minority Report.

To the Senate of Georgia:

As chairman of the special committee appointed by the senate to investigate certain changes against the state highway department, I feel constrained to file this minority report, for the reasons which will hereafter appear.

The committee heard each and every complaint brought to its attention by various parties, giving each complainant an opportunity to voluntarily appear and be sworn in the matters about which he has made complaint. On account of the committee having no power and authority to subpoena witnesses and cause the production of books and papers, a number of witnesses failed to appear and be sworn. Various reasons are given for not voluntarily appearing, such as "I am in the contracting business and would not want to testify against the highway department" and "I do not care to be a voluntary witness against any one for fear that my appearance would be misunderstood by the public," and one reported complaint said that he had no complaint to make against the highway department, knowing of no irregularities therein. However, the officials of the highway department promptly informed the committee that all books, papers, documents, employees and highway officials were at our service and ready to render the committee all aid and assistance within their knowledge. The retiring member, Mr. W. T. Anderson, upon being asked to attend as a witness and to furnish the committee any information he had touching the matters, promptly complied and gave the committee all assistance within his knowledge.

The chairman, John N. Holder, and the state highway engineer, W. R. Neel, joined in having the attendance of officials and employees as witnesses before the committee. His excellency, Governor Walker, upon being asked for all the information in his hands and such assistance as he could give in the investigation, promptly rendered to the committee a complete statement and delivered a complete file of documents in his hands, touching the matters involved. The state auditor, S. J. Slate, at the request of the committee, rendered all aid and assistance asked for, and rendered valuable aid in explaining his report and the technical terms, and saving time of the committee in compiling parts of his audit more concisely for the committee.

Governor's Charges.

Touching the removal by the governor of John N. Holder, chairman of the highway board, the governor furnished the committee the following data and report:

Original affidavit of F. J. Stukes, M. S. Franks, W. R. Neel and H. G. Spahr, set out in full in "Report of special audit of the state highway department by C. R. Dawson & Co., a copy of which each senator has in his desk and mailed to him before the convening of this session of the general assembly.

The committe asked each party who made the above affidavits to appear and permit the committee to examine him on the matters contained in the affidavit. Each witness appeared voluntarily except C. R. Dawson and H. G. Spahr. C. R. Dawson failed to appear and gave no reason for such refusal. H. G. Spahr refused to appear and gave as his reason that he is not now with the highway department, that he is in the culvert business with a concern who furnishes material and manufacturing material used by the highway department, and therefore cannot afford to testify against the department for fear of loss of business.

1. That employees of the department for the years 1923 anud 1924 were advanced money not earned, as embodied in the audit of the state auditor.

"Irregularities" Listed.

2. That the chairman had advanced to him out of the money of the department various sums, as follows:

August 16, 1922, $500, repaid by him December 27, 1922; August 8, 1923, $400, repaid by him August 17, 1923; August 14, 1923, $600, repaid by him September and November, 1923; August 15, 1924, $1,200, repaid by him October 7, 1924.

That the amount of $1,200 was borrowed by the chairman from the Gorgia Highway magazine and used by him in paying expenses of carrying on a campaign in the interest of gas tax legislation, and upon criticism made Mr. Holder repaid the above sums so borrowed.

I find that the following charges are made in the governor's charge but are disputed:

1. That money of the highway department was used by the chairman in lobbying at the 1922 session of the general assembly, at the session of 1923 and the session of 1924.

2. That the chairman had full knowledge of the payroll padding by one Bereth from December 19, 1924, and retained the said Bereth in the employment of the department until the 17th day of February, 1925, the day before the facts were disclosed by publication of the same by The Atlanta Constitution.

I find that during the year 1924 over $69,000 was used by the highway department for passenger automobiles for the employees of the department, and that there are now in use in the department over 150 of such cars; and that employees of the department have pleasure trips with such cars as far as Birmingham, Ala., and Florida.

I find that the salaries paid the employees of the department are rather high, and that subsistence and expense accounts paid are very high, and I rcommend that all expense accounts should be itemized and sworn to before payment.

Lump sum advances having been made for expenses without authority of law, and other sums of money having been illegally received and retained by various employees of the department, I recommend that the attorney for the highway department or such other state officer as may be directed institute proceedings in court to collect all such claims against various parties as shown by the audit of the highway department as published by the state auditor. This is urged for the reason that an acquiescence in such illegal transactions would tend to condone and encourage such conduct among these and perhaps other officials.

I further find that one Finn-Weddington Motor company, of Newnan, Ga., was paid by Jones Motor company, of Macon, Ga., the sum of $500 in consideration of the fact that the said Finn Motor company made the contention against the Jones Motor company to the highway department that the said Finn Motor company's bid for supplying approximately sevently trucks to the highway department was a lower bid than the Jones Motor company. I further find in this transacton that Redwine Motor company, of Fayetteville, Ga., had on file a lower bid for such contract than the Jones Motor company, according to the specifications for bids.

Partnership Alleged.

I find that on a project in Polk county, Georgia, one Simonton, a division engineer of the highway department, was a partner of the contractor who secured the contract on competitive bidding, and that said division engineer aided the successful bidder in submitting his bid. I find that the highway department on having this matter brought to its attention by Polk county authorities and after a hearing revoked the contract under the successful bidder and the said Simonton resigned the said office with the department.

I find that the department is extravagant in supplying for its employees the number of automobiles and the grade and character of automobiles thus furnished. No employee should be furnished for his use an automobile unless he has constant and continuous use for same; and then a moderately priced car should be furnished each employee. Much could be saved in adopting this regulation.

I find that expensive trips to California and Chicago by from five to six employees when from one to two would serve the same purpose, tend to encourage extravagance and waste in the department and is in itself extravagant.

I suggest and recommend that advertisement for bids for material and construction of projects be more explicit, more definite and more certain. There should be no question as to what bidders are expected to submit their bids for, and as much competition as possible should be encouraged in all lettings.

List of Recommendations.

I recommend that all bids should be filed with the chairman of the highway board.

I recommend that subsistence charges be not allowed for any employees of the department or the chairman in the county of Fulton or city of Atlanta; and that other members of the board except the chairman be allowed their subsistence charges while in Atlanta on official business of the department.

I recommend that the system of advances on salaries be absolutely discontinued.

I recommend that the quarry at Oglesby be disposed of at the best possible price and that the state retire from the operation of this quarry.

I recommend that the cafeteria at East Point be put on a paying business or discontinued.

I recommend that bonds as suggested by the state auditor be required of all engineers.

I recommend that banks be required to pay interest on balances and that banks be required to file bonds to cover their average balances.

The accounting system of the highway department needs thorough reorganization. I believe that the highway department has grown to such an extent that the present system of accounting is inadequate. I recommend that the state auditor prepare a system of accounting for the highway department carrying out many suggestions made in his report: that a complete physical inventory of all property of the highway department be made; that the books be closed, balances set up; that the accounts be cumulative. All books should be closed at the end of the year and balances brought forward. The books should be closed twice a year, on December 31 and June 30, so that comparisons can be made with federal audits.

I recommend that the accounting division of the highway department be under direct control of the board and should make its reports to it. Competent accountants should be employed and every effort should be made to consolidate the accounting at East Point as early as possible.

Urges Accounting System.

Detached bank accounts should be closed out, and the general cash book should contain the record of all receipts and disbursements, even if immediately distributed to other books. Shifting of funds should cease. Where a county deposits money for the construction of a project and the county selects the depository the county should furnish suitable bond, and interest should be paid on deposits so that all banks may be treated alike, although this fund may remain in the county and in a bank of the county's selection.

The accounting division must abandon the attempt to make the books balance with the budget. Both the budget division and the accounting division should be under the control of the board, and it is the duty of the board to make the expenditures of the department come within the budget as fixed. The accounting division must simply record the expenditures in such a manner as to form a clear record of the transaction and in such a manner that an audit can be made readily and quickly of the department.

The equipment depot represents an expense of $300 a day in payroll. I suggest to the board that some official take charge of this department with a view of making a thorough study of same, and reducing costs of operation.

I recommend that a thorough survey be made of all employees and that all unnecessary employees be dispensed with; also that some regulations be made about expense accounts that expenses of travel be made more nearly uniform; that a supervisor of expense accounts be created who shall be directly under the control of the board and who shall carry out the policies and regulations of the board concerning expense accounts."

RAILWAY CHEATING RING HERE EXPOSED

States commissioner. Thursday she gave several depositions in which she charged that Lance sent her money to come to Atlanta from Birmingham.

Two Others Escape.

Bert Donaldson, special investigator of Solicitor Boykin's office, single-handed, attacked three members of the gang late Wednesday night at their room in a downtown hotel, and after a fierce struggle succeeded in subduing Lance. Two other members of the gang escaped. Descriptions of the men have been telegraphed to all parts of the southeast and county, city and federal authorities Thursday combed Atlanta for the fugitives.

The room was filled with one of the most expensive wardrobes ever taken by Atlanta authorities, showing conclusively that the men have been eminently successful in their operations, Investigator Donaldson said.

Seventeen expensive suits, some of which had scarcely been worn, 14 pairs of shoes, three of which had never been worn; scores of silk shirts, ties and other wearing apparel completed the total valued at about $4,000.

Mrs. Cole was not in the room at the time of the raid, but while officers were there the telephone rang and she asked to speak to Lance. She was told that he could not come to the phone at the time, but was told to "come on up." She did.

When it became apparent that the game was up, she told of having just come to Atlanta on money Lance had telegraphed to her. She had just arrived.

Married Last January.

"I was married to Allen Bruce Cole on January 19 of this year," she declared in an affidavit signed Thursday afternoon. "He and I separated. I met Lance and he was nice to me. I agreed to come to him if he would send the money. He telegraphed it, and promised to meet me at the station. Before I was married I was Nautha Narvelle Steed, of Birmingham."

Lance and his gang operated what is known as a "mitt game" on Pullmans, according to charges of officers. They would get a drawing room in a train, and then "frame" a passenger, win his money with marked cards and crooked dealing, Donaldson says.

Lance's suitcase was plastered with stickers from leading hotels in this part of the country. Some of them were from Cuba, showing his extensive field of operation, Donaldson said.

The name of the victim who tipped Donaldson and who already has attached the valuables found in Lance's room, was not disclosed. He claimed he lost more than $400.

Lance had a list of all Pullman conductors operating out of Atlanta, showing that this was headquarters for the gang, Donaldson said. All this evidence will be presented to the grand jury and United States commissioner today.

Lance's bond was fixed at $10,000. He had not made it at a late hour Thursday.

Other members of the gang are said to have sent word to Mrs. Cole to "tell nothing and we will supply you with anything you need." She told officers she was tired of it all and wanted to clear everything up.

Special Agent C. P. Light, of the United State department of justice, and W. D. McGee, detective of the Atlanta police department, are cooperating with Mr. Boykin and his assistants in working up the evidence in the case

BAUGH IS ARRESTED, ESTES IN HOSPITAL

J. D. Baugh, of 66 Cherry street, Thursday night was arrested by Call Officers Whatley and Crankshaw on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct as the result of a fight with H. C. Estes, of 61 East Cain street.

Estes was carried to a local hospital suffering several fractured ribs and a scalp wound said to have been received when Baugh struck him with a chair. No details of the fight were learned.

LOW RATES ASKED FOR LABOR FETE

Prospects of 100,000 out-of-town visitors in Atlanta on Labor day were predicted Thursday at a meeting of the Labor day advisory committee at the Chamber of Commerce, when practically every civic organization in the city pledged enthusiastic cooperation in efforts to make the three-day civic festival the greatest of its kind ever held here.

Following the meeting, committees were named, and work toward completing plans will be started immediately. Mayor Walter A. Sims was appointed chairman of a committee to attempt to induce all railroads entering Atlanta to put on half-fare excursions from all parts of the state from September 5 to 10; W. O. Foote was named head of the amusements committee, and Ivan Allen, of the committee on floats.

Will Enter Floats.

Mr. Allen announced that he will urge every civic organization to enter floats, and that in addition to labor unions, the Presidents' club, Atlanta Builders' exchange, and Chamber of Commerce already have agreed to have floats in the parade.

Mr. Foote stated that in addition to other organizations which previously had offered assistance and cooperation, the Retail Merhants' association and Atlanta Convention bureau through F. J. Paxon and Charles H. Witherspoon respectively promised to take an active part in the celebration.

In opening Thursday's meeting, Louie P. Marquardt, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades and chairman of the advisory committee, pointed out the fact that Labor day is not for organized labor alone but has been set aside by the national government as a festival day for all persons who labor in any way. He urged that all Atlantans cooperate to stage a good will and get-together meeting on Dabor day that will be the first step toward a greater Atlanta.

Plan Is Boosted.

Mayor Sims, V. H. Kriegshaber, Mr. Foote, Mr. Allen, Mr. Witherspoon and others told of their interest in making the celebration a success and stated that a big three-day celebration on September 6, 7 and 8 should be the starting point in a concerted drive to make Atlanta a city of a half million inhabitants.

Representatives of several railroads entering Atlanta stated that it is probable that excursion trips can be arranged for the festival, and promised that definite information will be obtainable within a few days. They also expressed the view that by offering the planned attractions, together with low railroad rates, 100,000 visitors could be brought to the city.

A fund of $1,000, given by city council, will be used in advertising the entertainment in Atlanta and in other Georgia cities within a short radius of Atlanta.

Present plans call for a program that will furnish some amusement or entertainment feature during every minute of the three days, with everything offered to the general public free. All privileges of municipal parks, with exception of golf courses, already have been offered by the city.

In addition to the monster parade, features planned in the tentative program include band concerts, fire works, free shows at the auditorium, reproduction of the playgrounds pageant, religious services at the auditorium, concerts by massed choirs of the city's churches, pipe organ concerts and music by the Atlanta Symphony orchestra and an air circus.

Surgeon Admits Dentist's Wife May Be Suicide

Los Angeles, August 20.—A serious blow to the prosecution of Dr. Thomas W. Young, on trial for the murder of his wealthy young wife, was delivered Thursday when the county autopsy surgeon admitted in testimony that Mrs. Young might have committed suicide.

Following the possible avenue of escape thus unexpectedly opened, defense attorneys changed their tactics and began to press this point, indicating that after she had taken her life, Dr. Young, who feared suspicion might fall on him, cemented her body in a cistern.

"Death was due to strangulation," Dr. Frank W. Wagner, the surgeon testified. "I could not state whether it was self-induced or not, because of the body's state of decomposition when I examined it."

Another blow to the prosecution came when Judge Hahn granted a defense motion to limit expert testimony on Dr. Young's mental condition to that of two disinterested alienists.

The court will select the alienists and permit them to examine Dr. Young during the course of the trial. This decision prevents the state from using four mental experts they had engaged to prove the defendant sane.

Victim of Assassin.

London, August 20.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Hong Kong says Liu Chung Hoi, finance minister of the Cantonese government, has been assassinated.

JOHNSTON TO REST IN WEST VIEW TODAY

Funeral services for James G. Johnston, 41, prominent Atlanta business man who died suddenly Wednesday at the residence, 16 West Tenth street, will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon from the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, the Rev. Charles W. Daniel, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. Interment will be in West View.

JAMES G. JOHNSTON.

The following will act as pallbearers: Milton Dargan, Jr., Dr. Ed Crudgington, Hall Davis, Frank Martin, E. S. Rhump and Charles Kenimer.

Mr. Johnston was born in Abbeville, S. C., and moved to Macon when a youth. He came to Atlanta in 1906 and entered actively into the business and social life of the city. He was general agent of the Travelers Insurance company and also district manager of the Hamilton Autographic Register company, of Hamilton, Ohio.

Mr. Johnston was a member of the Atlanta Athletic club, the Capital City club and the Piedmont Driving club, and was an Elk.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Johnston, with whom he resided; a sister, Mrs. Laurie Mikell, of Atlanta; and a brother, Joe E. Johnston, of Charlotte, N. C.

Disse Sentenced ToElectrocution In Triple Killing

Richmond, Va., August 20.—(AP)—Rudolph Disse was sentenced by a jury in Hustings court here to die in the electric chair for the murder of Henry Grady Carter.

The jury of Fredericksburg citizens found the 20-year-old triple slayer guilty of first degree murder for shooting and almost instantly killing the restaurant owner, his rival for the affections of Mrs. Vivian Tomlin Peers. 18-year-old clothing model Mrs. Peers and Detective J. Harvey Burke also were killed, and Willis Britt, automobile salesman, was wounded on July 28 last.

The verdict of the jury, which was called upon to decide the case when Judge Frederick W. Coleman, presiding, held an unprejudiced jury could not be obtained in Richmond, was brought in at 1:27 o'clock, after less than an hour and a half of deliberation.

The prisoner showed no emotion as the verdict was read. A motion by the defense that the verdict be set aside as contrary to law and evidence will be argued on August 28. Another defense motion that Disse be incarcerated in an insane asylum until a petition for writ of error could be disposed of, also was continued to that date.

In the closing arguments the state was adamant in its request for either death or acquittal. The prosecuting attorney declared that capital punishment, itself, was on trial in Virginia. He referred to the defendant as a "drug store cow-boy," who had "broken up the home" of Mrs. Peers' husband and who had "killed when he himself was robbed."

WIDOW OF BANKER SUES TO COLLECT $50,000 INSURANCE

Louisville, Ky., August 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Mildred Stites Gant, widow of Joseph R. Gant, former bank president and civic leader of Kansas City, Mo., today filed suit in United States district court here to collect $50,000 insurance on her husband's life.

The defendant is the Union Mutual Life Insurance company of Maine. Mr. Gant was reported to have carried $160,000 insurance.

Mr. Gant died in Kansas City July 1. Press dispatches attributed his death to "slow suicide," following an alleged shortage of $633,000 discovered in his bank. The bank was closed November 14, 1924.

JARDINE 'FIRES' BUREAU CHIEF

Washington, August 20.—(AP)—Secretary Jardine went a step further today in his reorganization of the department of agriculture by peremptorily ending the services of Dr. Henry C. Taylor as chief of the bureau of agricultural economics.

HENRY C. TAYLOR

In a terse statement issued from his sick bed at Walter Reed hospital, Secretary Jardine said the appointment of Dr. Taylor had been terminated.

This action had been expected ever since Secretary Jardine took office, as it was known that before the secretary had become a member of the cabinet, he and the economics chief differed widely on major agricultural policies. As time passed, there were no indications that the two could get together, and the secretary on several occasions intimated that Dr. Taylor's resignation would be acceptable.

Dr. Taylor, however, refused to heed the suggestions and consulted an attorney as to the legal right of a secretary to force a chief out of office without proving a case against him. Secretary Jardine interrupted the proceeding by demanding his immediate resignation. Thereupon, Dr. Taylor left Washington and his intimate associates have been informed that he will not return.

Dr. Taylor's departure leaves two major posts in the department vacant, as the office of the director of scientific research, relinquished by Dr. E. D. Ball, has not yet been filled.

Thomas P. Cooper, dean of the agricultural college of the University of Kentucky, has been selected to succeed Dr. Taylor, but he has not accepted formally.

U. S.-HAWAII AIR ROUTE IS FORESEEN

Honolulu, August 19.—(AP)—Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department, told the Honolulu Ad club today that the day is not far distan when passengers and light freight will be carried by air from the mainland to Hawaii.

RETAIL FOOD PRICES SHOW SMALL INCREASE

Washington, August 20.—(AP)—The retail food index of the bureau of labor statistics of the interior department showed an increase of slightly more than 3 per cent in retail food costs for July as compared with June.

An increase of 11.5 per cent in all food articles combined was reported for the year ending July 15 as compared with the preceding year.

The average family expenditure for food for the month ending July 15 over the preceding month, increased in Boston and Providence seven per cent; Columbus, Detroit, Indianapolis, Jacksonville and Mobile, 4; Atlanta, Baltimore, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Little Rock, Memphis, Norfolk, New Orleans, New York, Omaha, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Savannah and Washington, D. C., 3; Birmingham, Charleston, S. C., Kansas City, Pittsburg, Richmond and Scranton, 2; Dallas, Denver, Houston and Louisville, 1, and Los Angeles, Portland, Ore., San Francisco and Seattle less than five-tenths of one per cent. In Salt Lake City there was a decrease of 2 per cent.

:: "MARITAL VACATION" MAY BE ONLY RUSE ::

Of Separation of Valentinos

BY RODNEY F. DUTCHER.

New York, August 20.—Searching back through the long, musty years that lie between, some members of the older generation may be able to recall the days when Rudolph Valentino was the hero of the younger generation. Those were the days in which the sheik type of youth was developed, when all the girls made Rudolph their standard and forced their boy friends to look as much like Rudolph as possible or else drop out.

And oh! how heavy were the hearts of our grandmothers when Rudolph got himself married a second time! Most of them considered it as a personal slap in the face.

Well, poor old doddering Rudolph is back into print, and it may bring a reminiscent flutter to some dear old lady's heart to realize that there is more than a hint of domestic trouble involved.

Reports of a divorce are circulated, but denied.

"Marital vacation," said Rudolph in Los Angeles.

"Marital vacation," echoed Mrs. Valentino in New York, where she will soon sail for Paris.

Well, what is a marital vacation? Mrs. Valentino continued to the effect that the separation was only temporary, and that although Rudolph was an ideal home boy, her work hadn't allowed her to go on with the ideal home life he craved. Anyway, Mrs. Valentino was "fed up on home life for a while at least."

Still, Mrs. Valentino was vague. "Because he won't meet me at the boat when I return does not necessarily mean that we will not join each other later," she said, but neither did it seem to mean that they would.

It is a somewhat bizarre fact that many of these movie domestic troubles seem to happen just about the time a film is to be released by one of the principals. Strangely enough, Mrs. Valentino, who has remained in obscurity with Rudolph all these years—so far as the newspapers have been concerned—has just completed her first picture, which is "What Price Publici—" no, that isn't it, it's "What Price Beauty?"

Whether the scenario tells a story about a couple who had a row, which was concealed from the public until such propitious time as the bride starred in a picture, whereat everything was revealed, is not yet disclosed.

AMUSEMENTS

Siamese Twins.

(At Loew's Grand Theater.)

The famous Siamese Twins, Daisy and Violet Hilton, beautiful sixteen-year-old girls who were born joined together, are proving to be the most sensational vaudeville attraction ever appearing in Atlanta at Loew's Grand theater this week. Because of the enormous amount of public interest shown in the Siamese Twins four shows are given daily beginning at 2, 4, 6:45 and 9 p. m.

The Siamese Twins are supported by a strong vaudeville bill. The Loew feature picture is "The Crackerjack" with Johnny Hines.

Keith's Vaudeville.

(At Keith's Forsyth.)

Everything that makes up a modern, tuneful and snappy revue, including comedy, dancing girls, bright patter and catchy songs is included in "Town Topics," the typical topical revue that is the headlining feature at Keith's Forsyth this week.

In addition the program also includes the magical act of Carl Rosini, master magician, who performs feats of mystery. Mack and Rossiter present a conversational number full of wit and Jack Ryan puts plenty of personality in his "Songs and Stories." The Youngers have a picturesque and appealing act of balancing and posing.

Lewis Stone.

(At the Metropolitan.)

Another "sacrifice hit" for Lewis Stone.

The actor apparently believes in the philosophy of "Oh, how sweet, but so much better, to love a girl and not to get her."

Lewis Stone's greatest screen successes have been in roles wherein he sincerely loves "the girl" but doesn't get her. No wonder he terms them "sacrifice hits."

"In the Name of Love."

(At the Rialto.)

"In the Name of Love," the bright romance-comedy with Ricardo Cortez, Greta Nissen, Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in the lead roles, which will end the week's run at the Rialto theater with final showings today and tomorrow, will be followed next week by "Rugged Waters," a drama of the sea-island coast and the heroism of the men that live by the sea.

Carl LaFell and his orchestra and Miss Nellie Sulllivan's singing and dancing revue provide an attractive prologue.

"Street of Forgotten Men."

(At the Howard Theater.)

"The Street of Forgotten Men," a place in the Bowery of New York during the late '90s, provides one of the strangest settings for one of the strangest love stories ever told on the silver sheet. It is being offered at the Howard as the big feature film attraction this week.

Another stage production, more elaborate and tuneful than the first offering last week also is being provided. Byron Warner, director of the new Warner's Howard orchestra, Miss Virginia Futrelle and Miss Olive Hill, and the Howard Girls all are seen.

A. M. E. CONFERENCE IN SESSION AT ATHENS

Athens, Ga., August 20.—(Special). The Georgia State Sunday School and Allen Christian Endeavor league conventions of the sixth Episcopal district A. M. E. church, Bishop J. S. Flipper, D.D., presiding, held the second day's session in the First church of this city. Rev. C. A. Wingfield, D.D., and C. H. Harrold are superintendents of the Young Peoples' departments.

Mayor O. H. Arnold and Rev. J. C. Wilkinson, D.D., extended words of welcome in behalf of the city of Athens and Christian workers, to the largest delegation of its kind ever assembled in the city. Prominent visitors from as far as California, Colorado, Washington, D. C., and Texas are here.

Bishop Flipper, the keynote speaker of the morning session, lectured on "Bible Study," followed with departmental work by able speakers. Dr. S. J. Johnson, Washington, D. C., spoke to the body.

Nettie Chambliss; H. R. Tomlin; Dr. J. H. Lewis, president of Morris Brown university; L. H. Smith; Rev. Branch; B. S. Hamea; J. H. Hall; W. O. Slade; De Witt and C. C. Ealey; B. V. Thomton; L. A. Townsley; W. B. L. Clarke; ex-Dean P. W. Greatheart; J. W. English, Dr. E. Griff; Lula Campbell; B. J. Thornton, Col. W. A. Williams; Annie Shaw, Lucy Brewer; Jessie Brinson showed unusual preparation as special workers for the occasion.

The colored people of Athens are handling the situation well, as the delegations from different parts of the state pour into the city on every train, thereby making Athens a mecca for this great gathering.

Trained singers of 100 voices is a feature of much interest. The great pageant, "Ethiopia at the Bar of Justice," a Christian drama, was staged tonight at Morton's auditorium. The play was witnessed by 2,000 people.

The delegates on the adjournment of this convention will be so well informed as to the lessons taught that they can serve the community in which they live in holding fast to Christian principles, the observance of the Sabbath, church unity and the making of better neighbors, leaders of the conference believe.

MURDERER OF WIFE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Hot Springs, Ark., August 20.—(AP) Scotty Allison, a carpenter, who last Monday shot his wife to death and seriously wounded his 8-year-old stepdaughter, Ruby Jewel Pemberton, tonight slashed his throat and both arms with a safety razor blade in the county jail. Physicians expressed little hope for his recovery.

MISS EDERLE TO SWIM AGAIN

Boulogne, France, August 20.—(AP) Gertrude Ederle, American girl swimmer, has decided to have another try at the English channel, probably on August 31 or September 1.

Miss Lillian Harrison, the Argentine star, also plans to make her fifth attempt on one of those dates, and the two girls may start out together. Ishak Helmy, Egyptian, will make his trial the coming Saturday or Sunday.

NEW TRAINER IS ENGAGED.

Cape Griz Nez, France, August 29. (AP)—"Old Bill" Burgess, the English veteran who swam the channel in 1911, has been engaged to condition and handle Miss Gertrude Ederle, the New York girl swimmer, "should it be decided the American girl will make another attempt to swim the English channel," Jabez Wolfe, who trained her for her unsuccessful attempt last Tuesday, left Boulogne today for London.

There has been considerable friction between Wolfe and both Miss Ederle and her chaperone, Miss Elsie Vieta, of the Women's Swimming association of New York. Both women, however, have full confidence in Burgess.

The captain of the channel tug La Marinie, which convoyed Miss Ederele in her attempt last Tuesday, has been instructed to keep in readiness for another attempt on 48 hours' notice. A decision as to whether another attempt will be made is expected this evening or tomorrow.

STANLEY HONORED IN UTAH MEETING OF STATE LEADERS

Hal M. Stanley, Georgia commissioner of commerce and labor, has been elected vice president of the International Association of Industrial Accident Boards and Commissions, now holding its annual meeting in Salt Lake City, he was advised Thursday.

It is very rare for a man to be elected to an office of this importance when he is not present, Mr. Stanley's friends point out.

In the regular order of events, this election means that next year Mr. Stanley will be named president of the organization, which is composed of members of state industrial boards from the United States and Canada. The president, elected at the same time Mr. Stanley was named vice president, is F. M. Williams, of Hartford, chairman of the Connecticut Industrial commission.

MRS. WM. J. BRYAN THANKS SOLONS FOR SYMPATHY

A letter from Mrs. William Jennings Bryan to W. Cecil Neill, speaker of the Georgia house of representatives, expressing thanks for the telegram of sympathy sent her at the time of Mr. Bryan's death, was read in the house Thursday.

"Permit me," the letter reads, "to express to the house of representatives of the great state of Georgia, through you, my deep appreciation for your telegram of sympathy which was sent at the time of my husband's passing away. Mr. Bryan loved the people of your state and I am glad to have this evidence of their affection for him."

ALBERTS ADVISED BY JUDGE TO CARE FOR AGED MAN

Warrants charging Mr. and Mrs. John A. Albert with cheating and swindling in connection with division of $3,600 paid the estate of L. H. Smith, one of the six firemen killed while battling flames on May 6, were dismissed Thursday by order of Judge Luther Z. Rosser, of the municipal court.

The warrants were taken out by J. A. Smith, who claims he is the father of L. H. Smith and Mrs. Albert. He charged that Mr. and Mrs. Albert and Mrs. Albert's brother, Albert Smith, of Norfolk, Va., perpetrated a fraud in dividing the estate and excluding him.

Mrs. Albert charged that her father left home 37 years ago, when she was but nine years old, and that she would not recognize him if he appeared. She declared she did not know whether the man who said he was J. A. Smith was her father or not.

Judge Rosser advised her to take the aged man in and shelter, clothe and feed him in accordance with Bibical teachings. Smith said he did not desert his family but was "run away from home."

Attorneys for Smith intimated they will file a claim in Ordinary Thomas Jeffries' court for a portion of the $3,600 paid Fireman Smith's survivors by the relief committee.

HOTEL IS DESTROYED BY BLAZE IN TEXAS

San Angelo, Texas, August 20.—The three story Landon hotel was burned to the ground here this afternoon, causing damage of $150,000 to it and surrounding property, but no lives are believed to have been lost. The fire is believed to have started in a linen room or in the front of the kitchen.

SPARTANS HAVE EASY WIN.

Spartanburg, S. C., August 20.—Spartanburg easily defeated Columbia in a fast, but pepless exhibition of baseball this afternoon, 6 to 2. McMillan pitched steady ball. Poor fielding aided the Spartans in run-getting. Pretty catches were contributed by Dee, Lord and Ganzel. Walters played a good game at second for the home team. A doubleheader will be played tomorrow.

HELEN BEATS ENGLISH RIVAL

Forest Hills, N. Y., August 20.—(AP) Miss Elizabeth Ryan's contest for the tennis laurels of her native land after a long and brilliant campaign abroad came to an unexpected end today when the Californian bowed to her British rival, Miss Kathleen McKane, in a sensational three-set duel, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2.

While Miss McKane was eliminating the woman generally regarded as the tournament favorite, Miss Helen Wills, 19-year-old defending champion, was herself forced to a stirring extra set match to take the measure of her young English rival, Miss Joan Fry, 4-5, 6-0, 6-3.

Tomorrow Miss McKane will play Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, seven times American champion, who today decisively defeated Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., 6-2, 6-1, while Miss Wills will play an American rival, Miss Eleanor Goss, who put out the veteran international captain, Mrs. Dorothea Lambert-Chambers, in a brilliant match, 6-2, 11-9.

Helen's Strongest Rival.

Miss Ryan, who conquered the champion in straight sets at Seabright, N. J., recently, had been regarded all along as Miss Wills' outstanding rival. Her elimination has brightened the prospects that the Berkeley girl will win her third straight title, although Miss McKane, on the strength of her dazzling play the last two days, now looms as a formidable threat.

Seldom has a more brilliantly fought match taken place in the women's tournament than the Ryan-McKane battle. In the end it was the Britisher's great stamina and net attack that decided the issue, but not before Miss Ryan had given a masterful display of court craft and chop stroking.

The California strategist seemed headed for victory after outgeneralling her opponent to take the first set, and gaining an early lead in the second, both covered court with amazing speed and agility, sustaining long and brilliant rallies, but Miss McKane grew steadier as the match progressed, while Miss Ryan weakened, particularly on her service.

The third set saw Miss McKane at the top of her game. She raced through five straight games before being temporarily checked, then ran out the last two games without the loss of a point. Miss Fry was an easy victim for Miss Wills, after outdriving the champion to take the first set. The English girl seemed to lose confidence as the Californian applied more pace and accuracy to her shots. She put up a plucky fight in the final set but threw away her chances on errors.

Doubles Reach Semi-Finals.

Doubles play also reached the semi-finals, with Mrs. Jessup and Mrs. Goss scoring an upset when they conquered the star British pair, Miss McKane and Miss Evelyn Colyer. The American pair's superior teamwork and brilliant net play gave them the match by scores of 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

The Goss-Jessup team tomorrow will meet Miss Ryan and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, who advanced by eliminating Miss Margaret Blake and Mrs. C. J. Hubbard, of Boston, 6-1, 6-0.

In the other semi-finals of the doubles, Miss Wills and Miss Mary K. Browne, who today defeated Mrs. Florence Ballin, of New York, and Mrs. Harry Bickle, of Canada, 6-0, 6-0, will oppose Mrs. Lambert-Chambers and Miss E. H. Harvey, the remaining British combination, which conquered Miss Catherine Gardner, of Boston, and Mrs. Lillian Scharman Hester, of New York, 6-1, 6-1.

NEGRESS SENTENCED ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Fannie Williams, negress, Thursday was sentenced to serve from five to ten years after being found guilty of robbing Eural Pope of $18. She was tried in Judge G. H. Howard's division of Fulton superior court.

Lonnie Davis, negro, drew a sentence of from two to three years after being convicted of the theft of an automobile. George McCoy, negro, who was charged with assault with intent to murder, was sentenced to serve 12 months when the jury returned a verdict of criminal assault and battery.

John Lanford, negro, was convicted of burglary and sentenced to serve three to five years.

All the cases were tried in Judge Howard's division and Assistant Solicitor John Hudson prosecuted for the state.

BRADENTON,
Florida
"THE FRIENDLY CITY"

In Bradenton you will find a combination of advantages unequalled.

Location ideal: on the beautiful Manatee River, a mile-wide sweeping view into Tampa Bay—miles and miles of water front.

Within a few minutes drive of the Gulf of Mexico with a surf beach eight miles in extent.

Two railroads, daily boat service to Tampa and St. Petersburg.

Bradenton's growth has been almost phenomenal—yet along most substantial lines.

Population doubled in eighteen months. Bank deposits increased 115 per cent in twelve months. Hotels, apartments, bank and office buildings and hundreds of homes under construction.

A city development program of $7,000,000.00 and a county-wide program of $13,250,000.00 for 1925.

CRACKERS ANNIHILATE CHATTANOOGA IN OPENER

Niehoffian Sluggers Pile Up Big Lead as Dell Holds Lookouts in Check

Chattanooga, Tenn., August 20.—(Special)—Continuing the anti-Lookout policy that they have been carrying out all season, the Crackers walked about in demoniacal delight over the prostrate forms of the Nicklinites this afternoon for a farcical 11-to-5 triumph.

The visitors started in on Martin Baylin from the very start and they never once let up until Martin was allowed to step down in the sixth after ten runs had been made off him, according to Strang Nicklin's rule book, which says a pitcher must be kept in until ten runs are made. The Lookouts entered into the conspiracy to ruin Martin and errors flowed like the beautiful mountain stream the poet tells about.

In the third with one down Good beat a hit and took third on Cullop's Texas leaguer. Smith hit, scoring Good and took second on the throw to third which Cullop beat. Murphy punched a blow to right, scoring Cullop and Smith. Gazella hot shot a single to the same garden and when Bigelow let it get by, Murphy scored. Gazella reached third on the error and counted on Brock's hit, the sixth in succession.

Dell Doubles.

In the fifth, one down, Gazella strolled, took second on Brock's out, pitcher to first, and scored on Dell's double past third. Dell took third on a wild pitch and scored on Barnes' error off Zoeller.

In the sixth, Cullop walked and scored on Smith's double to left wall. Brock's double sent Smith over. Fifteen Lookouts faced Dell in five innings. Bigelow walked in the fourth but Burke hit to Gazella for a double play.

The old-timer had the home hitters punching in a spiritless, hopeless sort of way.

Barnes started the sixth with the first home blow. Morris skied to center. Shupe hit for Baylin, and Niehoff made a fast stop on his grounder, but Gazella muffed the throw. Lewis forced Shupe, Barnes taking third and when Carroll beat a slow one to first, Barnes scored. The home hitters jumped on Dell in the eighth for four tallies and would have made more had it not been for some careless base running by Eddie Lewis. One down, Shupe barked a blow to left and Lewis a hit to center.

Caught Anyhow.

Carroll tapped to Niehoff. Gazella muffed the throw to second but Lewis was caught off the bag in some mysterious manner. Cy Anderson then tore off a single to center, scoring Shupe. Bigelow followed with a smack over the left field fence. Albeit he bats from the right field side. Dixie and Cy scored ahead of the slugger.

Shupe was a bit wild but he got by until the ninth when Niehoff walked for the third time, took third on Good's one-baser to right and scored on Cullop's sacrificial hoist to center.

The Lookouts threatened in their half of the ninth when Hinkle hit and Morris beat out a fluke. Don Anderson batted for Shupe after the pitcher had a run-in with O'Brien and had been run out. Don hit a liner to Dell, who nailed Morris off first to end the game.

FORT WORTH FORGES AHEAD

Dallas, Texas, August 19.—(AP)—Fort Worth retained a full four-game lead in the Texas League Tuesday and Wichita Falls was in second place. Third position was tied by Houston and Dallas, one game behind Wichita Falls, and five games behind the leader.

SOCIAL CIRCLE TEAM WINNER OF TWIN BILL

Social Circle, Ga., August 20.—(Special.)—Social Circle won a double-header over Conyers Wednesday. Chief Williams, noted southpaw, was on the mound for Conyers, but Social Circles knocked him to all corners of the lot. Mobley, Social Circle outfielder, hit for the circuit in the second inning, scoring Smith ahead of him.

The score of the first game was 7 to 4, while the second ended 4 to 3.

DIAMOND DUST

BY JULIAN GRIFFIN.

From this point of vantage, or disadvantage, it looks like another winning streak for the Crackers. Even though the Pels went ten innings to win from the Travelers and maintain their lead of one full game and two percentage points, Niehoff's hirelings sallied forth and copped the Chattanooga game in business-like manner.

Our side obtained 13 safe hits, completed two double plays and swiped four bases, showing a brand of ball that will win in any league.

Wilbur Good rapped out three singles, enough to hold his slim lead over Gulley, of Little Rock, for hitting honors, the latter getting two out of four yesterday. "Uncle Wilbur" seems to be the most deliberate hitter in the league, and it would not surprise Atlanta fans to see the stoical Cracker outfielder ride home in front when the season ends.

Brock and Gazella each got two out of four yesterday, one of little Mike's hits sailing over the stands for the circuit. The former LaFayette football star is a well built little rascal, more so than he appears to be on the field.

Paul Fittery, southpaw who took the count following a series of operations while wearing a Cracker uniform this season, pitched a nice game for Asheville yesterday, beating Macon 7 to 4. He gave up eight hits and walked just one man. Two of the hits were made by Red Hall, third baseman, and property of the Atlanta club.

Russell Scarritt, farmed by Dan Michalove to Greenville, made two hits out of three attempts. Atlanta has a splendid array of promising material to carry to the training camp next year. Some of the vets will have to watch their steps or become bench warmers.

Connie Mack's Athletics have at last surrendered their lead in the American to Bucky Harris and his crew from the nation's capital. The Senators gained the top by defeating Cleveland, 1 to 0, in a twelve-inning game. Pittsburg gained another full game in the senior circuit and is three full games in front. Washington's lead is measured by one game.

The Pirates go to New York Friday for the National league's most "croocial series." There certainly are a lot of close pennant races in the country this season, to say the least.

WEST OPENS GOLF MEET

Youngstown, Ohio, August 19.—(AP)—With virtually all the representative golfers of the country here, the twenty-fifth annual western open golf championship will get under way tomorrow.

Among the 251 players entered are: Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Bobby Cruickshank, MacDonald Smith, Fred Brand, Emmet French, W. M. Mehlhorn, winner of the western open in 1924; Al Espinosa, Spanish star; "Chick" Evans, Chicago; Leo Diegel, Mike Brady, Densmore Shute, West Virginia state amateur champion, and John Black, veteran California star.

DAVIS TEAM IS COMPLETED

New York, August 20.—(AP)—The United States Davis cup team which will defend the international team tennis championship at Philadelphia September 10, 11 and 12, will be composed of William T. Tilden, William M. Johnston, Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams, the last named serving as captain.

MRS. ROBINSON REACHES FINALS

Asheville, N. C., August 20.—(AP)—Mrs. D. Reymond, of Baton Rouge, and Mrs. L. J. Robinson, of Atlanta, will meet tomorrow morning in the finals of the ladies' summer tournament of Asheville Country club. Mrs. Reymond, who won the qualifying medal with 78, tying the course record, disposed of Mrs. Grahame MacFarlane, of Asheville, 4 and 2, carding an approximated 79, and Mrs. Robinson progressed by default from Mrs. Orrin Randolph, of Asheville, for the first flight consolation.

Second flight honors will be decided between Mrs. A. C. McDonald, of Biltmore Forest, and Mrs. Charles Dowman, of Miami, the former having defeated Mrs. Leland Morrow, of Asheville, and the latter Miss Daisy Bartlett, of Asheville.

Consolation finalists are Mrs. W. Wigley, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Charles Humphrey, of Asheville. Mrs. A. S. Higgins, of Pinehurst, won the third finals here today from Mrs. Fulton, of Richmond.

Little Rock, Ark., August 20.—New Orleans retained first place in the Southern association pennant race by defeating Little Rock 2 to 1 here today in a ten-inning game. It was a pitchers' battle between Martina, of the leaders, and Robinson, of the Travelers, in which the veteran right-hander had the advantage.

Little Rock scored first, getting an unearned run in the sixth when Tucker muffed Rabbitt's fly to right and then made a wild throw which allowed the runner to reach third from where he scored on Blackburne's single through the box.

New Orleans tied the score in the eighth when Henry bunted for a hit, Lapan's drive to short took a freak hop over Blackburne's head and Martina hit a single to right.

The winning run was scored in the tenth when Lapan walked, went to second on Martin's sacrifice and scored on Bogart's single after Clarke had flied out.

PFEIFFER GOES TO BIG MEET

Louisville, Ky., August 19.—(AP)—Ed Pfeiffer, recent winner of the southern singles tennis championship will compete in the national singles tournament at Forest Hills, N. Y., beginning Monday, September 14.

"I certainly am overjoyed at the chance to play in the national tourney," Pfeiffer said.

"I don't know how far I'll go, but with good luck I should win a few matches. Jack Caldwell went to the third round last year. I've never played on grass courts, but I feel sure that if I get a day or so of practice I'll be able to learn the different bound of the ball."

AILEEN GUY COPS $9,035

Cleveland, Ohio, August 20.—(AP)—Aileen Guy, owned by the Ellis estate, Philadelphia, and driven by Ben White, Lexington, Ky., won the Championship Stallion stake, value $9,035, feature of today's Grand Circuit card at North Randall. Sam Williams was second and Worthy Harvester third. Best time, 2:03 4-5.

Dempsey's Desires.
Better Watch Tunney.
Veteran Scribe Passes.

LET us abandon all the camouflage about the heavyweight situation and consider the thing from the cold and calm angles of meditation. Let us start off with the supposition that Jack Dempsey will gain what he wants, two or perhaps three bouts with men who do not figure as champions, before he meets Harry Wills, who, New York would have us believe, is the only logical contender for the world crown.

Given this point from which to start, let us believe that Gene Tunney, who conquered Tom Gibbons, will be given first crack at Mr. Dempsey. And that is as far as we will get, for the very logical reason that if Tunney is as good as dispatches would have us believe he will beat Dempsey and Wills will be out of luck.

WE DO not believe Tunney is that good. We choose to believe that no man is good enough to beat Jack Dempsey right now. We do not believe that the heavyweight champion has gone so far back that he never again will be able to make a good fight. And lack of condition is the only thing which ever will defeat Dempsey. He punches too hard, his speed is too great, and his mind too fast for any of the men who now are fighting. To our way of thinking, Tunney is the only man fighting who even has a sporting chance with the champion. All the noise you hear about Wills is merely noise. If he stays six rounds with Dempsey it will be because Dempsey wants him to, or because the champion has not rounded into condition.

It does not take any particularly strong memory to hark back to the day when Jack Johnson beat Jeffries, but it would take a strong imagination to conjure a picture of Jeffries being defeated by Jack Johnson in the hey-day of his career. If Jeffries had been the man he was when he beat Bob Fitzsimmons he would have beat Johnson. The same thing holds for Dempsey. If he is out of condition and takes on Harry Wills or Gene Tunney he will be beaten, but we choose to believe that Dempsey is much too smart to think he can win from either if he is not in first-class shape.

W. A. PHELON, for years a big league baseball writer, is dead, and one of the most picturesque characters in baseball is gone. Phelon certainly had his shortcomings, just as all other humans have, but he also had some endearing virtues. He was truthfully a friend to those he liked and he was positively unswerving in his loyalty to baseball. It was a personal affront to Phelon when it was learned the White Sox had sold the world's series in 1919. Phelon, being a Cincinnati scribe, could see nothing but the Reds that year, and knew they had won on their merits. He was a rabid fan, rooting at the top of his voice from press boxes in every National league city.

Phelon used to make the circuit in company with a pair of squirrels. Entering a press box he would loosen the neck of a sack, which contained the squirrels, and they would scamper about, much to the annoyance of other writers and the great glee of Phelon. These pets were killed, but Phelon soon came back with a small monkey.

PHELON was the direct contributor to Billy Evans' sad experience in Chicago when the home-town fans presented the umpire with a barrage of tomatoes, laid down at the suggestion of Phelon, who then was on the staff of The Chicago Journal. It finished Phelon in Chicago and it almost finished Evans. For years the latter scarcely dared enter that city.

CUYLER'S FREAK HOMER WINS GAME.

Brooklyn, August 20.—Hazen Cuyler's freak home run in the sixth inning today gave Pittsburg the margin by which it defeated Brooklyn, 2 to 1, and made its advantage in the pennant race a full three games, as New York lost to Chicago. Cuyler's ordinary single bounded high over Brown's head in center field and rolled to the exit gate. Brooklyn's only run was a homer by Zack Wheat in the first.

BRAVES SWEEP SERIES.

Boston, August 20.—The Boston Braves swept a four-game series with St. Louis, by taking the final game today, 6 to 3. Rogers Hornsby, league-leading batter, again went hitless in four trips to the plate. He made only one hit in the series. The Braves' infield backed up Barnes in sensational style in the pinches. High lights of the game were home runs by Hafey and High, each when a man was on base.

DAN M. BRADLTY DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

Glennville, Ga., August 20.—Dan M. Bradley, president of the Glennville & Collins railroad, injured in an automobile accident yesterday, died this morning.

HARRY GREB SERIOUSLY HURT

Pittsburg, Pa., August 20.—(AP)—Harry Greb, world's middleweight boxing champion, was seriously injured in an automobile accident near here early tonight. He was rushed to a hospital where a first examination revealed that he suffered two broken ribs, severe bruises and possibly internal injuries.

Greb and two other men had set out in the fighter's automobile for Erie, Pa., where Greb was to meet Jimmy Darragh, in an American Legion boxing match tomorrow night. Twelve miles from here on descending a hill the fighter's car met two others. Slamming on the brakes, the wheels locked and the Greb car skidded and overturned. Passing autoists rushed Greb to this city. His companions were not seriously hurt.

BLANKENSHIP WINS ANOTHER.

Chicago, August 20.—Ted Blankenship registered his eighth consecutive victory today when Chicago defeated Boston, 11 to 7, making a clean sweep of the three-game series. Erratic fielding behind Ruffing and Zahniser, who were both hit hard in spots, gave the locals their runs. Blankenship weakened in the seventh inning and was replaced by Connally, who held the visitors safe until the ninth when a pinch-hitter, Carlyle, started a rally with a three-base hit.

SENATORS TAKE LEAD.

Cleveland, August 20.—Cleveland and Washington battled for 12 innings today before Washington won, 1 to 0, in the final game of the series.

Marberry took second base on Hoddapp's wild throw at the start of the twelfth, Rice singled, S. Harris hit to Hoddapp and Marberry was thrown out at the plate. J. Harris fouled out, but Goslin's third hit scored Rice with the run that made it three straight for the champions.

Although Washington made 13 hits off Miller, the collegian southpaw was effective with men on bases. Each team gave its pitchers good support, each making three double plays.

Zachary, after holding Cleveland to five hits in eight innings, retired in favor of a pinch hitter and was replaced by Marberry who went in as a relief pitcher for the third consecutive day.

M'TIGUE MEETS JIM SLATTERY

New York, August 20.—Barring such last-hour misfortunes as broken knuckles, wrenched ligaments, sick friends and severe headaches, two of the most prominent light heavyweights in the country will fight in the Coney Island stadium Friday night.

Mickey McTigue, former champion, meets Tony Marullo, of New Orleans, in one bout of 12 rounds and Jimmy Slattery, who whipped whole squads of fighters before he was stopped by Davey Shade, will fight someone called Maxie Rosenbloom, six rounds or less.

Although McTigue was a dreary champion, he is still a great defensive boxer and is expected to outpoint Marullo.

Slattery hasn't fought here since Shade upset him and checked his progress so the Rosenbloom fight will mark the resumption of a carer that carried him high for a long fall.

Pirates Invade New York For Five Contests Friday

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, August 20.—The musical chimes of the bankers' concertina, sometimes known as the cash register, will begin to tinkle in the bosky umbrage of Coogan's bluff Friday morning and by 1 o'clock in the afternoon New York will resound again with the full instrumental and vocal hubbub of a big time at the ball-yard.

This will be the first time since the world series of last fall that a recital of this strident opera has crowded the air which New York uses to fill tires, to blow saxophones and to make those very valuable bubbles which convert hard cider into champagne worth $20 a quart.

The Pittsburg Pirates will be present but not gloating in the first two ball games of a five-game series which will decide whether or not something or other is or isn't. Nobody seems certain as to what this series of five ball games, to be played in two double headers, one Friday and another Saturday, and a one-act episode Sunday, will decide.

Pirates Beat Dodgers.

The Pirates beat the Dodgers in Brooklyn Thursday afternoon, by the modest score of 2 to 1, and the Giants lost to the Cubs 5 to 3. The result being that the Giants, who are in second place, fell back a certain measurement of length known as one full game. The Giants were two full games behind the Pirates before Thursday's game so, by the occult process of baseball mathematics, it now appears that they are three full games to the bad.

In the very unlikely event that the Giants should win all five games, they would quit the series leading the league by two lengths. But, if they win three and lose the other two they will be two games behind or only one game nearer the front than they are now. And if the Giants win four and lose one they will be virtually tied but mathematically untied, for the percentage reading will run like this:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Pittsburg	68	48	.586.
New York	71	51	.582.

Thus it begins to appear that the Giants must win the entire series in order to take first place after which they might go out and fumble away four or five games to the Reds and Cardinals and thereby lose their lease on the top of the league. These leases, like a fight manager's word of honor, are subject to cancellation without notice.

So the impending business at the Polo Grounds may not decide whether something or other is or isn't, after all. It may decide something else or nothing whatever.

The series has a historic background, however, four years being a historic lapse of time in a young country. It was way back in 1921 that the Pirates came to the Polo Grounds with a lead of 7 1-2 games, lost five games in a row and thereafter lost some more, the ultimate result being a world series in New York and no world series in Pittsburg. It was during this series that Mr. B. Dreyfuss, the Paderewski of the cash register, struck the debit key of his instrument and rang up a loss of several hundred thousand dollars which had been expended for emergency world series stands in Pittsburg, Mr. B. Dreyfuss being the president and proprietor of the Pittsburg Pirates.

The Giants claim that their pitchers are able to beat the Pirates now, which may be true to the extent of two pitchers inclusive, Art Nehf and Virgil Barnes. However, they used Jack Bentley, Wisner, Dean and Huntzinger to defeat the Cubs Wednesday and found that Huntzinger was the only one who could pitch at all. Thursday they used Bentley again and he was the one who was troubled for 11 hits and a 5-to-3 defeat by the same Cubs who belong to a very inferior stratum.

However, this is to be what the rubber stamps describe as a crucial series, and there will be great hubbub at the ball-yard.

OHIO GOLFER IS LEADING IN WEST

Youngstown, Ohio, August 20.—(AP) Remarkable scoring, largely by young players, marked the first elimination round of the western open golf championship at the Youngstown Country club today and when the 261 entrants had finished the round, Larry Nabholtz, of Cleveland, stood at the head of the class with a 67, four better than par.

Just as noteworthy was the score of 69 made by Donald Carrick, of Toronto, Canadian amateur champion at the age of 18. The only other player to break 70 was Emmett French, veteran professional of the local club, who tied Carrick. A half dozen players shot 70 which is one better than perfect figures for the 6,500-yard links and another half dozen, including Walter Hagen, formerly British and American open titleholder, shot 71.

So many players scored from 72 to 75 that it looked as though the 64 who remain after tomorrow's second qualifying round for Saturday's final 36 holes would have to return 150 or better for the two elimination circuits of the course.

There were few upsets today, but many who thought that the Youngstown links could be played without effort awoke to find that the previous good scores, as those of today, were due to sharp shooting, for traps engulfed stray shots and the rough played havoc with wild drives.

There were 70 golfers who scored 75 or better today, making the chances for those who ran above that mark today rather precarious.

Just within this group was Bill Mehlhorn, of Chicago, who is present champion. He took 74, largely because of his putting. He played with Keefe Carter, of Oklahoma City, western amateur champion, and Carter, like Mehlhorn, shot well to the green on every hole, only to drop several putts.

ROCK STAR WINS $4,000

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., August 19. (AP)—Rock Star of the Brookmeade stables captured the $4,000 Grabbag handicap for two-year-olds, feature race at the Spa today, beating W. J. Salmon's 20 to 1 shot, Martha Washington, which was second. Bubbling Over, owned by E. R. Bradley, was third. The time for the six furlongs 1:12 1-5.

ERRORS LOSE FOR THOMASVILLE

Thomasville, Ga., August 19.—(Special.)—The Naval Air Station, of Pensacola, defeated the local team in the second contest here this afternoon by the score of 5 to 3. Thomasville errors and bone plays proved too much for the local twirler to deliver a win. Five errors were made by the local aggregation. Hamilton was touched for nine hits, four of which came in the fourth frame, and the remainder by count of one in each of the other innings except the first and last.

ANNISTON DEFEATS FAST CENTRAL NINE

Cedartown, Ga., August 19.—(Special.)—Anniston defeated Central of Georgia here today, 7 to 5. Central of Georgia out-hit Anniston, but lost on loose fielding. Suggs and Satterfield hit for home runs. Hawkins pitched for Anniston, while Wyatt worked for the home team.

WASHINGTON LEADING LEAGUE

Chicago, August 20.—(AP)—After fighting from behind courageously for several weeks, the world's champion Washington Senators today regained first place in the American league.

Continuing the dangerous skid that started with their departure from home, the Philadelphia Athletics dropped to a position one game behind the flying Griffmen by having another close contest whisked out of their reach by St. Louis, 7 to 6. The champions, however, had the punch to break an eleven inning tie with Cleveland and won 1 to 0, in the twelfth.

The American league standing:

Team.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Washington	74	40	.649
Philadelphia	72	40	.643

Pittsburg's Pirates, having lost in a single day any curiosity they may have had as to how it would feel to let the Giants draw dangerously close, regained their three game lead of Tuesday by winning from Brooklyn, 2 to 1, while the Giants, unable to maintain the pace that previously had marked their home stay, succumbed to the Cubs, 5 to 3.

The National league standing:

Team.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Pittsburg	67	44	.604

EATONTON NINE SLUGS TO VICTORY

Eatonton, Ga., August 20.—(Special.)—The Imperial Cotton Mills team of Eatonton defeated Gray yesterday by staging a ninth-inning rally. Wingfield's single scored "Tiny" Hearn with the winning run. Tante, Imperial hurler, worked well for the Eatonton bunch, and was supported with heavy slugging and good fielding.

On Tuesday Eatonton journeyed to Milledgeville, defeating the team there 12 to 8. Eatonton got to Smith, knocking him all over the lot, and two other relief hurlers fared little better. Royal pitched the entire game for Eatonton, pitching a good, steady game.

THE PEARL HEADED PIN

Blue Ribbon Fiction

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Colonel Hallett and his wife, Margaret, are discussing plans for refurnishing their London home, which is being remodeled The conversation changes, and Mrs. Hallett is reminded of the past. Twenty years before she had been married to Henry Ledway, who died in a railroad wreck after being accused, along with his partner, John Selkirk, of murdering a business rival. Selkirk had been tried and sentenced to twenty years. Mrs. Hallett tells her husband the morning paper announces Selkirk's release from prison.

The first installment of this thrilling mystery story was published yesterday. Start reading it today.

"Do you think I would have shown up to you if you could do anything? Lord you are slow! Don't you see you and I can make terms? I don't want you—I found that out the day after we were married, if you remember. It won't quench my thirst to interfere with you. You carry on. Go on being 'Mrs. Hallett.' There'll be no trouble coming to you—and no stain on your daughter"

Mrs. Hallett was nodding slowly. Blackmail!

"I see. I am to rob the man I regard as my husband for your benefit and lie to him as to what I am doing with the money—until you demand too much and the lies get found out. You should have remembered that I was never so great a fool as that."

Ledway's face showed that whatever attitude he had expected from her, this uncompromising rejection of his bargain found him unprepared.

"Steady on!" he exclaimed, a whining note in his voice. "I'm not suggesting anything as unreasonable as that."

Mrs. Hallett continued to look steadily at him. She found time to marvel at the fact that this man whom, until some time after her marriage to him, she had taken for a member of her own class, could have so utterly lost the speech and manners of civilized society. He had pushed his hat to the back of his head, and come offensively close to her.

"How much have you got on you now?" he was demanding.

"In my bag I have a pound and some silver. I will not give it to you."

He leered at her.

"We'll meet again and talk it over, my dear. You'll have seen sense by then. In the meantime——" Before she realized his intention his hand had reached out and snatched her pin out of the fur at her neck—"this pearl's worth something." He laughed, pulled open his waistcoat, and ran the pin through the lowest point of his tie. When he rebuttoned the waistcoat the pin was invisible.

"You've taken that by force," said Mrs. Hallett with deadly calm. "As soon as I get out of here, I shall report it to the police. And as soon as I see my husband, I shall tell him of your existence."

"Not you!" said Ledway confidently. "You always had a temper, Margaret. You've got a daughter, haven't you? Going to spoil her birth certificate?"

"Don't count on that," said Mrs. Hallett. Her lips were trembling, but she brought out her words forcefully enough. "No possible stigma could attach to my daughter or to myself. I shall demand the utmost publicity." But she could see that he did not believe her.

"I shan't spoil the game by asking for more than you can get across with —for my own sake," he assured her. "Just a little bit of careful management on your part and you can carry on as you are. Even if Selkirk and I couldn't prove any more than we could at the time of the trial—and I'm not saying we couldn't—they wouldn't hang me now. And anything short of hanging—remember, you can't divorce me. You'll have to give up Colonel Hallett—and you won't be able to live with your girl, either. You'll get plenty of sympathy but—the facts will be there. Colonel Hallett will have to retire from public life. Think it over, Margaret. I won't stay now—and I won't take what you've got in your bag, which I could easily do if I wanted to. Just think it over."

He moved towards the door, then stopped. From the well of the staircase came the sound of a door banging.

Mrs. Hallett glanced at her wrist watch.

"Here is Colonel Hallett," she said. "He will be upstairs in a minute. You can talk it over with him."

In spite of her fear and bewilderment, there came to her a passing triumph. Ledway had refused to credit her with her refusal to be blackmailed and to deceive the man who, by all that she held clean and holy, was her husband. Well, now he would be convinced in spite of himself. Now he would see.

Ledway had rushed through the door to the head of the staircase and listened. Then he returned to her side.

"He's coming up!" he whispered.

"I know," said Mrs. Hallett, motionless. "I'm expecting him. You can see him. He will deal with you."

Ledway remained standing over her.

"Remember what I say, Margaret. Think it over. Don't do anything rash. I'm going. Your Colonel Hallett hasn't seen me—he won't see me. Meet me at the booking office, Charing Cross underground tomorrow at five-thirty—with something on account."

She stared at him, perplexed by his change of manner. How did he propose to evade the interview with Colonel Hallett, who was steadily mounting the staircase? Ledway had crossed the room in the direction of the door—was he going to hide behind it as it opened and then strike?

She sprang up, but in that second his intention had become clear to her through the odd movements of his fingers. He was fumbling at the moulding of a panel in the wall.

She heard him moan rather than cry, and the next moment the panel had sprung back into position.

She slapped her hands to her ears and held her breath as if she could hear the thud of his body a hundred feet below.

Her hands were still at her ears when her husband came in, and, although he could hear nothing, she was aware that he called anxiously to her as he hurried to her side. She tried to speak to him but could make not the slightest sound. Even when he drew down her hands and dropped on his knees beside her, she could only draw long breaths that brought her sense of suffocation no relief.

"Margaret, for heaven's sake, try to tell me what is wrong—try! Are you ill? Where is March?" Then, as she could only shake her head—"didn't he turn up"

"No. It—it wasn't—he—it——"

"Some one has been here and frightened you. You are terribly unstrung! Dearest, I do beg you to try to tell me what has happened. I do beg you——"

His arm was round her shoulder, and the touch helped her to fight down the pain in her throat. She made a tremendous effort and jerked out disconnected phrases.

"Henry Ledway. Not dead at all —he wasn't killed in the railway accident. And Selkirk was right. He came here—"

"He heard you coming and wanted to get away. He knew about that secret door—he stepped through it and—the staircase has gone. Everything has gone. I couldn't warn him in time. He stepped through it, George. I was afraid I should hear his body strike the ground."

"My God, Margaret, what are you saying!"

"Henry Ledway," she repeated.

CHAPTER VII.

An Hallucination.

Mrs. Hallett's lips were stiff, her voice the harsh voice of a stranger. She could not think, could only stare into her husband's staring face "Go down, George—and you'll find his body there. We must get the police and a doctor. I must—we must tell everybody what has happened. Ledway couldn't be alive after that fall. Could he? I haven't dared to—to look—"

Colonel Hallett, muttering to himself, had got to his feet and in three strides was across the room. Still incapable of thought or feeling, Mrs. Hallett watched him open the secret door and peer out.

"There's no scaffolding within ten feet," he said as if to himself. Then, with a frightened glance at her, he shut the panel and hurried out of the room. As he ran down the stairs, she heard him shouting for Potter.

Potter? She held her head in her hands. Ledway had said that Potter had been decoyed away. Ledway had grinned and whined and grinned again just before he fell. A wave of nausea swept her and panic followed. Calling her husband's name, she pulled herself out of her chair and ran out of the library, then, clutching at the bannisters, down the interminable flights of stairs. In the hall her strength left her and she stayed on the bottom step, her forehead upon her clenched hands. She was still in this position when she heard her husband coming back through the kitchen quarters. As the baize door swung shut behind him she spoke.

"Is he dead?"

For a moment Colonel Hallett made no answer. Then, very gently, he drew her to her feet.

"I'm going to take you home, my love."

There was something strange about him. In his tone, in his look, there was a deep anxiety, but not the anxiety that merely wanted her out of the way while the police went about their gruesome duty. She felt that at once. He was keeping something from her.

"Is—Henry Ledway dead?" she asked again.

"We'll talk about it at home, Margaret. Come along! Potter seems to have taken French leave—he'll have to go. Or did you send him anywhere?"

"Potter was called away," she began, then broke off. "I will explain that when you've told me. You saw his body? Is it—awful?"

"Margaret, to please me, come away."

"I won't go until you've answered me. Why on earth can't you say yes or no?"

"Do be guided by me just this once. You are in a most abnormal condition."

"You're making me desperate, George. If you can't answer my question, I must go and look for myself."

"You can't do that!"

"George," she said with labored patience, "at our hospital in the war I saw innumerable dead and mangled bodies. I'm going to see this one, since you're making a mystery about it."

"Margaret!" There was a sharpness in his voice and his hesitation had disappeared. He put his hand on her shoulder. "Listen to me. You can't see the body—because there isn't a body there. There's nothing to be alarmed about, dearest. I think you were asleep in that chair and you had a vivid dream, springing from Selkirk's wild statements and the fact that you intended to speak to March about the secret door. You sometimes dream vividly when you're out of health—you know you do. You've had an hallucination. It's absolutely nothing to get alarmed about, only you must have rest."

"Hallucination!" she stammered. "But—but—" she thought she understood, now, and she felt a wild impatience with him.

"You mean you couldn't find—anything, and so you assume everything I've told you is a dream. Did you trouble to go down to the foundations?"

Her voice had risen sharply. She knew that her husband would have resented her tone had he not been dominated by his belief in her ill health.

"I looked everywhere, most thoroughly," he told her quietly. "There is nothing to be seen. Again I implore you to let me take you home!"

Mrs. Hallett made no answer. She walked unsteadily towards the biaze door, and passed through it. Colonel Hallett, protesting, followed her. When they had traversed the kitchen quarters, he stopped her and demanded her attention.

"If you are resolved on another search, Margaret, I simply ask you to remember this. In your own mind, in spite of what I said, you're convinced there's a body there. Prepare yourself for the shock of finding that there isn't."

He had thrust his arm through hers, and she let him guide her down the stairs that led to the basement. Here, in a corridor, he stopped and opened the door af a one time cupboard.

They stood on a narrow ledge, looking into the pit of the foundations.

"I must go down there."

Society Gathers at Clubs For Dinner and Dancing

The broad terrace of the Druid Hills Golf club and the popular roof garden of the Capital City club were the two coolest spots to be found Thursday evening and Atlanta society just naturally drifted to these charming places for dinner, dancing and congenial company, forgetting the warmer hours of the day in these delightful pastimes. At that exclusive club in Druid Hills, where members are again enjoying the most gracious hospitality, there were a large number of family parties dining together, giving a home atmosphere to the informal setting. One of the largest crowds of the season dined and danced on the Capital City club roof, where attractive visitors mingled with members and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosser Give Bridge-Supper.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Z. Rosser entertained at a bridge-supper Thursday evening at their home on the Cherokee road in honor of Mrs. Guy Paramour, of Thomasville, the guest of Mrs. Charles B. Shelton.

The rooms where the game was played were beautifully decorated for the occasion with lovely garden flowers.

Mrs. Rosser wore an attractive gown of shell pink crepe.

Twenty-four guests were invited to meet the honor guest.

Miss Steiber Is Honored.

Miss Alberta Steiber, an attractive bride-elect of August 27, was honor guest Thursday evening at an informal shower party given at the home of Mrs. Luther Hamilton on the Huntingdon road.

Little Miss Katherine Patton, daughter of the Rev. James G. Patton, Jr., presented the bride-elect a bouquet of white rosebuds showered with white satin ribbons, and at the end of each ribbon was a useful and attractive gift for the bride-elect. Little Miss Patton wore a miniature bridal costume of white satin with a tulle veil adjusted to a bandeau of orange blossoms.

Miss Hamilton and Miss Flora Young gave a delightful musical program during the evening. The guests enjoyed a game of heart dice and a bridal contest.

Social Notes From Marietta.

George H. Sessions entertained the young society set at a bridge party on Tuesday evening at the Marietta Golf club complimenting Miss Josephine Smith, of St. Louis, Mo., who is the guest of his mother, Mrs. George Sessions, on Church street.

Miss Sadie Sibley was hostess at a lovely dinner party on Thursday evening at her home on Kennesaw avenue in honor of her sister, Miss Weldon Sibley, who leaves next week to attend a house party at The Plains, Va. The event was given as a surprise, celebrating the birthday of her sister. One of the features of the evening was a "Jack Horner pie." The supper was followed by dancing.

Miss Charlton, of Savannah, Ga., is the guest of her aunts, the Misses Howell, on Kennesaw avenue.

Miss Synthia Chappell, of Augusta, Ga., arrived Thursday and will be the guest of Miss Weldon Sibley for several days.

Misses Sadie and Weldon Sibley attended a bridge-luncheon in Atlanta on Monday given by Mrs. Rudolph Geissler in compliment to Miss Margarie Haskrus, of Richmond, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Foster and son, Albert, Jr., of Madison, Ga., are visiting relatives here.

Mrs. A. J. Gardner is in Franklin, N. C., for the summer.

Miss Sadie Sibley spent the week-end, the guest of Miss Evelyn Knox, in Atlanta.

Open-House Day At Camp Highland.

The entertainment featuring open-house day at Camp Highland on Saturday, August 22, has been set for 5 o'clock in the afternoon in order to allow those who come to camp on the 2:30 o'clock train ample time to be shown over the grounds before the performance. This performance, which is in the nature of a huge vaudeville show with many interesting stunts, dances and songs is an annual affair, usually being presented on Labor day. This summer it is given as a benefit for the Highland Fling camp year-book published every summer by members of the camp staff.

Attention is called to the fact that although the open house day this year is held on August 22, this does not mark the close of camp as it usually does. Highland will remain open through Labor day as it has every summer in its history, and reservations may be made for camp through September 7.

All friends of the camp and its campers are invited to visit Highland on Saturday and to remain for the program in the afternoon. The train leaving camp at 7 p. m. will get the crowd back into the city at 7:30 o'clock. Supper will be served before time for the train.

Mrs. Frank Pond To Honor Visitors.

Mrs. Frank B. Pond will entertain with a bridge-luncheon Saturday at her home on West Benson street, Decatur, honoring a group of out-of-town visitors, the guests of Mrs. A. M. Dunn; Misses Mary and Louis Rowland, of Birmingham, Ala., guests of Mrs John Platte; Miss Grace Link, of Abbeville, S. C., guest of Mrs. J. B. Hosmer; Mrs. M. H. Bringhan, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Larraly, of Florence, S. C., sister of Mrs. J. E. Ely.

Captain and Mrs. Saney Are Honor Guests.

On last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Brumbelow entertained about forty-five of their friends in honor of Captain and Mrs. Charles Saney, of New York, at their beautiful country home.

Many interesting games were enjoyed. C. A. Thomas, F. O. Battle and J. H. Anderson rendered several vocal selections. After a moonlight stroll to the lake named for their young daughter, Eleanor, the guests were served delicious melons under the large oaks that surround the home.

Those present were: Captain and Mrs. Saney, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. David Sheldon, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon Kirby, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Battle, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Alderman, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cowan, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Alford, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ronnyen, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Brumbelow, Misses Irma and Erline Brooks, Carrie Lazarus, Mary Thomas, Louise Thomas, Kathleen Thomas, Orma Sherman, Eleanor Brumbelow, Carl Seward, Bill Gaffney, Dixon Kirby, Jr., Billie Kithcen, John Alderman, Jr., Fred Kennedy, Jr., Mr. Johnson.

Illustrated Lecture To Be Given Tonight.

The Immaculate Conception branch of the Georgia Catholic Missionary society will sponsor an illustrated lecture, the subject of which will be "The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass," next Monday night, August 24, at 8 o'clock in the church hall. The lecture, which will be given by Rev. Harold J. Burr, will embrace both the historical and dogmatic viewpoint in this mystery of the Catholic faith and will be deeply interesting as well as instructive.

Starting with the scene of the last supper, the mystery will be traced through the centuries to the present, when the gorgeous ceremonial of the Catholic church takes one away from the world and enshrouds one with the realization of communion with the Deity.

The members of the three parishes and all friends are cordially invited. Tickets are on sale by the ladies of the Missionary society, 25c for adults and 10 for children under twelve.

Electa Chapter, O. E. S., Sponsors Box Supper.

The Electa chapter, O. E. S., sponsored a box supper on Tuesday evening, August 18, at the Red Men's wigwam, 86 Central avenue. A large selection of beautiful boxes were auctioned by Mayor Walter A. Sims, Councilmen W. B. Hartsfield and Harry York. Many interesting talks were made by Messrs. Sims, Hartsfield and York. A prize was given by S. T. Smith, being won by Mrs. E. L. Smith. Mrs. Walter A. Sims was called upon to select the most beautiful box. Mrs. Wall also gave a reading, assisted by Mrs. Sherrill of the East Atlanta chapter.

Miss Johnson Gives Lovely Club Luncheon.

One of the prettiest affairs of Thursday was the luncheon at which Miss Lutitia Johnson entertained at the Druid Hills Golf club, honoring Miss Martha Maddox and Miss Mary Middleton, who have recently returned from a year's stay abroad.

Luncheon was served on the cool, attractive terrace overlooking the swimming pool at a handsomely appointed table overlaid with a lace cover and holding as its central decoration a basket of summer flowers.

Visitors Honored At Lovely Parties.

Lovely affairs continue to be given in honor of Miss Sara Printup, of Memphis, Tenn., and Miss Dorothy Barron, of Cleveland, the guests of Miss Lillian McCormack.

A delightful event of Thursday morning was when Miss Irwin Nichols entertained at a bridge-luncheon at her home on Angier place in honor of Miss McCormack and her guests. The two honor guests were presented bridge novelties, and the prize for top score was a boudoir door knocker and the consolation was a green silk tie.

Friday Mrs. G. W. Grant will compliment these charming young visitors at a luncheon, and Friday afternoon Miss Elizabeth Steed will entertain at a bridge party for them.

Wednesday afternoon Miss Barron, Miss Printup and Miss McCormack were guests of Miss Virginia Branch at a matinee party.

Mrs. Charles Lowe Is Honor Guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Davis will entertain at a bridge-supper Friday evening at their home on Briarcliff road in Druid Hills, the occasion complimenting their sister, Mrs. Charles Lowe, of Titusville, Fla., who is their guest.

Invited to meet her are Miss Maude Couch, Mr. and Mrs. Sam DuBose, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shawtell, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ansley, Edgar Dunlap, Arch Martin and Frank Bell.

Miss Beulah Brown Is Honor Guest.

Miss Beulah Brown, of Keyser, W. Va., is the guest of Miss Elsie Jett at her home on Spring street and is being entertained at a series of social affairs.

Mrs. Thomas Connally Is Honor Guest.

Mrs. Carl Lewis will compliment her next Wednesday, August 26, with an informal spend-the-day party at her home on Clifton road in Druid Hills.

Mrs. MacDuffie Will Give Tea-Dance Party.

Mrs. Reese MacDuffie will entertain Saturday afternoon at the Biltmore tea-dance in honor of Mrs. George W. Carey, of Havana, Cuba, and Mrs. Pruitt.

Kate P. Dawson Board To Meet.

Officers' Club To Sponsor Dance at Fort McPherson

An interesting social event in military circles will be the hop given by the Officers club of the 22d infantry, at Fort McPherson, on Friday evening, to which an invitation is extended to the officers and their friends

These hops are most enjoyable affairs and are usually given fortnightly, at which many prominent members of society are in attendance. The 22d infantry orchestra will furnish the musical program for dancing.

A number of guests will motor out from Atlanta to this popular fort, which is in reality a charming suburb of the city, and has always played an important part in the history of Atlanta's social life.

Superior Autumn
FROCKS
$25

Actual Sketch from Model

TWO logical reasons why we offer you BETTER dresses now at $25. First, clearing our summer stocks early we were in a position to purchase an unusually large number of fall dresses before most stores were beginning to THINK of autumn—thus gaining substantial price concessions.

Second, to stimulate early sales now, we are willing to take an even smaller profit than usual on these first dresses and coats. Of course, you are the ones who gain. And we are glad indeed. Glad to render this service to our customers.

Dresses of SATIN and CLOTH each demonstrating how charming the new mode can be! Boleros, Flares, long tight sleeves—vivid splashes of color. All rich new colors—and plenty of black.

CLOTH DRESSES are trim and tailored or take the lines of the silk frocks to which the suppleness of Miroleen, Loraleen and Twillsheen lend themselves so gracefully.

CHICAGO & E. ILLINOIS OFFICIALS VISIT CITY

Thomas C. Powell and J. B. Ford, president and vice president respectively, of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railway, will arrive in Atlanta today on a survey of the southeast relative to traffic conditions and possibilities of this section.

They will come here from Chattanooga and will leave late Saturday for Birmingham whence they will proceed in their tour. While in Atlanta they will visit the general southern agency which they have here and which is in charge of R. G. Pierce.

Mr. Powell is a former vice president of the Erie railroad, but recently succeeded W. J. Jackson, who is now chairman of the executive committee.

Mr. Ford formerly was freight traffic manager of the Erie system, but was made vice president of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois at the same time Mr. Powell was elected president. He is in charge of traffic of the Illinois concern.

SARTAIN AND RIEHL LOSE THEIR APPEAL FOR NEW HEARING

United States Judge Robert T. Ervin Thursday denied a petition for a new trial filed by attorneys for Albert E. Sartain, former warden at the federal prison, and his friend, Lawrence Riehl, Columbus, Ohio, who were convicted in February on charges of accepting bribes for extending privileges to wealthy prisoners, according to dispatches received from Mobile.

The hearing was brief, the petition being presented by United States District Attorney Clint W. Hager, who agreed to perform that office for the defendants' attorneys. Immediately after the petition was denied the bill of exceptions of the defendants' attorneys was filed. An appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals will be taken, according to the defendants' attorneys.

Sartain and Riehl are now in Columbus under bond pending a decision on their appeal.

FOUR ARE INJURED IN CRASH BETWEEN TWO AUTOMOBILES

Four persons, including two small children, received bruises and lacerations about the body Thursday morning as the result of an automobile collision between machines driven by Mrs. L. C. Fitts, of 450 Jackson street, and a car driven by A. B. Nolen, of 22 Edgewood avenue, at the corner of Edgewood and Piedmont avenues.

The injured are: Mrs. Fitts and her two small children, Dudley J., and Lewis Fitts, Jr., and Mr. Nolen. The injuries, however, were only slight and they were taken home, where medical aid was rendered by the family physician.

The children were thrown from the automobile in which they were riding with their mother when the car driven by Mr. Nolen collided with the Fitts car. A charge of reckless driving was docketed against both parties.

TRIPPE QUALIFIES FOR COUNCIL RACE

E. Walter Trippe, candidate for city council from the first ward, has qualified for next month's primary by payment of his entrance fee, it was announced Thursday by W. J. Laney, secretary of the city democratic executive committee.

Mr. Trippe has established campaign headquarters at 324 Healey building, with D. J. Gantt as campaign manager.

He will be opposed by Councilman Sam H. Wardlaw.

G. T. Pierce, well-known Atlanta druggist, announced Thursday that he would be a candidate for the fifth ward councilmanic seat now held by Dr. W. M. Etheridge, who will not seek reelection. His entry makes a three-cornered race, as Ellis Barrett and G. W. Lindsay already have paid fees.

NEW TRAFFIC SYSTEM TO BE READY SOON

With new traffic lights already in service at three important street intersections in Atlanta's business section, and three more scheduled to be added to that list this morning, the complete new synchronized system of traffic lights, covering 32 intersections in the business section, will be installed by September 1, it was stated Thursday by R. C. Turner, city electrician.

Cables have been laid for the entire system, Mr. Turner said, and two or three new lamps will be installed every night until the entire system is ready for operation.

All lights will be controlled by a switchboard at Five Points, and all will be of the three-colored variety.

New lanterns are in service at Five Points, and at Broad and Forsyth streets on Marietta. They were to be installed on Edgewood avenue at Pryor and Ivy streets, and at Peachtree and Auburn streets by today.

HENRY WILL VISIT DENTIST NEXT TIME HE HAS TOOTHACHE

Attempting to extract his own painful and deep-rooted molar caused Henry Davis, 35-year-old negro, 262 1-2 Houston street, more misery than he had anticipated Thursday night and he moaned his regrets on the operating table at Grady hospital.

Rushed to the hospital in an ambulance hastily called by his frantic wife, he was carried into the clinic with his lower jaw locked far around on the left side of his face.

An effort by physicians to reset the jaw was met with continuous howls and it was necessary to place the negro under the influence of ether before the doctors were able to remedy the trouble.

Several hours later Davis explained that he had suffered for some time with a jaw tooth and, short of funds, he concluded to remove the offending member himself. Using the old trick of connecting his tooth to the door knob with a stout string, the jaw just gave way before the tooth, he stated.

WOMAN SEEKS WORK

A Position To Care for Children Is Desired.

Miss Lula Smith, 52 years old, formerly a resident of Marion county, Ga., has requested The Constitution to aid her in securing some position that will enable her to support herself, preferably in an orphan's home to care for children or work of a similar nature.

Miss Smith was born in Marion county and is the daughter of the late J. T. Smith, who was a member of Holt lodge, No. 174, F. & A. M., Friendship, Ga., before his death in 1873. She is alone in the world now except for a few distant relations, and since moving from Marion county she has lived in Sumter and Mitchell counties in this state, and in Alabama. She came to Atlanta last Friday and states that she intends to stay here long enough to see about securing a position of some sort. She may be reached at the Terminal hotel.

EPIPHANY PLAYERS TO PRESENT PLAY

Parish Players of the Church of the Epiphany will celebrate their first anniversary with the presentation of the well-known play, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," at 8:15 o'clock tonight at the church, corner of Cleburne avenue and Sinclair.

The production will be staged on the outdoor stage on the lawn of the church, and the cast will include 30 or more members of the congregation and their children and friends. E. P. Ennis, director of dramatics at Tech High school, assisted by his wife, will have charge of the performance.

Admission will be 25 cents, proceeds to go to the parish building fund.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS HOLDING CONVENTION

The annual meeting of the Primitive Baptists convened Thursday at Collins Springs and will continue through Sunday. Services are held daily at 11 o'clock. Elder Henry Swain, of Macon, is one of the principal speakers. The meeting opened with a large attendance. The church is near Conway station on the Marietta car line and is convenient for Atlantans who wish to attend. Communion service will be held Sunday.

Surprise Party Given at Driving Club To Visiting Merchants of Southeast

Here is shown one of the groups at the surprise party given at the Piedmont Driving club Wednesday night to visiting merchants and buyers attending "Atlanta Merchants' week," which began Monday. More than 350 persons attended the banquet, which was given by the Atlanta Merchants and Manufacturers' association. Hundreds of buyers from all parts of the southeast are in Atlanta laying in supplies of fall and winter goods. Shown in the picture, back row, left to right, are Meyer Regenstein and J. D. Robinson, members of the entertainment committee for the party; J. K. Orr, president of the Atlanta Merchants and Manufacturers' association; J. R. Little and J. J. Ragan, leading Atlanta merchants. Front row, A. C. Jones, of the E. L. Rhodes Company; Mrs. J. D. Harris and her daughter, Miss Martha Harris, of St. Petersburg, Florida.

Old Guard Plans Visit To Havana And To Florida

The Old Guard of Atlanta, headed by its commandant, W. M. Camp, Governor Clifford Walker of Georgia, Governor J. W. Martin of Florida, and their staffs, Mayor Sims, and W. R. C. Smith, president of the chamber of commerce, will leave Atlanta September 16 on a special train for Key West, from where they will sail for Cuba, arriving there September 18 for a week's visit.

Their first stop will be in Jacksonville where they will be entertained by the city and many civic organizations. Similar entertainment will be provided in St. Petersburg following which they will proceed to Key West.

Arriving at Havana at 4 o'clock the afternoon of the 18th, they will be met by a company of the Cuban army and a military band. President Machado, of Cuba, has granted special permission for the members of the party to land with their side arms and they will be in full uniform. He has also announced his intentions of giving a reception for them at the presidential palace the night following their arrival.

On Monday, September 21, the party will leave Havana by special train for Matanzas where they will visit the famous Bellamar caves, Yurumi valley, the monastery of Mont Surratt and other places of especial interest in that section.

Following this they will return to Havana. Commander Camp states that no definite program has been arranged for the remainder of the week but he has been informed that the chambers of commerce in various cities and a number of civic organizations are to entertain the party.

Friday, September 25, the party will sail for home, visiting as many cities as possible en route. Plans have been completed for a stop-over in Miami on September 26, where they will be the guest of the city. A number of other invitations have been received for a visit and Commander Camp says that they will accept as many of these as posisble.

The Gate City guard was formed in 1851 and since has been merged into the national guad. The Old Guard was formed about 20 years ago for the purpose of perpetuating the old name. It is a social and military organization composed of old members of the Gate City guard and their descendants, and its membership comprises some of the most prominent men in this section.

W. M. Camp, the commander of the Old Guard, has been connected with this organization for the past 40 years.

NO ORDERS TO CUT GASOLINE PRICES RECEIVED IN CITY

No orders to cut the price of gasoline have been received by managers of filling stations in Atlanta, it was announced Thursday night. Station managers stated such instructions would come from headquarters of the oil companies, and would be relayed through managers.

No communications relative to a proposed cut have been received since the slash of 3 cents a gallon which became effective last Tuesday a week ago. Dealers could not say whether a reduction is contemplated in the near future.

CHILD IS TREATED FOR KEROSENE DOSE

James Leming 18 months old, of 54 Brotherton street, was carried to Grady hospital Thursday afternoon after swallowing a small quantity of kerosene which was being used for cleaning purposes in the residence.

A stomach pump was used and the child was removed to his home.

The infant found a bottle of kerosene on the floor of the home and had swallowed a quantity of its contents before the mother noticed the actions of the child. His condition is not serious.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR A. A. BORN TODAY

Funeral services for A. A. Born, of Rex, who died at a private hospital here Wednesday night, will be held at 9 o'clock this morning from the chapel of the Blanchard-Gartrell company. Rev. H. C. Dodson will officiate and interment will be in the Conyers cemetery.

He is survived by his widow; four sons, C. T. Born, of Kentucky; J. H. and J. J. Born, of Atlanta, and A. P. Born, of Rex; four daughters, Mrs. P. F. Mitchell, of Morrow, Ga.; Mrs. P. A. Dodson, of Manchester, Ga., and Mrs. J. R. Leach, of Atlanta; and Miss Alpha Born, of Rex, and two brothers, P. M. Born, of Atlanta, and I. J. Born, of East Lake.

Pretty Siamese Twins Prove Ability in Aquatic Sports

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

When Siamese twins, born joined together, go in swimming and one sinks does the other keep her up or vice versa?

Here's the answer—one keeps her feet on the bottom while the other splashes around, and they both have a good time.

These famous twins who are filling an engagement at Loew's Grand theater were photographed by Tracy Mathewson as they were actually in swimming in Mooney's lake on East Pace's Ferry road Thursday. This is the first photograph ever made of them in a real lake.

Daisy and Violet Hilton, the twins who are now 16 years old, enjoyed their swim to the utmost Thursday—the utmost being just twice as much as anybody else could enjoy a swim and that on one of the hottest days of the year, too.

HOSE AND LUMBER BOUGHT BY CITY FOR WATERWORKS

Four hundred feet of hose, amounting to $520, and $1,225 worth of lumber, all for use of the water department, was purchased Thursday by the purchasing committee of city council.

The hose, which is of the Arrow brand, was bought from the Fabric Fire Hose company, of which Mrs. M. C. Rafter is southern manager, and the lumber contract was awarded the Randall Lumber company.

The committee also bought three cars of gasoline at 14 cents a gallon from the Wofford Oil company.

WORKMAN IS INJURED BY FALLING SCANTLING

Allen Turpin, 28, who lives on Moreland avenue, Thursday morning was taken to Grady hospital suffering concussion of the brain from injuries received when a heavy scantling fell on his head from a scaffold underneath which he was working. His condition is reported serious.

Turpin was employed by the Atlanta Oak Flooring company, 613 Glennwood avenue, and was at work in the plant, handling heavy timbers at the time of the accident.

Other workmen were above him handling a heavy piece of scantling when the timber slipped from their grasp and struck Turpin.

SAVANNAH REPORTS NEW ANDERSON CLUE

Savannah, Ga., August 20.—(AP)—Another "Dutch" Anderson clue has been reported to the Savannah detective department by an automobile mechanic who tells a story of two men and a woman in an automobile—one of the men being referred to by his companions as "Dutch"—having him repair their car on a road near Savannah and then speeding away down the Florida highway. One of the chief laments of the mechanic is that the party "trfied out" the car after he had finished his work and it worked so well that they sped away without paying him.

The mechanic reported to the detective department that yesterday afternoon he was walking in the vicinity of the Ogeechee road when he was accosted by a man who inquired if he could repair an automobile. The pair went to Garrard avenue, near its intersection with the Ogeechee road, and the mechanic began work on a roadster in which the trio were traveling. He told the police one of the men was referred to as "Dutch."

The mechaic gave the travelers some advice as to how to get to Florida, upon being asked if there was another route except that via Lane's bridge. The repair work being finished, the travelers "tried out" the car with the result that the mechanic was left standing in the road as the car disappeared in the direction of Florida.

GEORGIA MAN KILLED UNDER FREIGHT TRAIN

Columbus, Ga., August 20.—The mangled body of Carl Bailey, 20, of this city, was found on the tracks at Opelika, Ala., 28 miles from here, shortly after a Central of Georgia freight train had passed, according to advices reaching Columbus. The body was severed and it was believed that he fell from the train under the wheels.

MILL MEN PREDICT BIG FALL BUSINESS

Optimistic reports concerning fall business and declarations by many representatives of textile mills, brick manufacturers and other state industries that they had received unprecedented orders during the past 30 days, featured a conference of leading manufacturers Wednesday with officials of the Georgia Railway and Power company. The conference was held to talk over the hydro-electric power conservation drive as an outgrowth of the unprecedented summer drouth.

Georgia faces an era of industrial prosperity this fall that will run hand in hand with the wonderful impetus given agricultural Georgia by bumper crops raised this year was the consensus of opinion among the industrial leaders.

The reason for the spurt in business was ascribed to increased interest in the south, bringing new residents into the many communities, larger and more valuable crops and a general outlook of optimism. Retailers are said to be stocking up their stores for the first time since the big slump in business in 1921.

Among companies represented at the conference were: The Standard Gas Products company, The Atlantic Steel company, The Exposition Cotton Mills, Fulton Bag and Cotton mills, Chattahoochee Brick company, Pell City Brick company, Murray company, Coca-Cola company, Foote & Davies, Southern Cotton Oil company, Bibb Manufacturing company, of Porterdale, and Crown Cotton mills, of Dalton.

MRS. ELLA PASS TO BE LAID TO REST AT BETHEL CHURCH

Funeral services for Mrs. Ella Pass, of 15 Berean avenue, who died at Grady hospital Wednesday night as the result of injuries received when she jumped from a car driven by her husband following an explosion, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Bethel church, near Smyrna, Ga. The Rev. Langley will officiate and interment will be in the churchyard. The funeral party will leave the residence at 1 o'clock.

Wednesday night Mrs. Pass and her husband were returning from a visit to her son in Smyrna, Ga., and when they reached Marietta road, between Bolton and Inman Yards, the car was suddenly enveloped in smoke and it is said that she jumped out, fracturing her skull. She died later t the Grady.

In addition to her husband, the survivors include her mother, Mrs. Mary Mosteller, of Canton, Ga.; two sons, W. D. Pass, of Smyrna, and E. G. Pass, of Atlanta; a brother, B. T. Mosteller, of Canton; a sister, Mrs. Mary Smith, of Canton, and a daughter, Mrs. W. E. Waters, of Atlanta.

NEW WORD COINED IN RADIO PARLANCE

Washington, August 20.—(AP)—A new word—kilocycle—gradually is taking the place of the word "wave length" in the vocabulary of radio fans.

The department of commerce explained in a statement today that the marking or logging of dials is found to have certain advantages in the new term kilocycle, which means frequency or the number of waves per second.

"Just as a musician," the department said, "can vary the number of oscillations of his vocal chords, but cannot control the length of the sound waves, so a radio station can vary the number of oscillations per second, and let the wave lengths be what they will.

To obtain the frequency when the wave length in meters is known divided 300,000 by the wave length in meters. The answer is in kilocycles. Likewise the other way round, divide 300,000 by the number of kilocycles to get meters.

NOTED SCREEN STAR SURVIVES OPERATION

New York, August 20.—(AP)—Marguerite Clark, a screen and stage favorite a few years ago, is at the Fifth Avenue hospital here recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

Just after returning from a trip abroad with her husband, Harry Williams, she was rushed to the hospital Tuesday. Her sister, Cora Clark, and her husband said she is entirely out of danger, though it may be three weeks before she can leave for home in Louisiana.

BY MARY HAWKINS STROBHAR.

Miss Evelyn Lovett has studied and conquered two of the most appealing arts—dancing and dramatics. So closely combined, the efflux of one reflects the charm and grace of the other, and an underlying current of smoothness flows from a joining of the two, engendering a perfect effect and answering the most daring imaginations. How much more visionary the theme of a story is made through the grace of bodily motion. So lifelike and commonplace will thought characters become by the aid of a simple jesture, the turn of the head, a fleeting movement of the hands, or the swaying of the body! Each art is the true complement of the other.

Remarkable Talent.

Miss Lovett has obtained a remarkable degree of perfection in these two arts. Following the inspiration and ambition born in her high-school days, by the taking of a part in one of the school plays, Miss Lovett has studied, worked and lived with these arts. Beginning her training under Mrs. Blanch Potter-Spiker, she later assisted Mrs. Spiker in her work. Last year Miss Lovett studied dancing and dramatics in Chicago under Libushka Bartusek, making still further progress and showing more marked ability.

Special Productions.

In the fall she made a tour of the middle western states on the same program with Madam Sturkow-Ryder, talented and famous pianist. Miss Lovett's part of the program consisted in giving one-act plays, special dancing and dramatics of old English ballads. In one number Madam Sturkow-Ryder accompanied Miss Lovett on the piano to the rendition of "King Arthur of Sicily," a most delightful one-act playlet. A charming compliment was paid Miss Lovett by Madam Sturkow-Ryder, who is a decidedly well-known pianist and composer, in the suite of songs, "My Neglected Garden," which she wrote and dedicated to Miss Lovett.

Miss Lovett's work has a finished charm. Her voice, delightfully pleasant to the ear, is vibrant, and at the same time shaded to the slightest meaning. Her graceful body is a counterpart of the inflections of her voice. One art is equally as fascinating as the other, and you can't tell whether it is her power of dramatic or her dancing and ease of bodily movement that is most alluring.

Lives In Atlanta.

Atlanta has the honor of claiming Miss Lovett for her own. She has always lived here, with the exception of the time she has spent away studying, and is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Lovett, and a graduate of Randolph-Macon college.

During this summer Miss Lovett is instructor and director of dancing and dramatics at the Decatur Fine Arts club's summer art school. She teaches interpretive and ballet dancing and embraced in dramatics there are play producing, pantomimes and one-act plays. The summer art school affords the most efficient and splendid opportunity for those interested in art, at the lowest possible rates.

Delightful Programs.

Miss Lovett has given from time to time the most inspiring programs in Chicago. Her art has been displayed at the "Three Arts Club" and the woman's club there. One of her most attractive programs was given in the palatial and spacious home of Mrs A. Starr Best, in Evanston, Ill., the founder of the Drama League of America. On this program was the magnificent but tragic playet, "On the Battlements," written by Kate Edwards, of Atlanta, finished portrait painter and noted artist and aunt of Miss Lovett. In this reading perhaps more than in any other that Miss Lovett gives her dramatic ability is forcibly seen. Afforded such a scoop as this reading presents, Miss Lovett gives free range to her powers of vibrant expression, thus attaining a wonderful portrayal and interpretation of this interesting playlet.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR

So many thousands of women have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that there is hardly a neighborhood in any city, town or hamlet in this country wherein some woman has not found health in this good old-fashioned root and herb remedy. If you are suffering from some womanly ill, why don't you try it? For a great many years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been restoring sick women of America to health and strength.—(adv.)

Miss Kuhlman Weds Carl John Bliem At Lovely Ceremony

An interesting wedding of Thursday was that of Miss Elsie Kuhlman and Carl John Bliem, which took place at high noon at the Lutheran Church of The Redeemer, the Rev. Dr. Charles P. MacLaughlin performing the ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated throughout. Southern smilax, palms and pink and white gladioli being used. Vases of the gladioli were placed on each side of the altar, along with seven-branched cathedral candelabra, in which burned tall white tapers. In front of the altar was a white satin kneeling pillow and at each side of the chancel were baskets filled with pink and white gladioli tied with white satin ribbon.

A lovely and appropriate musical program was rendered before and during the marriage service. W. A. Karst played the organ and C. E. Seng played the violin. Just preceding the entrance of the bridal party, Mrs. A. S. Crumbley sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly."

Bridal Party.

The bridal party entered to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin. Miss Dorothy Kuhlman, maid of honor, entered first, wearing a gown of sand-colored georgette trimmed with bands of lanvin green georgette with large picture hat of the same shade. She wore a corsage bouquet of Ophelia roses and valley lilies.

Next came little Miss Frances Kuhlman, flower girl, whose frock was of shell pink georgette. She wore a bandeau of the same shade in her hair and carried a basket of sweetheart roses.

The bride entered with her father, Walter Scott Kuhlman, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Dr. Emile C. Bliem.

Lovely Gowns.

Mrs. Kuhlman, mother of the bride, wore a gown of blue georgette, with hat to match and corsage of pink roses, and Mrs. Herman Bliem, the groom's mother, wore a model of black beaded georgette with a large black velvet hat. Her corsage was of Ophelia roses.

The bride's book was kept by Mrs. Stanley Morgan and Miss Mamie Bliem.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Kuhlman. Mr. Bliem is the eldest son of Mrs. Herman Bliem and the late Herman Bliem. He has for a number of years been connected with the Hartford Fire Insurance company.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bliem left for a motor trip to the mountains of western North Carolina. They will be at home to their friends after September 16, at 42 Poplar circle.

Authentic Modes of the Fall and Winter Season in Coats of Superior Qualities of Fabric and of Fur

At Prices Unusually Low

Here is a frank, truthful statement that will interest every woman who expects to buy a coat. While coats of such quality and style as these could not be sold at extravagantly "reduced prices," there are reasons why one may buy now at substantial savings. Early selection of fabrics and furs and early placing of orders enable us to offer a more varied display and at distinctly lower prices than will be possible later in the season.

Many of these splendid materials are already exhausted and prices have actually advanced so that the same or similar coats will cost $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00 more if bought later.

Youthful sport coat of beautiful imported novelty in blue and tan, with collar of natural raccoon. $59.50

Distinctive Youthful Styles

Featuring new lines in saucy back flares, side flares, all-around flares. The smartest of little swagger coats, sport coats and the more dressy models.

Mostly styles for the very young one might say at first glance—but no, and much better—there are styles for the young and styles that bring back lines of youth to the more mature!

The New Materials And Colors

With fabrics so lovely of texture and color, no wonder designers have produced such charming modes! Some favored materials are needlepoint, Venise, Velsheen, Lustrosa, Kashoretta, Chamsorette, Ormandale, Velvette. Furs are much in favor and most of the coats are trimmed with lustrous furs in fox, squirrel, lynx, skunk, fitch, wolf, raccoon and oppossum.

The colors are perhaps the most varied and beautiful ever shown in coats taking their names from the birds whose plumage shades are reproduced so effectively. Greys, sea swallow and falcon. Blues, jay and grackle head. Greens, toucan and Amazon. Browns, wren, plover, cuckoo, dove, manakin. Purple, queenbird and sylphtail. And, of course, the blacks and navy blues.

New York, August 20.—The quietness of the cotton market today suggested a general disposition to wait for the approaching government crop report, the price of December contracts ranging from 23.51 to 23.58 and closing at 23.53. The general market closed steady at net declines of 5 to 7 points.

The opening was 3 to 9 points lower, active positions sold 7 to 10 points below yesterday's closing figures in early trading, owing to relatively easy Liverpool cables and the trend toward increased estimates of the crop. Another private midmonth report estimated the condition at 64.1 and the indicated yield 14,400,000 bales. This was considered largely responsible for the declines in Liverpool and some of the local selling.

The market steadied as prices approached the 23¼-cent level for October and 23 cents for January, however, and prices rallied at midday on reports of very high temperatures in the south. After the decline to 23.26 for October prices advanced to 23.31, while January sold up to 23.09 on covering. The last prices were 4 or 5 points off from the best.

A little more hedge selling was reported here during the day, but it seemed to be about offset by trade buying. It was claimed that enough cotton has been bought for early new crop shipments to absorb current receipts.

TRADING IS DULL AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, August 20.—The cotton market today was the dullest experienced recently. Trading was extremely narrow and price fluctuations did not exceed eight points. Opening four to ten points down mainly because of a much lower Liverpool than due the market rallied a few points right after the call, but eased off again to about the opening figure.

After these early fluctuations the market did not move more than a few points either way all day. Constructive sentiment was held in check by fears of a large crop indication by the government Monday and all enterprises on the part of these bearishly inclined was prevented by the continued dry and hot weather. The close showed net losses for the day of seven to ten points. At the start Liverpool was much lower than due and the local market opened ten points down for October and four to six points down on later months. The opening price of 22.65 for October remained the low level of the entire day.

Prices rallied a few points right after the opening call, October advancing to 22.72, December to 22.84 and January to 23.01, or three points below the previous close. These prices remained the highs of the day for the entire session. Later in the day December made a low of 22.86 and still later January made a low of 22.94, or 10 to 11 points below the previous close. Prices closed a few points above the lows.

Two more private reports were issued during the day and one making the condition 64.1 and the crop 14,400,000 bales and the other put the condition at 61.7 and the crop at 13,588,000 bales. The average private reports issued for the half month makes condition 63.2 and the yield 14,206,000 bales.

Behind the Scenes In the Business World

By John T. Flynn

New York, August 20.—The iron and steel industry played a prominent part in the shift of our trade balance in June, when imports exceeded exports by $2,000,000. The level of iron and steel shipments from abroad has been rising since last November and indications are developing that the high water mark may soon be, if it has not already been reached.

During the first half of the current year imports showed a 70 per cent gain over the corresponding period a year ago. Two-thirds of the 487,000 tons brought in during the January-June period consisted of pig iron, ferroalloys and scrap, however, and during June, when imports jumped one-fifth above the May figure, practically all of the gain was accounted for by these items. Recent increases were also recorded in structural shapes, rails and tubular products, but the incoming ferromanganese, manganese metal and alloy was less than one-half of the May imports.

That the inward movement has been increasing in pace recently is evident from the totals for the year ended June, 1925. Imports for the 12 months amounted to about 750,000 tons, which represented about one-third more than for the June 1923-24 total.

Manufacturers of iron and steel are asking when the flood of imports will recede. The outlook for the fall and winter is far from discouraging. Imports are now coming in some volume from Belgium, India, Germany, the United Kingdom and France. These countries have passed through the reconstruction or readjustment periods, as the case may be, and find themselves with expanded manufacturing facilities at a moment when world buying is at a minimum. Russia is virtually out of the market, if present purchases can be compared with prewar. Financial stress in France, the unemployment crisis in England, the Stinnes collapse—all these are but symptoms indicating that consumption of goods is at low ebb in Europe.

Moreover, the continental markets are not bolstered up by orders from colonies or colonized territories, as was the case prior to 1914. Consequently, order-hungry Europe turns its opportunist eyes to America for business.

But currency stabilization has been achieved, readjustment of individual companies has been well completed and as conditions become more normal, world consumption will increase. Europe will once more sell to spheres of special influence and plants which now turn to the United States as a temporary market wil be occupied with other business.

As living conditions abroad improve, wages and consequently material prices will increase. Broadly speaking, it may be said that the long-time trend of prices in Europe is upward, whereas that in the United States is downward. Any movement which tends to bring a closer parity in world prices will act as a damper to shut off imports here.

These same factors lead to the belief that the fall may hold encouragement for exporters. During the twelve months ended June, 1924, we exported some 2,000,000 tons of iron and steel; during the twelve months ended in June of this year, we sold only 1,650,000 tons abroad. June exports also show a drop as compared with June of the previous year; 136,000 tons as against 163,000 tons in June, 1924.

But a summer decline in export trade is to be expected and, while the current downswing is a little greater than usual, there are the foregoing reasons for expecting a sizeable increase in fall sales to foreign countries. There are buyers in Europe who would purchase goods here today if financing could be arranged and some of the necessary arrangements may possibly be made during the next few months.

AMERICAN SMELTING: The combination of high prices for non-ferrous metals and operations close to capacity has resulted in earnings thus far this year well in excess of those achieved in 1924 and present indications are that net for 1925 will be in the neighborhood of $25 per share on the 609,980 shares now outstanding after all charges except writeoffs for depreciation and depletion. For the year ending December 31, 1924, $22.50 per share was earned before depreciation and depletion writeoffs of $9.70 per share. During the past ten years American Smelting has paid out only $1 in common dividends for each $4.50 earned and this has resulted in building up of an unusually strong cash position.

CERRO DE PASCO: A combination of adverse conditions which prevailed during the first six months this year prevented normal volume of copper production by this company, its output being only 32,000,000 pounds as against 45,000,000 for corresponding period of 1924. For first half this year silver output averaged 1,200,000 ounces monthly so that earnings before writeoffs were sufficient to cover dividend requirements. A material change for better is anticipated in latter half when copper production is expected to exceed 50,000,000 pounds or double that of corresponding period last year. Financially the company is very strong and there are no capital obligations other than the 1,122,662 shares of CDP now outstanding.

Traders Believe Wild Upward Bulges in High-Priced Specialties Are Now Passed; Independents and Standard Oils Participate in Recovery of These Issues.

New York, August 20.—The action of the high-priced specialties both in yesterday's market and during the early dealings today indicates, according to the opinion of some traders, that the wild upward bulges in these issues are passed for the time being at least. Mack Trucks opened with an overnight loss of 8 points and others in this class also recorded initial losses. In some instances the early losses were partially recovered but the stocks did not display the same signs of confidence on the constructive side as has been the case recently. It is evident that the short interest in these shares has been considerably reduced if not eliminated entirely.

Because of the action of the recent favorites traders gave their attention to the stocks which have been behind the market of late. As a group the oils which have been under pressure for more than a month made the best showing today. This was very much in line with expectations as it was predicted that a better tone would prevail in these issues as soon as the mid-continent crude price reduction was out of the way. This cut was announced on Tuesday and since then oil stocks have moved up from 2 to 6 points or more.

Both the independent issues and the Standard Oils participated in the rise. Regarding the advance, however, the belief prevails that the rise is due entirely to a running in of the short interest prior to the week-end holiday. It is not believed that the expected fall boom in the oils is already under way. The short interest is largely due to heavy selling prior to the recent price reductions.

Steels and coppers also have lagged behind the market of late, but are now receiving more attention from the speculative element due to more favorable conditions in these industries. The publication of figures showing a further drop in surplus stocks of copper metal in July resulted in some copper shares advancing to new high records for the year. Operations in the steel industry are increasing.

The sugar stocks have been weak for some time past due to the low prices prevailing for both the raw and refined products. Prices have moved upward during the past few days and local sugar interests are more optimistic regarding the condition of the market during the remainder of the year. This accounts for the firmer tone in this group of issues.

Motors were again heavy today, especially Chandler, which broke to new low records for the year. The selling was based upon a rumor that the dividend may be passed as a result of the recent cuts in motor car prices which are curtailing profits. Bankers closely affiliated with the company sent out word today that the selling was ill advised and that the company earnings thus far this year are more than double the annual dividend requirements at the present rate.

The statement of earnings of the railroad systems for July will start to make their appearance during the next few days. According to advance information received in Wall street, most of the reports are expected to show substantial increases in net income compared with July last year.

International Nickel is one of the low-priced specialties which has been taken in hand and bid up rather sharply by prominent interests in the street. The recent activity and advance on this stock is based upon reports circulated in commission house circles of pending favorable developments. A special meeting of the board of directors is scheduled for August 31 and, according to Wall street information, it is expected that dividends at the rate of 50 cents a share quarterly will be paid on the common stock.

UTILITIES DROP IN CURB TRADING

New York, August 20.—(AP)—Widespread irregularity in price movement again characterized today's curb market, oils gathered strength in sympathy with the rally in those issues on the "big board;" Humble Oil, Ohio, Sun, Standard Oil of Kentucky and Vacuum showed net gains of one to two points. Lago, the most active issue, closed unchanged at 4 7-8.

Heavy trading in Motor Meter, which closed 1 5-8 higher at 42 3-8, was one of the features of the industrial list. Rubbers again were strong, Milder advancing 2 1-2 points to 182, and Norfolk Tire crossing 19 to a new high record on publication of a balance sheet showing a strong current asset position. Electric Refrigeration issues were again active under the leadership of Kelvinator, which advanced over a point to 41 3-4. Pathe and St. Regis Paper fell back sharply.

Reactionary tendencies predominated in the public utility group, with American Light and Traction, Associated Gas and Electric, Power Corporation of New York and Middle West Utilities showing net losses of a point or more. Western Power developed independent strength.

Except for a drop of over four points in Engineers Gold, there were few changes of importance in the mining group.

New York, August 20.—(AP)—Revival of activity and strength in the oil shares following a protracted decline which carried many of them close to their low levels of the year, was the outstanding feature of today's irregular stock market. Coppers and steels were also well bought, but motors were again reactionary, Mack Trucks breaking 13 points to 218.

Except for the sharp reduction in crude oil production last week there was nothing in the day's news to account for the sudden outburst of activity in the oils. Active short covering in those issues is believed to have been based in part on the belief that no further reductions in crude or gasoline prices were likely, except minor adjustments to meet prevailing prices of leading producers and refiners. The Pan-American issues, Marland, Atlantic Refining, Barnsdal A, General Petroleum, Pacific, Philips, Royal Dutch and Standard Oils of California and New Jersey all showed net gains of 1 to 2 points.

American Smelting continued to lead the advance in the copper group by touching a new high record at 111. Kennecott and American Zinc preferred showed net gains of 1 and 1⅞ points, respectively. A stiffening tendency for copper, zinc and lead prices has inspired the recent buying of these issues.

Spectacular advances were again recorded by some of the high-priced issues. Havana Electric soared 14 points to a record top at 220, closing just below the high United States Cast Iron Pipe jumped 12 points to 177 and also maintained most of its gains. General Electric moved up nearly 6 points to a new record top at 329½. Savage Arms climbed 7½ points to 68 and then settled back to 65½.

United States Steel common again crossed 123 but encountered large selling orders around that level and eased to 122 5-8, up 5-8 on the day. Westinghouse Airbrake moved up nearly 4 points to a record top at 141, but lost about half of its gain. United States Industrial Alcohol responded to the announcement of alcohol prices by advancing to 89 3-4, slipping back later to 88 1-2 for a net gain of 2 1-2 on the day. Loews', Inc., was run up over 2 points to a new high record at 34 in anticipation of an increase in the annual dividend from $2 to $3 next month.

Net gains of 2 points or more also were recorded by American Express, Republics, Consolidated Cigar, Crucible Steel, Sloss Sheffield, Universal Pipe and Worthington Pump.

White Motors broke over 4 points to 97 3-4 and then rallied slightly, while Fisher Body, Martin Parry, Moon Motors and Willys-Overland preferred fell back a point or more.

Rails moved within rather narrow and irregular limits, although St. Louis Southwestern, Seaboard Air Line common, "Katy" common and Kansas City Southern preferred broke through their previous high prices of the year.

Call money ruled unchanged at 4 per cent. Time money rates were slightly easier, 60 to 90-day funds being quoted at 4 to 4 3-8 instead of 4 1-4 to 4 1-2, with corresponding reductions in the longer maturities. Commercial paper rates held steady.

Except for 10-point rallies in Norwegian and Danish kroner, which ruled around 18.68 and 23.04 cents, respectively, fluctuations in the foreign exchange were extremely narrow and irregular. Demand sterling ruled steady around $4.85 3-8, with French francs at 4.68 1-2 cents.

ADDITION OF PENN PUBLIC SYSTEM

Associated Gas and Electric Company has just completed arrangements for the addition to its system of the Pennsylvania Electric Corporation properties, long known as the Penn Public System, covering approximately one-sixth of the state of Pennsylvania and serving over 350 communities with a total estimated population of 875,000.

Associated Gas and Electric Company, a New York Corporation formed in 1906, and its subsidiary and affiliated companies, including the Penn Public System, own, control or operate all the properties shown on the map above supplying electric light and power, gas and miscellaneous service to over 900 communities in 11 leading eastern States and the City of Manila. The total estimated population served is 2,000,000; the number of consumers is in excess of 300,000.

POWER RESOURCES

Power resources and transmission equipment are the backbone of an electric property. The properties include hydro-electric and steam generating power stations with over 325,000 H.P. installed capacity; 2,500 miles of high tension transmission lines with additional lines under construction. Gas plants in the system have a daily capacity of 4,535,000 cu. ft. and over 300 miles of gas mains.

The Pennsylvania Electric acquisition brings into the Associated System the Clarion River and Youghiogheny hydro-electric projects with 48,000 H.P. present installed capacity and steam generating stations having installed capacity of over 140,000 H.P., several of which are located at mouths of coal mines owned by the Company.

GROWTH IN EARNINGS

The various properties have made large strides in recent years both in the development of their territories and in operating efficiency. Gross earnings have increased nearly 50% since 1920 and net earnings have more than doubled. The geographical distribution of these properties and the diversity in urban and semi-rural business are significant factors of stability. Of the net earnings for the 12 months ended May 31, 1925, 80% was derived from electric light and power operations. The total investment of the various operating properties is upwards of $175,000,000.

MANAGEMENT

The Associated properties are supervised by The J. G. White Management Corporation, which has a long successful experience in the management of public utilities in various sections of the United States, including the state in which the recently added Pennsylvania property is located. The Associated companies enjoy excellent relations with their consumers. A majority of the 23,000 stockholders of the companies are customers of the various properties.

The broad expanse, important power resources and distribution facilities of the Associated Gas and Electric System, and its steady growth both in physical property and earnings have been attained through a conservative financial structure comprising securities of established investment merit.

The Company is now offering rights to its stockholders in connection with a new security, the warrants for which include new common stock and rights to purchase additional common stock. Further information regarding the securities of the Company will be supplied on request.

FOREIGN ISSUES LEAD BOND LIST

New York, August 20.—(AP)—Coincident with a marked expansion in the volume of trading, the bond market made further headway today under the leadership of United States and foreign government obligations and some of the railroad and oil company liens. Slightly easier rates for time money stimulated buying of Liberty bonds and other investment securities.

The growing belief that other foreign nations will fall in line with Belgium in negotiating settlements of the war debts to the United States had a tonic influence on European bonds. French 8s moved up fractionally to a new high price for the year above 105 and increased activity was noted in the French railroad and municipal issues. United Kingdom 5 1-2s of 1929 established a new top price, although no change was made in the English bank rate as has been expected in some quarters.

A revival of activity in United States government securities was based partly on the easier credit situation and partly on reports that the September financing of the treasury would be arranged on a lower interest basis. Gains in some of the issues ran to half a point with a turnover of more than $1,500,000 in the Liberty fourth 4 1-4s.

Following the oversubscription of $25,000,000 international telephone issue, the new bonds commanded a premium of more than three points above the offering price of 99 when they were listed on the stock exchange. Buyers were attracted by the convertible feature, providing for an exchange next year at 125 into shares which are now selling around 133. High grade railroad bonds such as Northern Pacific 5's were in better demand today than semi-speculative issues, some of which lost ground on profit-taking. Skelly and Sinclair obligations led an advance in the oils apparently influenced more by declining crude production than by additional gasoline price cuts.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letters.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, August 20.—The market was subjected to many conflicting movements during the afternoon. There were some sharp breaks in leading stocks, but they were balanced by just as sharp gains in other sections. The early afternoon was marked by a sharp recovery in the steel stocks and in some of the rails with Southern railway making a new high price of 103¼. The whole market demonstrated that while the amount of profit-taking was increasing, a good demand still existed for stocks.

PYNCHON & CO.

New York, August 20.—The outstanding feature in today's trading was the ability of the market to withstand heavy selling pressure. We see no change in the speculative situation and continue to believe that irregularity will prevail for at least several days before any decisive movement is recorded in the main body of stocks.

Cotton Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

New Orleans, August 20.—Cotton prices averaged a few points under yesterday's finals, but pressure was not heavy at any time and the closing was steady. Excessive high temperatures in all parts of the belt were the sustaining influences, though the trade as a whole did not apparently attach much importance to them owing to the official forecast of unsettled and cooler weather in the northwest and northeastern sections.

The market is not likely to move much either way between now and the bureau unless there is a radical change in temperatures. Indications at the moment are for the more favorable weather.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, August 20.—The market acts as if it had discounted an increase of perhaps half a million bales in the crop indication, but was still rather uncertain as to the showing of next Monday's report and was waiting for the actual figure or for some fresh incentive in other directions. Technically speaking, the market is still probably short; the belief in lower prices under the weight of the early movement was almost unanimous; trade demand is not active but seems sufficient to absorb immediate offerings from the new crop; and we can hardly help feeling that the resistance shown by the market around the 23.50 level may foreshadow an advance should there be any fresh bullish development.

H. & B. BEER.

New Orleans, August 20.—As yet the cotton market shows no decided tendency, for while private crop estimates are being raised about 500,000 to 1,000,000 bales compared with prospects of two weeks ago, when the government forecast a yield of 13,566,000 bales, the continuance of hot, dry weather inland, especially in Texas, serves to sustain values. Week-end statistics tomorrow are likely to be bullish as to spinners' takings, but probably bearish as to the week's in sight. Mill takings for the week will run against 98,000 last year, were 170,000 last week. Whereas the week's in sight will compare with 80,000 one year ago, whereas it was 112,000 last week.

JOHN F. CLARK & CO.

New York, August 20.—Irregularity marked the opening this morning. Then one after another the industrial favorites turned downward until at the end of the first hour a general appearance of weakness was given. The persistent buying of two groups, however, served to restrain promiscuous selling in the rest of the market. These two were the coppers and the oils, the same groups in fact which stood out prominently yesterday. The buying movement in steel did not get under way until later. In the case of the oils confidence was restored by the statement of production, published before the opening. The indicated reduction in output naturally encouraged a belief that the latest series of price reductions in crude and gasoline will end abruptly. It is confidently stated in quarters, having the best opportunity to know, that a large short interest has again accumulated in many parts of the list.

As long as advances are predicted upon actual earnings with almost certain prospects of being maintained, if not improved it would seem inadvisable to enter into commitments on the short side of the market. A part from other considerations such as earnings, present and prospective carloadings, mergers and dividend possibilities and the usual factors of speculative purport, the rails at the present time, are apparently assured of the powerful support of important banking interests, actuated by the necessity of re-establishing confidence in this class of securities as safe channels for the inflow of capital.

C. P. ELLIS & CO.

New Orleans, August 20.—The market was more or less stagnated today. No important market movement seems likely until the forthcoming bureau report is out of the way. Regardless of the latter, we feel that the crop promises a sufficiency, and we think the trade will not follow any advance, but will pursue the policy of buying on a scale down.

PYNCHON & CO.

New York, August 20.—The market opened moderately active and easier with the list suffering net losses of 3 to 9 points on selling attributed to the lower cables than were due and the bearish view taken of the estimate of the crop by a southern crop authority.

The report of a threatened shortage of electric power in the south because of drouth, combined with the detailed weather reports which showed very high eastern belt temperatures tended to bring in a little buying during the noon hour.

More hedge selling was reported than for sometime particularly from Texas points. There was also some liquidation on the increased estimates of the crop but the market evidently was supported by trade buying on scale down orders. There was no fresh feature during the afternoon, prices ruled steady slightly above the 23½c level for December contracts.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, August 20.—The cotton market continues quiet while it awaits decisive action on the part of the trade. The extremely hot, dry weather in the south continues to force the crop to early maturity; it must be cutting down the Texas yield, but this is more than offset by the extreme heat in the eastern belt destroying perhaps the last possibility of serious weevil damage. With weevil activities controlled, how much cotton will be made is impossible to determine. Our market view of buying on easiness and selling on strength continues.

A. A. HOUSMAN & CO.

New York, August 20.—Today's cotton market was only a dull repetition of yesterday's quiet session. Predictions of showers and cooler for the entire belt tomorrow counteracted the bullish influence of excessive temperatures now prevailing and the market closed at a loss of a few points. Contracts wanted by the trade here and in New Orleans appear greater on price recessions than selling pressure at the moment.

Grain Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

Chicago, August 20.—WHEAT: There being no stimulating news in wheat except the small receipts, the market has been lifeless, and characterized by a poor buying power rather than by any undue pressure. There is no probability whatever of any increased movement of winter wheat to the Chicago market as Kansas City is selling at Chicago prices and St. Louis 2 to 3 cents higher. The only chance for replenishing elevator stock here rests with spring wheat.

COARSE GRAINS: Receipts of corn running around 250 cars daily and are proving a weight on the market, which has no immediate motive for reviving broad interest. Some of the selling today had the appearance of elevator account. We think the possibility of an upturn is greater than any further declines.

PROVISIONS: There was a continuation of the investment demand seen yesterday, but realizing sales increased and early demand was short lived.

WEATHER FORECAST FOR COTTON STATES

Louisiana: Partly cloudy Friday, local thundershowers in north portion, cooler in the interior; Saturday, partly cloudy, probably showers near the coast.

East Texas: Friday, partly cloudy, local thundershowers in north portion, cooler in west and north portions; Saturday, partly cloudy, local showers in south portion.

West Texas: Friday, partly cloudy, probably showers in west portion; cooler in east-central portions; Saturday, partly cloudy, warmer in the panhandle.

Liverpool Cotton.

Liverpool, August 20.—Cotton spot, fair demand; prices, steady. American strictly good middling 13.91; good middling, 13.61; strictly middling, 13.36; middling, 13.11; strictly low middling 12.81; low middling, 12.46; strictly good ordinary, 12.06; good ordinary, 11.46. Sales 5,000 bales, including 4,400 American. Receipts 5,000 bales, including 4,100 American.

Futures closed quiet: August, 12.67; October, 12.39; December, 12.31; January, 12.32; March, 12.38; May, 12.43; July, 12.40.

Cottonseed Oil.

New York, August 20.—Cottonseed oil started steady today with September 6 points higher, through covering of shorts on the early upturn in lard and grains but the market subsequently reacted under a renewal of liquidation and lack of outside support. Closing bids showed net declines of 10 to 13 points. Sales, 12,200 barrels. Prime crude, 9.12½ bid. Prime summer yellow spot, 10.75 bid; September closed 10.75; October 10.56; December 10.29; January 10.34, all bid.

BULGE IN WHEAT MET BY SELLING

Chicago, August 20.—(AP)—Wheat finished lower today after an erratic session during which prices alternately displayed strength and uneasiness. There was a good class of buying on the breaks, but bulges brought in good selling. Claims of frost in the Canadian northwest brought on a strong rally at one time and wheat ascended to a high for the day of 1 1-2 to 1 3-4 cents over the previous close, but aggressive selling of wheat at Winnipeg and selling by houses with northwestern connections that were good buyers here yesterday served to cause a break at the finish.

The close found wheat 1-4 to 1c down from last night's finish, with September at 1.59 1-2 to 1.59 3-4 and December at the identical figures of 159 1-2 to 159 3-4. Corn finished 1 to 2 3-8c decrease, oats at unchanged to 3-8c loss and provisions at 2c down and 30 up.

Reports of Russian selling of a big line of wheat to Italy brought about an increase in selling in the local pit. The market was generally quiet, however, and lacked features of any great importance. As a consequence prices were extremely susceptible to any increased activity on either side. Bulges inevitably meet with realizing sales, while declines encountered increased buying and resting orders.

Short covering and good class of commission house buying maintained corn prices on firm ground during most of the session, but at the finish buying was discouraged by the drop in wheat and heavy country offerings and final values registered losses. Oats were dull and featureless.

Provisions were unsettled, with commission houses fair buyers, but eased off toward the close, affected by the drop in wheat.

Sugar.

New York, August 20.—A decline of 1-32 cent occurred in raw sugar today due to increased offerings. Sales were reported of 21,000 bags of Cuban from store and 22,000 bags, prompt shipment at 4.37 duty paid. Raw sugar futures were weak under increased liquidation promoted by increased offerings in the spot market. Final prices were 4 to 7 points net lower for the active positions. September closed, 2.49; December, 2.63; March, 2.70; May, 2.78.

Refined sugar was unchanged to 5 points higher. Fine granulated was listed at 5.40 @5.60. A moderate domestic demand was reported.

LAWSON FUNERAL WILL BE SIMPLE

Chicago, August 20.—(AP)—Final rites for Victor Fremont Lawson, proprietor and editor of the Chicago Daily News, will be as simple and unostentatious as the life he lived.

The funeral service for the noted publisher, who died unexpectedly at his home here last night, will be held at 11 a. m. Monday, in the new England Congregational church.

The spot that will mark his last resting place had not been decided upon tonight. Neither had the minister to officiate at the final service. The Rev. John R. Heyworth, pastor of the New England church, of which Mr. Lawson was a devoted member, is in Canada on a vacation.

Associates as Pallbearers.

"Thirty," the newspaper man's ancient symbol for the end of a tour of duty, will find the veteran editor to the last surrounded by those whom he enlisted in the great work of building the Daily News to its preeminent position. The list of active pallbearers announced late today included six men from the composing room, business office and news room.

They are O. W. Butts, foreman of the composing room; Clark M. Cavanee, husband of Mr. Lawson's niece and Daily News employee; Anthony Czarnecki, member of the Cook county election commission and former staff writer; William A. McKinney, employed in the business office; Henry Justin Smith, assistant to the president of the University of Chicago and former news editor of the Daily News, and Donald J. Walsh, Mr. Lawson's secretary.

The 28 honorary pallbearers include life-time associates of Mr. Lawson in newspaper work, the field of benevolence, in which his light truly was hidden under a bushel, and Chicago social life.

Messages Flood Office.

Thousands of messages of condolence and praise of the man who gave a life time of devotion to independent journalism, organization of the Associated Press and development of his own newspaper into one of the world's leaders poured into the office of the Daily News today.

From President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes, Melville E. Stone, counsellor of the Associated Press, first business partner of Mr. Lawson and associated with him in founding the Associated Press; Frank B. Noyes, president, and Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, came messages lauding the virtues of the departed leader and mourning his passing.

Churchmen, political leaders, publishers and thousands of others in many walks of life came forward with expressions of regret at the untimely death of the apparently hale and hearty veteran.

Coolidge Calls Him Patriot.

"A preeminent example of a patriotic American," said President Coolidge. "I can think of no better way to describe his achievements, as a friend, a journalist and a statesman."

"I have known Victor F. Lawson intimately for 40 years, and in all these years I have never known him to fall short of doing his full duty in every situation that confronted him. His boundless private generosity will never be known. Together with Melville E. Stone, he built the marvelously successful Chicago Daily News. To these same men is due the credit for the success and ethical standards of the Associated Press. A truly great man has passed."

Tribute Paid by Stone.

Melville E. Stone's message was expressive of the loss of a bosom friend, in addition to his first business associate and coworker in organizing the Associated Press, of which Mr. Lawson was president for six years in its original organization, and Mr. Stone general manager for a quarter of a century in its present form.

"Where, Oh Where Has My Little Dog Gone?"

You won't have to wonder very long if you hop to the phone, call MAin 5000 and ask for an ad-taker.

These little "Lost and Found" ads in The Constitution have a habit of spoiling many pleasant wanderings for family pets.

And furthermore they are just as good at finding pocketbooks that are apparently lost forever. As a grateful advertiser remarked not long ago, "It looks as though all the honest people in Atlanta read The Constitution's classified page."

When you lose something, just remember the proper thing to do—call MAin 5000 and ask for an ad-taker!

ATLANTA THIEVES MAKE RICH HAUL

Surprised by the return of members of the family in the residence of H C. Baker, of 228 East Fifth street, the burglars who had completly ransacked the home, dashed down the stairs into the basement where they pried off a number of boards on an outer wall and escaped.

Among articles reported stolen were a gold bracelet which had been an heirloom of the family for several generations, an engagement ring set with a large diamond which was the property of Mrs. Baker, five $20 bills, a silver compact, a silver mesh bag, three evening gowns, a man's and a woman's overcoat and numerous small articles.

Detectives "Red" Hunt and "Zip" Cody were detailed to investigate

A suit of clothes, a quantity of clothing and a razor were stolen from the residence of W. G. Alexander, of 70 Walton street.

Mrs. Sadie Palmer, of 56 East Baker street, reported theft of a purse containing $6 in cash, $5 in memorial coins and two checks for $25 each.

E. R. Gullin, of 160 Chestnut street, reported the theft of two pairs of shoes, three suits and a number of small articles from his residence.

A suitcase conntaining a quantity of clothes was stolen from R. L. Brantley, of Sylvania. Brantley had left his suitcase on the sidewalk in front of a local drug store and entered to make a purchase. When he returned the suitcase was missing.

Seek To Connect Man With Murder By Handwriting

Maryville, Tenn., August 20.—(AP) The veil between the case, in which William Sheffey is defendant before the Blount county criminal court, and a former trial in which he was chief paarticipant, was partially torn aside here late today. It brought an echo of the slaying of Dora Davis, of Sevier county, 10 years ago, and subsequent trial of Sheffey as the slayer, to the court room in which he is now fighting for his life under an indictment charging murder of Luther Wells.

It was a sister of the slain girl, Miss Ersie Davis, who, called to the stand by the state, identified, as having been written by William Sheffey, a letter addressed to her father, the late James Robert Davis, of Sevier, dated January 27, 1925.

Corroborative evidence was offered by Judge A. M. Payne, of Sevierville, who testified that he was an attorney in the trial of Sheffey in Sevier county, and that a letter of the same content was offered in that hearing and that he admitted authorship.

The state tomorrow will attempt to prove that this handwriting is the same as that in a letter sent to John McCampbell, while he was sheriff of Blount county, after the slaying of Luther Wells and the shooting of his wife. It is said to be a recital of a series of crimes committed against men and women and to have included the slaying of Dora Davis 10 years ago.

The state today called Dr. R. E. Lee Smith, superintendent of the Eastern State hospital. Dr. Smith declared it possible for a person to receive an impression of a person, an act or an incident, the full expression of which would be retained in the sub-conscious mind and later developed.

KLAN IS PLANNING EVOLUTION FIGHT

Washington, August 20.—(AP)—High officials of the Ku Klux Klan will meet next Monday at Buckeye Lake, Ohio, says The Washington Post tonight, to draft a legislative program, expected to urge prohibition of the teaching of evolution from public graded schools and to close America to all aliens.

Quoting a "recognized spokesman" of the klan, The Post said the meeting is described as the annual national conference of klan officials, and that its most important topics will be evolution and immigration.

Regarding evolution, The Post said it was informed that both state and national legislation might be sought by the klan, but that no effort would be made to bar the teachings in state-maintained institutions of higher learning. The spokesman added, the newspaper said, that despite propaganda attributed to the klan, no movement was contemplated against parochial or private schools.

"Once the mind has been moulded into a sound structure of the fundamental truths of life and its creation," The Post quoted the klan official, "then it is all right for it to seek other knowledge in research. We do not want youth made distraught in its earlier years of development, however, by scientific theories that undermine religion.

"Undermining of religious faith would be dangerous to this nation's institutions, and the perpetuation of American supremacy is our greatest aim."

British Party Taken Captive In Chinese Raid

Shanghai, August 20.—Eight British missionaries and an unidentified child are held by Chinese bandits somewhere in Szechwan province in the southwestern corner of China, according to an announcement of the church missionary society.

Bishop H. W. K. Mowll, former dean of Wyckliffe college, Toronto, Canada, his wife and four other women are among the prisoners. It is believed that the missionaries and the child have been taken to some partially inaccessible district to be held for ransom.

The capture was effected August 6, according to the society's announcement, near the Chengtu capital of Szechwan province.

Jail-Break Plot At San Quentin Causing Alarm

San Francisco, August 20.—Reports that a wholesale jail break is planned at San Quentin penitentiary have created much excitement among prison officials.

Keys stolen from a guard are said to have furnished prisoners with a means of opening several tiers of cells simultaneously. The admission, Thursday, of James Reed, a guard, that the keys had disappeared, strengthened the "under-ground" from the prison.

Murder charges were filed against the six convicts who staged an unsuccessful break for freedom Wednesday, following the death early Thursday of B. O. Miller, prison attache, who was slugged by the felons.

"We'll hang them all if we can," said George Van Smith, chairman of the board of prison directors.

There are 3,000 prisoners at the state penitentiary. Riots, violence and attempted escapes have occurred frequently in the last few months.

Citizens of San Rafael, near San Quentin, are forming an organization which can be armed and called together quickly in case a large number of prisoners battle their way out of the prison, according to their mayor, D. D Bowman.

TWO TRAINMEN DIE IN COLORADO WRECK

Leadville, Colo., August 20.—(AP)—Two firemen were killed and 14 passengers were injured in a head-on collision between the "Panoramic Specials" on the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad in Granite Canyon, ten miles west of Buena Vista, Colo., late this afternoon.

Failure on the part of a telegraph operator at Tennessee Pass to transmit orders was reported to have been responsible for the collision. Both trains were heavily loaded with east and west bound passengers, the majority of them tourists.

The trains crashed at a curve in Granite canyon and the engine and two coaches of train No. 8 were derailed and tossed against the canyon wall near the banks of the Arkansas river.

A heavy grade at Granite prevented the trains from moving at high speed through the canyon. Both trains are operated on a schedule to permit a daylight view of the Rocky mountains. Passengers were absorbed in viewing the scenery when the trains crashed.

DOCTOR KEEPS BABE ALIVE BY BLOWING BREATH IN LUNGS

Long Island City, N. Y., August 20.—Throughout a five-mile ambulance race Dr. Jerry Granoff kept life in the body of Dorothy Keller, a six-day-old baby, by breathing his breath into her lungs, only to see the infant die of a strange respiratory ailment a few minutes later at St. John's hospital here.

The baby was in bed by the side of her mother, Mrs. Thomas Keller, when the mother noticed that her child was not breathing properly. Mrs. Keller summoned an ambulance and Dr. Granoff responded.

Taking the infant in his arms, the ambulance surgeon ordered all possible speed. Meantime, while he used stimulants but the symptoms of asphyxiation persisted. As a last resort, as the ambulance sped along the roadway, he placed his mouth to that of the child and blew his own breath into the baby's lungs.

TAR AND FEATHER VICTIM WON'T SEEK ACTION BY COURTS

Burgettstown, Pa., August 20.—(AP) Declaring he did not care to have the authorities investigate the affair, Robert Morris, 43, a tailor, today told Justice of the Peace W. B. Culley that he does not contemplate court action against four men who tarred and feathered him last night. Morris intimated that a young woman who was reared in his family but who left his home recently may have inspired the attack on him.

Disinclined to discuss the affair, Morris said, however, that he doubted whether he could identify his assailants. Two were hooded, he said, and two had blackened their faces. He was not injured.

Morris was called from his home last night by the men. He was dragged into an automobile and driven to the country, where he was disrobed and the tar and feathers applied. Then he was brought back to town and left near his home, carrying his clothes with him. He had been warned, he said, that he was not to molest the young woman who formerly lived at his home.

Harvey J. Howard, Captive of Bandits, Definitely Located

Peking, August 20.—(AP)—Harvey J. Howard, the American who was captured some time ago by bandits in Manchuria at the same time that they killed Morgan Palmer, formerly of Plattsburgh, N. Y., has been definitely located in a bandit camp some 40 miles from Fuchow-Hsien. Dr. Howard is reported to be well.

Notice—Correction.

Editor Atlanta Constitution: We are requesting you to set the public right relative to a damage suit for alleged libel which was filed in the superior court of DeKalb county by our client, Dr. G. W. Holmes Cheney, the court record showing that the defendants are Hon. John N. Malone, and his wife, Mrs. John N. Malone. While the story did not appear in The Constitution, it appeared in an afternoon paper. The afternoon paper is not at fault, as through an inadvertence, Hon. John N. Malone and his good wife were named as the defendants. They are not the defendants in this case, and our client and ourselves regret exceedingly that these prominent and estimable Atlantans should have been done this grave injustice.

In behalf of justice, and in behalf of these good people, we take great pleasure in making this correction, and wish to state that the suit is being amended that the correct defendants will be recited.

Respectfully,
HUTCHESON & MORRIS & L. S. BELLINGER.

I cannot say, and I will Not say
That she is dead. She
Is just away!
With a cheery smile and a
Wave of the hand
She has wandered into
An Unknown Land.

We wish to thank the many relatives and friends for their many kindnesses extended to us in the loss of our Mary.

Snapper's On the Menu!

Somehow the news spreads like wildfire when we place baked red snapper with Creole sauce on our Shore Dinner menu.

The result is, that EVERYBODY wants baked red snapper.

You will, too, if you include this delicacy in your order today. Try it this noon.

¶ Do you know that every-other-day The Tri-Weekly Constitution carries the news of the world into over 100,000 well-to-do farm homes of the Southeast?

The nagging irritation of worrying with poor carbon paper proved too much for little Minnie Troubles, steno to Mr. Yewster Waste-Time, and one busy day something in her brain snapped. They rushed her to Milledgeville. At FOOTE & DAVIES Mr. Waste-Time ordered a supply of Multikopy Carbon Paper. His present secretary is proud and happy.
